Maj. William D. Barone, Winchester physician, returned to town last week after serving two years overseas. He entered the service in October 1942 attending Officers' Training School in Miami Beach and the School of Aviation Medicine at Randolph Field, Texas. After being assigned to the 19th Bombardment Group for eight months, he was sent overseas where he became Commanding Officer of a 36 bed mobile hospital which served the 8Third Fighter Bomber Group in England and the 358th Fighter Bomber Group which participated in the invasion of Normandy.

It received a Presidential Citation for its work before the invasion and one for its commendable performance with Patton's 3rd Army in its memorable drive through France and Germany.

Major Barone who recently received six majority, has been awarded six campaign battle stars. He expects to resume his practice in the near future.

SCHOOLS WATCHING PUPILS' HEALTH

The attendance of pupils in the schools after the holidays is better than expected. About 17 per cent of the pupils were absent on Wednesday and 16 per cent on Thursday.

The school nurse, M. A. Savage, has emphasized to all the schools the necessity of keeping a close check on the physical condition of the pupils. Dr. Cunningham, the school physician, advises all parents to keep their children in as good condition as possible. Sufficient rest and a well-chosen diet are essentials.

Pupils who have colds, sore throats or with severe coughing spells should remain home. If a child has a temperature, he should stay in bed.

The home and school must work together.

THE NEW YEAR

The year 1945, filled with strife and nerve-racking, incidents has passed into history and the new year replete with prospects and possibilities looms before us.

We have hopes and faith that this glorious new year holds in its grasp the realization of our fond dream of peace, prosperity and happiness for all.

The future is a closed book upon the pages of which are to be recorded the events which to a marked degree we have the power to influence by our lives and deeds.

If we, ourselves, can experience happiness by sowing seeds of kindness and bringing joy into the lives of others we may be sure that the year will be brighter and happier to just that extent and it may be that others will note the result and join in the good work.

The Red Cross is pledged to bring into the world as much happiness as you, by your support and encouragement, make it possible. Let us unite in helping to make the New Year a happy one for all.

SUITCASES LEAD TO RECOVERY OF STOLEN CAR

The report that two suitcases were lying in a sandbox at Leonard Field New Year's morning ultimately resulted in the recovery of a stolen car which had been abandoned in the old freight yard off Swanton street near Russo's cement block house.

Mrs. Agnes Jackson of Callamore road notified the Police that she had noticed two suitcases in the sandbox at the playground and Officer William E. Cassidy was sent to investigate.

He found the cases and discovered that they had been pried open, a quantity of men's and women's apparel being scattered about.

At Headquarters an examination was made and a letter found, addressed to Clancy E. Zirrolo of 545 Riverside avenue, Medford.

Chief William H. Rogers communicated with Medford Headquarters and learned that the two suitcases had been in a Chevrolet sedan, owned by Zirrolo and stolen in Medford on Dec. 28.

The local Police immediately instituted a search for the missing car and at 12:30 Tuesday afternoon Sgt. Thomas E. Cassidy found it in the old freight yard off Swanton street. It had been run in there before the snowstorm.

While picking up the suitcases Officer Cassidy was told by a man living near the playground that he had seen a man go from Cross street into Leonard Field Sunday evening and that the stranger was carrying two parcels or bundles of some sort.

WINCHESTER NAVY MEN MET ON GUAM

Two of Winchester's Navy men, Seabee P. Hilton, Sic. (Q) 2c. and Laurence D. Norton, S1c, recently met on Guam, M. I. The meeting was brought about when Seaman Norton noticed an article in the Winchester Star stating that Specialist Hilton was stationed on Guam. The article, plus the aid of the American Red Cross was all that was needed to bring the two men together. Both men were members of the Winchester High School, class of 1941.

Specialist Hilton entered the Navy in November, 1944, while a student at Bowdoin College. In February, 1945, after completing his boot training at Sampson, N. Y., he went overseas and has been stationed at Joint Communications Activities on Guam since that time.

Seaman Norton entered the Navy in March 1945, while a student at King's College School in Windsor, Nova Scotia. Upon completion of his boot training, also taken at Sampson, N. Y., "Snort" was stationed for a brief time at Shoemaker, Cal., going overseas in September and is now stationed at the Naval Operating Base on Guam.

WINCHESTER AT BELMONT

Winchester High School's basketball team journeys to Belmont tonight to open its Middlesex League season against Mel Wenner's Belmont High quintet. Ordinarily Belmont is further along in all around development than Winchester during the early season games, but this year Winchester has been practicing during vacation and has played two games, losing both.

Newton beat the locals in the season's opener, 47-35 and the Alumni also won from the high school, 47-36. Both Newton and the Alumni were strong opponents and Coach Knowlton felt that his charges did well against them. Incidentally Newton beat Belmont by a larger margin than Winchester, so the locals should at least have an even chance tonight.

Winchester will probably start tonight with Capt. Pat Patterson and Twiggy Nolan at the forwards, tall Sesdai Nathan at center and Pete Blanchard in the back court with big Johnny West. Seventhirty is probably the starting time for the second team game.

MEN'S CLUB OBSERVES FATHER AND SON NIGHT

About 100 fathers and sons attended a Father and Son banquet Thursday evening, Dec. 27, at the parish hall of the First Congregational Church. This event was one of a series of activities being conducted this year by the Men's Club of the church under the direction of the Club's president, Mr. Raymond C. Strawbridge.

Following the dinner, Mr. Strawbridge introduced Mr. Frank Lane, magician. Much to their delight, Mr. Lane called several of the younger boys to the platform to "aid" him in his stunts of magic, and for the remainder of the evening he had no difficulty in holding the rapt attention of everybody with amazing sleight of hand demonstrations.

The party was disbanded at an early hour to conform with earlier stipulations of certain mothers of the younger members of the group.

MRS. WINIFRED GALE HART

Mrs. Winifred Gale Hart, widow of Robert W. H. t and a resident of Winchester for the past 10 years, passed away suddenly New Year's Eve, Dec. 31, at the home of her twin sister, Miss Blanche A. Gale, in Pasadena, Cal., where she was spending the winter.

Besides her sister, Mrs. Hart leaves three sons, Lt. Col. Henry G. V. Hart of Scarsdale, N. Y., and twin sons, Parker Hart of Ypsilante, Mich., and Robert W. Hart, Jr., of Boston.

WINCHESTER HISTORICAL SOCIETY TEA

On New Years Day, Mr. and Mrs. George Connor of 403 Main Street opened their home for a very delightful tea for the members of the Winchester Historical Society, which was attended by about 75 members and friends.

This house is one of the oldest in Winchester, having been built in the 1700s, and has been occupied by the Sharon family from 1845 until recent years. It is most tastefully furnished with many articles of historic interest, and contains among other things a large collection of rare old pewter and china, and many beautiful dolls. It was a pleasure and a privilege to see these beautiful articles, many of which are Museum pieces.

Miss Clara Russell, president of the society, received the guests with Mrs. Connor, and the pourers were Miss Laura Tolman and Miss Jean MacLellan.

LADIES GIVEN NYLONS AT COUNTRY CLUB PARTY

This year's New Year's Eve Party for members at the Winchester Country Club was featured by the presentation of coveted nylon stockings to each of the feminine guests. Shrieks of delight which was unmistakeable followed the presentation.

Some 85 couples attended the party which commenced with a cocktail hour followed by dinner, planned and served in the club kitchen under the direction of the stewardess, Miss Marguerite Donahue. After dinner, which was at 9 o'clock, dancing was enjoyed until 3 a. m. New Year's morning. Al Bond's Orchestra played.

Decorations for the party were handsomely done by Bill Dunsworth. Outside the clubhouse was a lighted Christmas tree and a spotlight played on old Santa himself going down the clubhouse chimney to provide cheer for the guests. Inside the lounge was was festive with wreaths and greens while in the balcony a baby 1946 was depicted chasing father time right out of the picture. Dancing deftly to the decorative scheme were flower arrangements by Mrs. Owena Chadwick. Robert Tonau as chairman of the club's entertainment committee, was in general charge of the party.

MASONS HELD OPEN HOUSE

The annual open house of the town's Masonic Lodges, William Parkman and Mystic Valley, and Winchester Royal Arch Chapter, attracted a gathering on the forenoon of New Years day that taxed the capacity of Masonic Apartments. Many regular attendants believed this year's crowd was the largest ever.

Heading a group of distinguished Masons in attendence were Rt. Wor. Peter A. Day, senior grand warden of the Grand Lodge, and Rt. Wor. J. L. Reid, Grand Lodge pursuivant. Both made brief addresses, as did the heads of the local bodies, A. Allen Kimball, master of William Parkman, Leroy T. Downer, master of Mystic Valley and John Carruthers, high priest of the Chapter.

An excellent exhibition of legerdemain was given by a professional magician and refreshments were served. The usual toast to the Grand Master of Masons was proposed by Wor. Ralph W. E. Hopper.

SELECTMEN'S NOTES

Warrant for the March 1946 town meeting will be closed at 8 p. m. on Jan. 28. All articles for insertion should be in the hands of the Selectmen or the town counsel on or before that date.

Dr. E. Wm. Johansen who was on military leave of absence has returned from the service and has been re-instated by the Board as Inspector of Animals.

ROTARY NOTES

The first meeting of Winchester Rotary for the year, 1946, turned out to be a good one, with a good attendance, plenty of enthusiasm and a number of visitors. President Vin Ambrose presided.

Among the guests was Major Jimmy Wakefield, Jr., assistant town engineer, back on the job at the town hall following his discharge from the Army Corps of Engineers in which he served for 42 months, including a long tour in the ETO.

Another guest was Pfc. Frank Cassidy, son of Rotarian John F. Cassidy, chairman of the Board of Assessors. Frank is recently back from the Pacific Theatre and gave a most interesting talk on conditions as he found them in the various countries he saw while in service. To his mind many, if not most of these countries are bent on getting all they can out of Uncle Sam.

There was some good lusty singing during the meeting with Church Hindes on the leader's rostrum and Jim McGrath at the piano. Mal Bennett was passing out cigars in honor of the arrival of a son at his house on Christmas Day, and there was much happy banter among a little group who are being forced to keep their driveways clear in anticipation of rather imminent dates with the bird with the long legs and bill.

BREAK FOILED BY SAFETY CATCH

A safety catch on a sliding transom window evidently prevented a break at the home of Mr. Richard L. Fossett, 21 Church street road, Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Fossett were away from home during the evening, and Thursday morning noticed the glass broken over the lock in one of the side doors to the house. The window catch had been pushed up, but the intruders had been unable to raise the window because of a safety strap secured at the bottom of the sash.

The tracks of two persons were found in the snow outside the window, leading from the house through a neighboring yard out on to the street. The Police learned that neighbors had seen an automobile coming from the direction of Pond street stop and pick up two men at about the place where they would have reached Chesterford road after being on the Fossett property.

PICKED UP FOR BURGLARY TON POLICE

Wednesday forenoon Officers Edward Bowler and Irving Reardon went to a plant at the north end of the town and picked up a Burlington man on a capias for the Burlington Police, the charge being default of bail. At the same time, in response to a telephone call from a Burlington woman, they recovered a Chevrolet truck which the man was driving allegelly without authority.

While questioning the man at Headquarters Chief William H. Rogers picked up information which enabled him to give the Burlington authorities a tip which was in turn reported to the District Attorney in connection with the alleged transportation and sale of narcotics.

HONG KONG

The return of Hong Kong to British authority again raises to 11 on dark over a small but significant spot which for an even hundred years was a center of British influence and trade along China's southeast coast.

Situated on the south side of the great bulge of China, the Crown Colony of Hong Kong lies within a broad area of international interests, says the National Geographic Society. Represented in this area are China, the United States, Great Britain, France, Portugal, and until lately, Japan.

Patch of Islands and Mainland

Hong Kong touches Chinese territory and is only 40 miles across the estuary of the Canton River from the tiny Portuguese possession of Macau. It is less than 400 miles from the formerly Japanese island of Formosa (Taiwan); 490 miles from Uncle Sam's Philippines; 410 miles from French Indochina, and 1,060 miles north of British Borneo. Before the Japs overran the colony on December 25, 1941, Hong Kong, together with Corregidor and Singapore, was described as the third leg in a tripod of British-American power in southeast Asia.

In all, Hong Kong covers a patch of island and mainland territory amounting to about 390 square miles. It includes the 11 mile-long island, Hong Kong, on which the capital, Victoria, was built; the Kowloon Peninsula; the New Territories, and several additional islands.

The first British foothold in this region was secured on Hong Kong Island in 1841, during the Opium War between China and Great Britain. Occupation of the island as a naval base and permanent trading settlement came after centuries of struggle between adventurous British traders and hostile Chinese authorities, with sudden battles fought out from time to time against local pirate bands. In that early, now primitive-sounding warfare, British gunboats bombarded river mud forts and Chinese "fire ships" sailed against the vessels of the "foreign devils."

The cession of Hong Kong Island to Great Britain was confirmed by the treaty of Nanking in 1842. Eighteen years later, by the Convention of Peking, Kowloon Peninsula, extending southward from the Chinese mainland, and the near-by Stonecutters' Island were added to the colony. In 1898, the country adjoining Kowloon, known as the New Territories, was leased to the British for a 99-year period.

Available farmland in the more than 350 square-mile area of the latter acquisition was particularly useful in helping to feed Hong Kong Colony, which produces little for itself. In dry years, even water was sometimes imported from Manila and Singapore.

Grew to World Importance

During the century of British rule, health protection, land reclamation projects, new roads, and industrial and commercial development made Hong Kong one of the empire's leading outposts. By the 1930's, this former "plague spot" of the tropics had been turned into a world port, equipped with huge docks, warehouses, cranes, and other facilities for handling its immense trade and traffic. Its population had grown toward the million mark. Its industries included shipbuilding; the factory processing of such products as tin, sugar, rice; the manufacture of furniture, paper, glass, rope, textiles, cement.

Excluding the armed forces, Hong Kong's British and other non-Chinese residents in 1940 numbered a little more than 24,000. Its Chinese population by then was estimated at close to two million, a figure nearly double the normal one because of the hundred of thousands of refugees admitted to the free city from Japs-invaded China.

So many rich Chinese merchants and bankers had fled to the colony that it was reported Hong Kong counted more than 500 millionaires. At the same time, newspapers told of thousands of refugees sleeping in the city streets, and other armies of the homeless gathered into camps in outlying districts under British supervision.

In the period before the Japanese attack, visitors found Hong Kong a fantastic place of change and paradox, of feverish preparations for defense in the midst of booming stock markets and crowded theaters and cafes; of emergency-driven doctors and welfare workers fighting disease and starvation, while normal gaiety and sports went on in the way of parties and yacht races, tennis, fox hunts, and eager shopping in the city's department stores. When the Japanese struck, it was by way of the New Territories. There in the hills and valleys, the British forces put up a losing fight before the superior strength of the Nipponese overwhelmed the main prize of Hong Kong.

WEEK END FIRES

The first of three alarms answered by the Fire Department over the past week-end came Friday evening at 7:45 when a short circuit in the wiring set fire to a Christmas tree at the home of Mr. Thomas J. McKee, 59 Wendall street. The curtains in the room where the tree was standing were burned and some of the furniture scorched. There was also some smoke damage done.

Sunday evening at 7:50 Sgt. Joseph Derro of the Police Dept. discovered the big neon sign on the Star building afire. The Fire Department was called and cut off the sign, after which the owner and the Edison Company took care of the inside wiring.

The alarm from Box 47 at 8:22 Sunday evening was for a fire in a garage on the property of Mr. Vincenzo Roselli, 3 Loring avenue. The fire was caused by gasoline dripping from a machine being igneted by a lighted lantern on the floor. The car and contents of the garage were more or less damaged by the fire which the firemen said could have been bad had it gone a bit further.

VETERAN SPEAKER

An island hopping "GI" entertainer, decorated for meritorious service, full of South Sea Island anecdotes and a vision for the future will speak to the Junior High School Fellowship and the Metcalf Union Sunday, Jan. 6. The speaker, Paul Lonzaquin of Quincy, was in action on Luzon, flew over burning Manila and traveled all over the South Pacific boosting moral with his "cliffs of chatter" and his comic antics.

Before going into the Army he attended college in Maine, working on the side as a radio announcer and script writer. Now that he is discharged he plans to complete his interrupted education at Northwestern University.

THIRD BIG STORM

Winchester had its third big snow storm of the building winter last Saturday, the snow commencing in the early morning and continuing through the day and well into the night. Big light flakes of snow, with little or no wind, resulted in a smooth even blanket over everything some 14 inches deep. If you go for snow-scenes, the town and its trees made a pretty picture.

The town's snow removal equipment was out early Saturday and the streets were pretty well cleaned out through the day. With the heavy and continuous fall, however, they rapidly filled in, but those with chains on their cars had little trouble in getting around.

Following a mild night a thaw set in on Sunday, causing the light snow to settle appreciably and this followed by heavy rain and fog Sunday night and Monday resulted in a real mess for those who had to get around on Monday. Seldom have the streets around the center been so bad. Going over a galosh was easy enough and the gals with their knee-length rubber boots were in their glory. One big chap went to the assistance of a lady caught in the rapids at McCormack's corner of Church and Main streets and toted her to the comparative safety of the sidewalk. The most fun we have seen about the center in a long time hampered the work of the crews trying to improve conditions. Many stores were closed and as a consequence their sidewalks were unplowed. It was literally "swim for it" in the center Monday, with those anticipating a "night-before" party wondering what the outcome was to be!

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

A most enjoyable Christmas party was held for the Winchester members fo the Guild last Thursday, Dec. 27 at Lyceum Hall.

The members of the Board were the hostesses for the day, assisted by the president, Mrs. Michael Hatzlian. Each member was presented with a beautifully wrapped Christmas gift. Christmas carols were sung and after a brief entertainment with Mrs. Frank Murphy at the piano, a delicious repast was served of chicken and turkey sandwiches, tea and coffee.

The next regular meeting will be held Jan. 8 at Lyceum Hall. Members are reminded that the silver of the Boston Guild will be held next Monday, Jan. 7 at 2 o'clock at the Hotel Statler, Boston. They will have as their guest speaker Richard Reid, K. S. G., Editor of the Catholic News, New York Archdiocesan Paper. Admission will be by 1946 membership card or guest ticket. Many Winchester members plan to attend, and all are welcome.

GYM FLOOR REFINISHED

The floor in the Winchester High School gymnasium has been completely refinished this week, and a coat of paint has been applied to the walls. The work is to be done.

The next task will be changing the stage in the Recess Gym and the high grade locker rooms and showers. The lines used for basketball are under this finish, so the lines will not have to be repainted afterward. Another feature is the growth which stains and dirt are completely removed from the surface, adding materially to the appearance and hygienic condition of the floor.

According to Coach Henry Knowlton the new finish is very clear and others who have seen the floor in process of having its face lifted are equally enthusiastic.

SECOND WOBURN HOOP GAME ARRANGED

Arrangements have been made for a second basketball game between Winchester and Woburn High Schools to be played at Winchester on Feb. 19.

The two teams will meet at Woburn on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22, but until Wednesday of this week every effort to arrange a second game had failed. On Wednesday Coach Henry Knowlton of Winchester met Woburn's recently returned from service A. D. James "Dinger" Brennan, with the result that the Feb. 19 date was arranged.

This will be good news to local basketball fans, for Woburn is always a drawing card here, and the Tigers expect to have a good club this winter. Now it will be possible to see the Orange both in Winchester and Woburn, as usual.

SUEZ CANAL

Bandits carrying out raids in the Suez Canal zone under cover of sand storms — according to news dispatches—are operating on the edge of a salty, sea-level, lockless waterway cutting 100 miles across Egypt's desert Isthmus of Suez, says the National Geographic Society. Called "the jugular vein of the British Empire," the canal has been recently serving as a short cut for troops being deployed from the European theater to eastern fighting fronts.

From Port Said on the Mediterranean Sea to Suez at the head of the Gulf of Suez, an arm of the Red Sea, the canal route runs almost due south. Divided roughly into halves by the oasis of Ismalia, the canal is almost a straight line throughout its northern half. A series of lakes — Lake Timsah, Great Bitter Lake, and Little Bitter Lake — and canal links make up the southern half. The Bitter lakes serve as buffer basins for the 4-foot tide from the Red Sea. President Roosevelt received 3 Middle East monarchs aboard an American warship anchored in Great Bitter Lake when returning from the Yalta Conference.

Sizable natural features and important man-made works are for the most part situated west of the big ditch. To the west the northeastward-flowing Nile River branches out through a broad delta to pay its muddy tribute into the Mediterranean; between the delta and the canal lies Lake Manzala; hills rise west of the Bitter lakes; a railway and a fresh-water canal connected with the Nile at Cairo parallel the western bank of the canal and the shore line of the lakes.

Sand the Old Enemy of Canal

Winds blow violently over the desert reaches, and shift tons of sand sanalward. The banks of the waterway are chiefly sand and gravel. On some stretches concrete has been foured to check erosion. Dredges continually move up and down the channel, removing accumulations of sand and sluicing it over the banks in broad, fanlike mounds. The banks are so high in some places that ships viewed from inland appear as a procession of masts and upper rigging.

Several cities and towns are scattered along the canal route. At the northern end, on a sand spit lies Port Said, named for the Khedive Said. Its prewar population was aout 125,000. Across the canal to the east, is the model town of Port Fuad, built to relieve the congestion of the older port and named for the late King of Egypt.

About 28 miles south of Port Said lies Qantara, "the bridge", marking the ancient caravan route between Africa and Asia. It was a military are during the first World War. Shallufa, near the southern entrance to Little Bitter Lake, is a canal station and Bedouin community.

The city of Suez rises on squares of salt-encrusted land. Near it is a small oasis known as the "Wells of Moses." At the outbreak of the war the population of Suez was about 40,000.

The canal was begun in 1859 opened in 1869. It was promoted as a project by Count Ferdinand de Lesseps, a French diplomat who later failed in a similar attempt in Panama. Operation is controlled by a company with almost half the shares held by the British Government. International agreements have provided for the use of the canal at all times by all nations.

LONDON BRIDGES AND BOATMEN

Spans from the temporary girder bridge, built beside Londons old Waterloo Bridge, have been shipped to the continent to repair some of Europe's many railway bridges damaged during the war.

The London steel bridge had been constructed 20 years ago to relieve traffic on the stone Waterloo Bridge, the National Geographic Society recalls. One of the old stone piers had sunk more than two feet by 1923, raising a question of repairing or rebuilding.

Prized for its architectural beauty, the old Waterloo Bridge had been completed in 1817, at a cost of about five million dollars. Despite many protests, it was finally decided to replace it, and a new stone Waterloo Bridge was begun in 1937. It was opened in 1942.

There are 15 passenger bridges over the Thames in London County. Oldest and most famous is the so-called London Bridge which, though frequently rebuilt, has occupied about the original site of Roman days. It was London's only bridge over the Thames until 1750.

River Competition Grew

The historic London Bridge, razed in 1831, had been the first of London's stone bridges. It served the city for more than six centuries. Over it crossed the hundreds of Canterbury pilgrims, since before Chaucers time. Holiday crowds passed over it to the Globe and other theaters, and to the bear-baitings in Southwark. It was the gateway into London for travelers landing at Channel ports.

London Bridge was never the only crossing. Boatmen had plied the Thames, London's principal highway since the earliest days of the city. In the colorful era of Queen Elizabeth more than 2000 boats, upholstered and canopied against sun and rain, ferried Londoners across the 1000-foot river. They continued to carry fares along London's three-mile water front, up and down stream, soliciting business at the street-end wharves and stairs with cries of "Westward, ho!" "Eastward, ho!"

During the 16th century and even later, the river was London's fashionable parade, over which were "poured with speed" the glamorous ladies and the ruffled gallants of the Court, from private landings of palaces and mansions whose gardens abutted on the stream. In past times, river spectacles sponsored by the trade guilds and other processions often were led by the royal barge, glistening in gilt and lace, between banks crowded with spectators. No great river pageants have contributed to London's color and valety during the past hundred years.

Organized into a strong guild, London's boatmen never hesitated to voice complaint against inroads on their revenue—the twopenny fare legally fixed in the 14th century, the building of more boats, the removal of the playhouses to the north bank, the coming of coach competition in the 17th century. Their last petition was against the erection of Waterloo Bridge. A century ago surface river traffic was still further cut when the first of several tunnels was opened under the Thames.

Before the war this vanishing race of wherry-men (harbor boatmen) was reportedly reduced to about 300 scullers, their boats lined up beside the river piers like taxis to carry officers and men between ship and shore, or to take groups of stevedores to ships in the morning and back at night.

STRIKE AND YOU GET IT

"Strike and you get it" was the heading of an editorial written in the Star a long time ago. During the intervening months the slogan ap pears to have consistantly gained weight. The only criticism (published in a recent issue) was by Mr. Edwin R. Rooney, Jr., who took exceptions to the article. Mr. Rooney, with the armed forces, is, we have heard, a correspondent for a labor magazine, so that his objection was undoubtedly made in line with his duties. The Star still feels that this title is as good today as when it was first written.

SHORE ROAD

To the Editor of the Star:

It was very gratifying to see in the Winchester Star that the present Board of Selectmen has arranged for the Town Engineer to inspect the conditions on the playground at Black Ball Pond on the so-called "Shore Road" before any more money is wasted on account of the playground.

A requirement of the Town By-Laws as to the duties of the Engineer is as follows:

"The Town Engineer shall be Engineer of the Engineering Department and all engineering work of the town and have custody of all plans and engineering records of the town under the control of the Board of Selectmen who may remove him or the Assistant Engineer at any time for cause deemed by them sufficient. It shall be his duty to prepare or cause to be prepared, all plans and to furnish all engineering data obtainable from the records or by use of the facilities of said department, required by any town board or department in the performance of its duties or necessary in connection with any work or undertaking authorized by the town, and generally, to advise and assist the town boards, and departments and any special committees with respect to engineering matters."

The Winchester Park Commissioners, disregarding the Town By-Laws, began a reckless expenditure of money going back to 1929 for work about which they had no knowledge and without taking advantage of the Town Engineer's office. This applies to the construction of the playground on Shore road where all the information showing depth of mud was available for the asking without any additional expense to the Town.

It would seem to me that advocates of an additional large expenditure for playground purposes are showing their interest a little late. Why did they not interest themselves while the Park Commissioners were wasting large sums of money for developing a field that cannot be used for the purpose for which it was constructed?

I visited the location of the playground at the request of a former Selectman and advised him, in the presence of Mr. Lybeck of the then School Board that, on request, the officials of the Metropolitan District Commission would allow them, free of charge, to copy from their plans, borings they had made previously for the different lines of trunk sewers constructed by them in that vicinity and advised them to have the Town Engineer get copies of those borings and make a report. This advice they did not follow.

The whole program carried on by the Park Commissioners has been one of reckless waste. The first instance to my knowledge was in 1930 when they contracted for improvements at Wedge Pond. The Town Engineer furnished plans and specifications for this work. He told me that the Park Commissioners informed him his services were no further needed after these were made and that they would carry out the terms of the contract and plans with the contractor. One of the items of the contract was the removal of an estimated 3000 cubic yards of mud. This was paid for but not removed. Payment was made without a certificate from the Town Engineer.

In all my experience work of this nature is done under plans, specifications and inspection made by the Town Engineer and is paid for under his certificate showing that work has been done. In this case bills were approved by the Park Department and payment was made without question.

The next instance to my knowledge was at and adjacent to Swanton street where they constructed a dam below the bridge which raised the water to such an extent that they had to remove the bridge and build another.

Two other important projects that resulted in wastage of Town funds were the bridge and playground on Shore road.

A short time ago, in consultation with one of the Town Officials, I recommended an investigation of the playground on Shore road by the Town Engineer and advised that he get the borings available at the Metropolitan District Commission, Boston, and make a report. As a result the Town Engineer and I obtained these borings which can be seen by anyone at the Town Hall. These borings reveal the fact that mud is very deep over the greater part of it, the deepest place is 85 feet.

And this indicates to my mind that it was foolhardy for the Park Commissioners to waste the money they did when investigation at the proper time would have shown the futility of this project.

It is my definite opinion that the surface of the field, either for football playing or for the proposed grandstand construction cannot be maintained on account of the excessive amount of mud underlying it.

I believe we have an efficient Engineering Department equal to any that I have dealt with and superior to a great many and there is no good reason why all construction work done by the different departments should not be carried on through the Town Engineer's Office as provided by the Town By-Laws.

Yours very truly,
George M. Bryne

ISLE OF MAN

The recent visit of George VI to the Isle of Man, tiny British possession in the Irish Sea midway between northern England and Ireland, was climaxed by his presiding over the annual open-air meeting of the island's parliament. The National Geographic Society points out that this is one of the oldest of the few open-air parliaments that the world has known, comprising all adult males and each the famous Althing of Iceland, which now meets indoors. This was also the first time a British monarch has presided in person as Lord of Man over the parliament in six centuries of British rule.

The parliament traces its beginnings to the Dark Ages, when Norse invaders conquered the 30 by 12 mile island in the ninth century. Since then, despite Irish, Scotch, and English rule, the ancient Norse custom that all laws binding freemen be enacted in the open before a full assembly of freemen has continued.

Every year on July 5, old Midsummer Day, the parliament meets with pomp and ceremony on Tynwald Hill and proclaims the laws passed during the previous year for the island's 50,000 inhabitants. These laws are, of course, subject to British approval. Curiously enough, no act of the British Parliament applies to the Isle of Man unless it is specifically stated in the law.

Tynwald Hill itself is a mound some 12 feet high and 80 feet in diameter, reputedly made with dirt brought from all 17 of the island's parishes. It is located in St. John's, about two miles from Peel, the west coast "sunset city." On Midsummer Day it is strewn with rushes, and four circular platforms provide seats for the lawmakers. On the summit there is a state chair for the royal governor, in the unique instance George VI.

After a religious ceremony in near-by St. John's Church, a colorful procession of royal officials moves to Tynwald between a military guard of honor. A band plays a royal salute as the Lord of Man takes his place. All laws passed since the last outdoor meeting are read in English and Manx, the ancient Celtic tongue are understood by only a few people. Newly elected officials take office and the laws are duly signed. This year the ceremony took on added significance, for certain Manxmen received honors won in the war.

The origin of the name of the island is obscure. Generally it is thought to be an early Celtic name which meant "mountainous or hilly land." Ptolemy was the first historian to write the name, which he spelled Monia. This was later changed by Irish writers to Mana, from which comes the modern form.

The Isle of Man itself resembles a transplanted bit of Scotland, with its rolling hills and moors, covered with heather and indented with pleasant glens. From its highest peak, 2034-foot Snaefell, five old kingdoms can be seen — Ireland, Scotland, Man, Wales and England. The people have always been fishermen and shepherds, but the largest business in recent times has been the tourist trade. The isle is rich in points of historic interest and is noted also for its fine views.

OLYMPIA, FIRST HOST TO PRESIDENT

Olympia, capital of Washington and first city to be host to the new President of the United States, is the southernmost port on Puget Sound, with a population of about 15,000, says the National Geographic Society. It is one of the oldest settlements in the state.

From the center of the city overlooking the Sound, the residential section spreads over the low hills surrounding the modern business section, marked by many spacious lawns and tree-shaded drives, leading to homes of conservative style.

Olympia occupies whath as been pronounced one of America's finest examples of natural landscape gardening, in a setting of snow-capped ranges, vast forests, wild rhododendrons, and mountain streams. Mount Rainier rises to the east; visible to the north are the lofty Olympics, whence the city takes its name.

The Governor's Mansion, temporary, "White House" for President Truman, is a park setting near the new State Capitol, on a rising knoll. The Capitol dome is modeled along lines of that in Washington, D. C.

Had New England Ancestry

The city developed at the head of navigation on the Sound, end of the Oregon Trail, at a time when waterways were the natural highways, preferred to overland routes. While the capital is dominated by government, excellent rail and highways have developed the port.

Olympia grew on land belonging to Edmund Sylvester, a Gloucester fisherman who held the property under the Oregon Provisional Government, the original grant dating from 1848. It was thus one of the early Northwest settlements, and has several "firsts" to its credit.

Olympia was the home of the first newspaper published in what is now Washington, founded in 1853. The state's first store opened there. The first mail route was established between Olympia and Portland in 1848. Olympia had the first Masonic Lodge, in whose quarters three of the early legislatures met. The first cherry tree was planted in first port of entry on Puget Sound. Near by was built the first saw-mill in this area. In the city, and cherry trees today adorn the capitol park.

With the establishment in 1851 of the customs house, where the first sessions of the district court were held, Olympia became the 1848 was established St. Joseph's Mission on the shores of the Sound, just north of the village. A site now the city's largest park, known as Priest's Point.

BORNEO

In peace years the big island—divided into British and Netherlands possessions — contributed about one-twelfth of the world's total output of crude rubber, says the National Geographic Society.

Largest Borneo production in the prewar year of 1938 was credited to the Netherlands area, which turned out about two-thirds. British North Borneo grew about one-eighth to one-seventh of the island's aggregate. Sarawak, British north coast protectorate, added about a fifth. Brunei, another north coast state under British protection, figured only with a small trickle of tonnage.

Large-scale cultivation in Borneo began in the early years of the present century, though experimental plantations had been made much earlier. Rubber grown from seeds of Brazilian trees proved superior to other varieties, and by 1910 — a year in which the American automobile industry made 187,000 cars and trucks — rubber culture was moving toward rank as a leading industry. Natives took to the new cultivation, but were inclined to abandon their tracts when prices fell. By 1922 more than nine-tenths of the yield was coming from plantations.

Borneo estates producing rubber were expanded in large measure during the first World War, and acreage was steadily added through the postwar years until 1929, a period of fluctuating prices. In order to stabilize prices and avoid unprofitable surpluses growers resorted in 1934 to export quotas determined and regulated by international agreements.

In the 10-year period 1932-1941 Borneo's rubber output had its ups and downs along with the rest of the world's producing areas, but the general trend was upward. In the period indicated the world's rubber yield, including Borneo's contribution, climbed from 720,000 tons to 1,500,000 tons. Top producers were the states of British Malaya and the islands of the Netherlands Indies, mainly Java and Sumatra. Together, these British and Netherlands sources managed to supply more than three-fourths of the world's annual demand for rubber. Most of the remaining need was satisfied by Ceylon, Indo-china, Ceylon, and Borneo. Brazil, once the world's largest source of crude rubber, declined in importance after the development of large-scale plantation culture in the East, and was producing less than one per cent of the world's total before the outbreak of war. Biggest buyer was the United States, usually in the market for about half the world's million-ton crops.

Present condition of the plantations in the war zone is a matter of guess. Unspoiled trees, according to some estimates, may range as high as eight out of ten. Trees are numerous, the Japs are too busy fighting to cut them down, and the trees are too green to burn, so runs the reasoning looking toward an early resumption of production.

SIMLA

At Simla in northern India, where various native factions discussed with British officials a greater share for Indians in the country's government, more than two-thirds of the city's regular population moves twice a year—and there are no moving vans.

On the semi-annual moving days thousands of natives crowd into Simla, for everything must be manhandled — wardrobes and personal effects of some 50,000 people, as well as government records, and much furniture. Before the war, only three high officials had motor cars. A few more belonging to military officers were added during the war period. Most traffic on Simla's steeply inclined streets is made up of four-manpower rickshas with two men pulling and two pushing.

The hill-top town of Simla's is India's summer capital, surrounded by barren mountain peaks, with the Himalayas gradually ranging to snow-capped heights, north and east, says the National Geographic Society. The city is more than 7,000 feet above sea level.

Hill Towns Escape Steaming Heat of Indian Plain

On the plain below, the summer temperatures at New Delhi, winter capital 175 miles to the south, rise humidly above 100 degrees Fahrenheit. The government is moved each summer to keep officials and others from getting that heat-inspired, mental inefficiency locally referred to as "Punjab head." On its forested elevation, Simla summer temperature seldom climbs above 75 degrees, with a 60 degree summer mean.

Simla's permanent or winter population numbers less than 20,000, including natives and Europeans; but with the arrival of the government personnel and others for the five or six summer months, this figure jumps to 70,000 residents, spread along the various levels of the city's crescent-shaped site.

Simla has changed little since Kipling wrote there, laying the scenes of "Plain Tales From The Hills," and other stories, in the region. The city has been described as a mixture of an Indian town, English village, Swiss hamlet, and Whitehall.

Social life there at India's most fashionable summer resort, normally centers in the Governor-General's Lodge, a gray stone Victorian building of cathedral proportions. Plays by the Amateur Dramatic Club, and fun nights at the little Gaiety Theatre, concerts and the gay balls, bring together the official and diplomatic representatives in long lines of rickshas. Time was when ladies vied to possess the smartest ricksha.

Like other summer resorts, Simla is a self sufficient colony that amuses itself in peacetime with horseback riding, hunting, polo, motion pictures, races, lawn tennis and bridge. There is no cricket in this English-dominated city; and the number of golfers is somewhat reduced by the twelve-mile distance to the golf course, and summer rains.

Prewar Simla's shops were the equal of the best in London, and are much the same in architecture and atmosphere. The natives trade at the bazaar, in the center of the native colony clinging to the hillside.

Now business dominates the days at Simla, war business; and the ld-time gaiety and social elegance has been thrust somewhat into the background, and men in uniform give a military atmosphere to the summer resort.

Kilbrith J. Barrows, who is teaching history and international relations at Yale University, is at the helm with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Barrows.

DEVONSHIRE (SOUTH HAMS)

Farmers living in the South Hams district of Devonshire, England, will remember the Yanks. A monument recently presented by representatives of the American Army and Navy will remind the 2000 inhabitants who gave up their fields for use in pre-invasion training that Americans are grateful for their sacrifices.

Lying south and east of the broad forest and wasteland of Dartmoor, this loosely-defined part of Devon is roughly bounded by the Plym and the Exe Rivers and the English Channel, says the National Geographic Society. Its historic associations reach across the seas and go back to the beginnings of the American nation. From Plymouth, market place and chief port of the area, the mayflower sailed in 1620, and from Plymouth in 1579 Francis Drake ventured on a voyage that brought him to the land that was to be the State of California. Landing at what is now Drake's Bay he claimed the territory for England's Queen Elizabeth and called it New Albion.

Progress Paced by Narrow Lanes

The South Hams part of Devon, third largest of England's counties and a little larger than the State of Delaware, is fertile, rolling with hills, patched with apple orchards, dotted with thatched cottages, and crisscrossed with walls of stone slabs as well as hedges of greenery. Several rivers rise in the central highlands and flow southward into the English Channel. The arms of their tilted estuaries reach into the fields and thrust glistening strips of wet sand into the green hedgerows. Rural lanes scaled to the width of a one-horse cart and at times choked with flocks of sheep run between banks covered with ferns and evergreen shrubs and bobbing flowers.

Chief towns in or edging the district are Plymouth, lying at the mouth of the Tamar River, with a prewar population of the city and borough estimated at 210,160; and Exeter, city and borough of about 69,000 people situated on the Exe River. Next door to Plymouth is Devonport, site of one of England's mightiest navy yards. For 18 centuries Exeter was the most important place in Devon. Its richly decorated cathedral was begun in 1111 by the Norman Bishop Warlewast.

Apples Greeted King's Soldiers

Eastward from Plymouth lie several towns of considerable historic and commercial significance. Totnes regards itself as the oldest municipality in England, and its mayor takes precedence over the Lord Mayor of London. Dittisham's citizens can point to the house where Sir Walter Raleigh may have smoked the first pipeful of tobacco smoked in England. Charles II once held court in Dartmouth, known for its Butter Walk lined with time-mellowed houses.

Brixham's dwellers welcomed William of Orange—their king to be—when he landed on English soil in 1688, and rolled gift apples down to the accompanying soldiers on the waterfront. Paignton, a bathing resort, was the home of a gigantic dish known as whitepot pudding, a concoction requiring "seven years making, seven years baking, and seven years eating." Torquay and Exmouth looked to bathers and vacationers as large sources of income.

PHUKET ISLAND

Phuket Island, where Allied troops landed, once held half of all the tin resources of Thailand (formerly Siam), says the National Geographic Society. Tin in river beds, in alluvial plains, and on the sea bottom near the shores gave the island its importance in the eyes of the world's industrials as and metal experts. Pre-war population of the island, mostly Thai landers, Malays and Chinese—was estimated at 33,000.

Phuket's prosperity was determined by the state of its tin industry. Until recent years foreigners dissected development of the deposits. France once had a monopoly by royal permit. After the 1890's output dropped sharply, but use of modern machinery brought profits from old workings. Most of the mining manpower came from China. Australian engineers were leaders in the development of offshore dredging operations. By 1931 more than half the ore yield was credited to dredges. Virtually all of the ore was shipped for smelting to the Malayan island of Penang, to the southeast, and to Singapore, Britain's once mighty naval base and trade center, at the tip of the Malay Peninsula.

Steppingstone to Mainland

The Island of Phuket lies in the Andaman Sea, with its northern end almost in contact with a wedge of land projecting southward from the mid section of the Malay Peninsula. It is situated at approximately the half-way point on the 1100 mile air route from Singapore to Rangoon, Burma's capital.

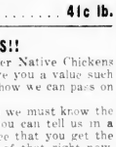

Possession of the island was long a matter of dispute between Thailand and Burma. Since 1910 it has been governed by Thailand. Two rulers have divided authority—the Rajah of Salang or Thalang in the north, and the Rajah of Phuket in the south. Old British Admiralty maps marked the island as "Junk Ceylon," a name evolved from the Malay spelling of Cape Salang—"Ujong Salang."

A HOSTESS GIFT WITH A HISTORY

From a [illegible] gave a Winchester hostess [illegible] gift with an interesting history.

The gift itself was [illegible] literally a plate used for [illegible] in the Buffalo Pottery. But the words on it had been making their way in people's minds and their lips for several decades, and [illegible] had gone a journey from Winchester and back again. When the son of Mrs. Myra Higgins were school boys at the Choate School, one wrote a blessing which was used there at table.

After her death, a close friend in Winchester, Mrs. A. B. Corthell, asked the exact phrasing of the grace, and received the wording. Mrs. Higgins had been for years the director of religious education in the Parish of the Epiphany, and the grace came to be a sort of intangible memorial to her, being always used at Tuesday luncheons of the parish women.

From that use it has spread to individual homes as young wives adopted it as the grace for their own family tables. A school girl, Miss Virginia Bown, a student at Buffalo Seminary, heard it at a Winchester table. "Lord, relieve the wants of others. Give us grateful hearts and add thy blessing."

When she went home, she had a plate made in her father's factory, with the grace on it, and sent it back as a gift to her hostesses, Mrs. Corthell and Mrs. John Phelps. So the words came home again to Winchester in a more permanent little memorial than the air which had kept them living through the years.

WOMEN'S ALLIANCE

The Women's Alliance of the Unitarian Church will meet on Tuesday, Jan. 8 at 2 o'clock.

At this meeting the Alliance will be hostess to the Women's Organizations of all the churches of the town. The speaker will be our fellow townsman, Dr. Robert B. Stewart, dean of Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, his subject being United States in World Affairs."

His message at this time is most pertinent.

Tea will be served in the ladies' parlor. A cordial invitation is extended to anyone who may be interested.

DEMONSTRATION READING LESSON

A demonstration reading lesson for grade 1 teachers only will be conducted by Miss Evans, grade 1 teacher of the Wyman School to be followed by a Professional Group meeting to discuss the reading in grades 1 in the Winchester Public Schools.

Therefore, there will not be school on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 9 in any of the first grades, excepting Miss Evans' class which will be dismissed immediately after the demonstration lesson at 1.45 o'clock.

SERIES OF FRIDAY PLAY REVIEWS

Sponsored Again by Tuesday Luncheon Group

As on the Five Days Jan. 18, the Tuesday Luncheon Group with Mrs. Alice H. Lee as chairman, will present a series of five play reviews.

Mrs. Richard Fogelson, chairman of the Tuesday Luncheon Group and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Jr. head of the committee arranging the series, congratulate themselves on being able to present again Mrs. Lee, whose series in the past three years has won her an enthusiastic audience of Winchester theatergoers, who like to keep in touch with what Broadway audiences are liking. The subjects of Mrs. Lees' reviews are all plays currently successful in the current season.

Four of the series will make bright spots on Friday mid-winter afternoons. They will be given in the Fishburn parish hall, Jan. 18 and 25 and Feb. 1 and 15. The fifth and review will be in the evening of March 22 at 8.15.

Assisting her in the sale of the season tickets Mrs. William H. Mitchell Jr. has the following committee: Mrs. John W. Page, Mrs. Robert Dickey, Mrs. Robert Thoreson, Mrs. Maxwell Fish, Mrs. Charles Nichols, Mrs. Paul Forester, Mrs. Thomas Salmon, Mrs. James B. Donaldson, Mrs. Allan Farquhar, Mrs. Knight Pryor, Mrs. Brander French, Mrs. Charles Hart, Mrs. Charles Wunsker, and Mrs. Ernest d'Eseaux.

Each ticket will be good for five admissions. The holder who cannot herself attend each review may bring a friend or friends on another date.

MARSHALL SYMMES TO TALK ON BEES

Former Selectman Marshall W. Symmes will be the speaker at the next meeting of the Winchester MSPCA, to be held Thursday afternoon, Jan. 10 at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. William N. Beggs, 17 Stowell road.

Mr. Symmes, a bee fancier and well versed in the peculiarities of these interesting and useful insects, will take as his subject, "My Temperamental Pets, the Bees."

Members of the MSPCA, may look forward to an interesting afternoon. Miss Leontine T. Pote, president, will preside.

BURNING CHRISTMAS TREES

Wednesday evening's alarm from Box 45 at 7:15 was for burning Christmas trees on a vacant lot off Sheridan Circle near the Immaculate Conception Church.

Children of the neighborhood had collected a number of old Christmas trees and decided they would make a good bon fire. They did!

The Legion held another of its popular Social Nights at the Post Headquarters on Washington street last evening. Games, cards and refreshments rounded out a pleasant program.

SHELL OFFICIAL COMES TO WINCHESTER

William Rozett, Jr., who recently was ordered to inactive duty after 3½ years active service in the U. S. Naval Reserve, has been appointed Technical Products Supervisor for the Shell Oil Company's New England Division, according to a statement made by H. J. Underwood, Shell's Division Manager.

Mr. Rozett joined the Shell organization in 1934, after graduation from Columbia University where he was awarded his M. S. He has had a wide experience in the technical products field with Shell, until commissioned as a Lieutenant (j. g.) in May 1942. At the time of his release he was a Lieutenant Commander.

Probably the most important and interesting of Mr. Rozett's naval assignments was that of Arresting Gear Officer on the flight deck of the aircraft carrier, U. S. S. Hornet. He was awarded the American Theatre Ribbon, the Pacific Theatre Ribbon with five battle stars, and the Philippine Campaign Ribbon with two battle stars. He participated in the naval attacks on Truk, Hollandia, Palau, Guam and the Philippines. While assigned as Fly Three Officer on the Hornet's flight deck he had a narrow escape when a bomb on a returning plane accidentally exploded, as he was struck by bomb fragments.

Mr. Rozett will make his headquarters at Shell's Division Office, 141 Stuart Street, Boston, and will reside at 11 Valley road in Winchester.

INJURED AS CAR HITS POLE

Aubrey H. Port of 54 Hemingway street sustained a bad cut on the head early New Year's morning when his Pontiac sedan struck a pole opposite the entrance to Contractor Thomas Quigley's driveway on Lake street.

According to the Police Mr. Port was driving east on Lake street and was going down the grade approaching the Quigley driveway when he saw a car parked on the right hand side of the road ahead of him. He applied his brake as he was about to pass the car and his own machine skidded, getting out of control and crossing the street to strike a pole on the left side of the roadway.

The car was damaged by the impact and Mr. Port cut about the head. He was able to call Police headquarters and report his injury. Officer James L. Noonan and John J. Dolan taking him to the office of Dr. P. J. McManus in a cruising car.

INCINERATOR CAUSED FIRE

A smouldering incinerator called the Fire Department to the home of Mr. Percival A. Smith at 21 Calumet road on the afternoon of the holiday, Box 58 coming in for the fire at 5 o'clock. The trouble was caused when an incinerator, in which there had been a fire out-of-doors, was taken into a garage with the fire still smouldering. When smoke was seen issuing from the garage the Fire Department was called and the trouble corrected without much of any damage.

Wednesday morning at 11.10 Box 58 came in again for a fire in the basement of the home of Park Commissioner William S. Packer on Yale street. This time trouble was caused by a wood-burning stove in the laundry, the smoke pipe becoming overheated and setting fire to a partition. Again the damage was slight.

Please notice the changes in the playing dates for the Granada Theatre, Malden, for the next few weeks. The exact playing dates will appear on the copy.

TILLAMOOK COUNTY FOREST FIRES

History was repeating itself along a 60 mile stretch of the Coast Range 50 miles west of Portland, Oregon, when the National Geographic Society, when fires ravaged over more than half of the 420 square mile area in northwestern Tillamook County known as the Tillamook Burn of 1933.

The 1945 fire, largest of many that have been plaguing the vast timberlands of the Pacific Northwest this summer, reached eastward over the crest of the Coast Range into a projecting corner of Washington County. There it destroyed thousands of acres of green timber, stopping just short of the logging communities of Glenwood and Cochran. At the same time, large green areas were burned in Tillamook along the Portland-Mohler rail line north of the 1933 burn.

The old Tillamook burn, described as Oregon's worst since coast forests burned around Coos Bay in 1868, has been a model of timber conservation interest ever since 1933, despite its devastation. Although 14 National Forest areas cover almost one-fourth of Oregon, none reaches into the big corner north and west of Portland, where timberland is largely state-owned and worked by private companies. Conservation as practiced on the old Tillamook burn has been a state-sponsored private enterprise.

New Highway Through Region

Immediately after the earlier fire, lumbermen set about salvaging timber from the burned region. They fought off insect enemies of fire-killed timber, opened railroads and motor truck roads, and succeeded in turning out more than one-fourth of the estimated pre-fire board-footage of the area. Balsam furs, mountain hemlock and spruce covering the area included stately giants that had stood for centuries.

More recently, work on the Tillamook burn had turned to large-scale planting of seedlings. A good start on this program was interrupted by the war, and plans for postwar development sponsored by the state called for the investment of millions of dollars in reforestation. The latest fire destroyed newly seeded sections.

The burned area includes the headwaters of Wilson River, which runs to Tillamook Bay. In 1941 the new Wilson River highway was completed, providing a direct route between Portland and Oregon's foremost cheese-making town of Tillamook. The river bears the name of the settler who in 1851 drove the first cows into this coast area which has become the heart of a thriving dairy industry.

The Tillamook burn falls within one of Oregon's regions of heaviest rainfall, averaging 70 to 100 inches a year. A few dry summer days, however, can create conditions for the rapid spread of fire, defying expert fire fighters and the most modern methods and equipment.

The burned area is only 50 miles southeast of Seaside, resort cottage town where a Jap submarine surfaced in mid-1942 to give the Pacific Coast its only direct shelling of the war.

OKHOTSK SEA

The Okhotsk Sea is the northernmost of the five large seas touching the eastern shores of Asia.

At all 1,660 miles from northeast to southwest and about 600 miles wide at its widest, the Okhotsk Sea is framed by Russian and Japanese territories. This land frame is composed of the Russian mainland on the west and north; Russia's spearlike Kamchatka Peninsula and the curving chain of Japan's Chishima (Kurile) Islands on the east; Japan's big island of Hokkaido on the south; and the fish-shaped Russo-Japanese island of Sakhalin on the southwest.

Ports Few and Far Apart

Despite its extent and its international nature the Okhotsk Sea offers few sizable ports. Port facilities have been developed at th twin towns of Magadan and Nagayevo, in the Soviet's Far Eastern Region, midway along the Sea's western coast. The port is open about four and a half months a year. About 270 air miles west is the port of Okhotsk, a radio, telegraph, and postal center long a funnel to the interior for tea from China.

Sakhalin has several modern ports. Okha and Moskalvo, oil outlets near the northern tip, are linked by rail. Aleksandrovsk, the island's Soviet capital on the west coast, is also a shipping center. Nikolaevsk, mainland port, lies on the Amur River, which has its outlet in the Tatarski Strait, between Sakhalin and the mainland. Kamchatka's most important ports are on the peninsula's Pacific coast.

Whalers and fishing craft ply Okhotsk waters in the open season. Thirty-four kinds of fish are commercially important.

Nature has scalloped the coast with numerous bays and gulfs, and broken the Sea's broad expanse with banks and shoal patches. Western shores, for the most part, are flanked with hills and mountains, and are lined with forests. The bordering shore of the Kamchatka Peninsula is a low, sandy shelf extending inland 20 miles or so to the central spine of mountains.

Windy, Icy and Foggy

The Okhotsk is a windy sea, though gales and storms are rare in summer. Spring and summer winds blow mainly from the southwest. September usually marks the transition to northern winds. Strong northwest winds rule from the autumn into the spring. Typhoons, though unusual, are most likely to occur in late summer and early autumn, and are most violent along the Kurile reaches.

A belt of ice more than 40 miles wide forms along the shores in winter, but the central part of the Sea remains unfrozen The ice begins to thaw in the spring, and gradually breaks away from the land, drifting out to sea in huge masses. By mid-summer the Eastern part of the sea is ice free. Surface water temperatures range from 50 to 54 degrees Fahrenheit in July and August. Sixty feet down, readings hover around the freezing level.

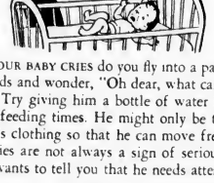

Thick fog, known in the region as "thus", is brought in by southerly winds, and may hang over the water for weeks at a time until broken up by rain. June and July are the top months for fogs; August is distinguished by the thickest. Clearest months are September and October. Near the land tidal currents are strongly evident.

RED CROSS HOME NURSING

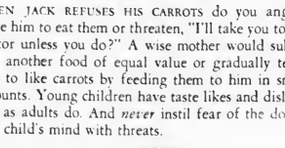

ARE YOU AS SMART AS YOUR BABY?

WHEN YOUR BABY CRIES do you fly into a panic, wring your hands and wonder, "Oh dear, what can the matter be?" Try giving him a bottle of water if he cries between feeding times. He might only be thirsty. Or loosen his clothing so that he can move freely. Your baby's cries are not always a sign of serious trouble. He just wants to tell you that he needs attention.

WHEN JACK REFUSES HIS CARROTS do you angrily force him to eat them or threaten, "I'll take you to the doctor unless you do?" A wise mother would substitute another food of equal value or gradually teach him to like carrots by feeding them to him in small amounts. Young children have taste likes and dislikes just as adults do. And never instil fear of the doctor in a child's mind with threats.

RED CROSS HOME NURSING teaches you how to care for yourself before the baby is born and how to care for him during the pre-school years. You also learn what precautions will prevent illness in your family and how to be of assistance to your doctor when illness does occur.

If there is no home nursing course offered at present in your community, ask your Red Cross chapter how you may help organize one.

VOLUNTEER AIRCRAFT SPOTTERS HELPED SPEED U. S. OFFENSIVE

America's thousands of volunteer aircraft spotters who performed countless hours of round-the-clock vigil in their home communities throughout most of the war have come in for additional praise from an official source with the recent release of new details in the story of wartime radar, notes a bulletin of the National Geographic Society.

According to the Government's Office of Scientific Development and the War and Navy Departments, the untiring and patriotic services of the spotters and the information center operators recruited for the Air Defense Wings by civilian defense organizations made it possible for the armed forces to concentrate radar production efforts on equipment for overseas attack instead of on equipment for defense spotting all over the United States.

America's offensive use of modern radar is, in turn, credited with having changed naval warfare more than any single development since the airplane.

Mr. Warren A. Maynard was recently loaned by New England Telephone and Telegraph for a few months to the telephone service in San Francisco and has now been there for several weeks. On Sunday, Mrs. Maynard left Winchester to join her husband in San Francisco, probably for the rest of his time of service there.

OLYMPIA, FIRST HOST TO PRESIDENT

Olympia, capital of Washington and first city to be host to the new President of the United States, is the southernmost port on Puget Sound, with a population of about 15,000, says the National Geographic Society. It is one of the oldest settlements in the state.

From the center of the city overlooking the Sound, the residential section spreads over the low hills surrounding the modern business section, marked by many spacious lawns and tree-shaded drives, leading to homes of conservative style.

Olympia occupies whath as been pronounced one of America's finest examples of natural landscape gardening, in a setting of snow-capped ranges, vast forests, tidal rhododendrons, and mountain streams. Mount Rainier rises to the east; visible to the north are the lofty Olympics, whence the city takes its name.

The Governor's Mansion, temporary, "White House" for President Truman, is a replica of one standing near the new State Capitol, on a rising knoll. The Capitol dome is modeled along lines of that in Washington, D. C. The new Governor's Mansion is of Georgian style, red brick with marble trimmings.

Had New England Ancestry

The site developed at the head of navigation on the Sound, end of the Oregon Trail, at a time when waterways were the natural highways, preferred to overland routes. While the capital is dominated by government, excellent rail and highways have developed the port.

Olympia grew on land belonging to Edmund Sylvester, a Gloucester fisherman who held the property under the Oregon Provisional Government, the original grant dating from 1848. It was thus one of the early Northwest settlements, and has several "firsts" to its credit.

Olympia was also the home of the first newspaper published in what is now Washington, founded in 1853. The state's first store opened there. The first mail route was established between Olympia and Portland in 1858. Olympia had the first Masonic Lodge, in whose minutes three of the early legislatures met. The first cherry tree was planted in the city, and cherry trees today adorn the capitol park.

With the establishment in 1851 of the customs house, where the first session of the district court were held, Olympia became the first port of entry on Puget Sound. Near by was built the first saw-mill in this area. In 1848 was established St. Joseph's Mission on the shores of the Sound, just north of the village, a site now the city's largest park, known as Priest's Point.

BORNEO

In peace years the big island—divided into British and Netherlands possessions — contributed about one-twelfth of the world's total output of crude rubber, says the National Geographic Society.

Largest Borneo production in the prewar year of 1938 was credited to the Netherlands area, which turned out about two-thirds. British North Borneo grew about one-eighth to one-seventh of the island's aggregate. Sarawak, British north coast protectorate, added about a fifth. Brunei, another north coast state under British protection, figured only with a small trickle of tonnage.

Large-scale cultivation in Borneo began in the early years of the present century, though experimental plantings had been made much earlier. Rubber grown from seeds of Brazilian trees proved superior to other varieties, and by 1910 — a year in which the American automobile industry made 187,000 cars and trucks — rubber culture was moving toward rank as a leading industry. Natives took to the new cultivation, but were inclined to abandon their tracts when prices fell. By 1922 more than nine-tenths of the yield was coming from plantations.

Borneo estates producing rubber were expanded in large measure during the first World War, and acreage was steadily added through the postwar years until 1929, a period of fluctuating prices. In order to stabilize prices and avoid unprofitable surpluses growers resorted in 1934 to export quotas determined and regulated by international agreements.

In the 10-year period 1932-1941 Borneo's rubber output had its ups and downs along with the rest of the world's producing areas, but the general trend was upward. In the period indicated the world's rubber yield, including Borneo's contribution, climbed from 720,000 tons to 1,500,000 tons. Top producers were the states of British Malaya and the islands of the Netherlands Indies, mainly Java and Sumatra. Together, these British and Netherlands sources managed to supply more than three-fourths of the world's annual demand for rubber. Most of the remaining need was satisfied by Thailand, Indochina, Ceylon, and Borneo. Brazil, once the world's largest source of crude rubber, declined in importance after the development of large-scale plantation culture in the East, and was producing less than one per cent of the world's total before the outbreak of war. Biggest buyer was the United States, usually in the market for about half the world's million-ton crops.

Present condition of the plantations in the war zone is a matter of guess. Unspoiled trees, according to some estimates, may range as high as eight out of ten. Trees are numerous, the Japs are too busy fighting to cut them down, and the trees are too green to burn, so runs the reasoning looking toward an early resumption of production.

WINCHESTER ART ASSOCIATION

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Heintzelman were guests of the Winchester Art Association on Wednesday evening at the opening of Mr. Heintzelman's exhibit in the Library Gallery.

Mr. G. Russell Mann, president of the Association, greeted the members with wishes for a better new year and asked Mr. Charles Watkins to present Mr. Heintzelman who is the Keeper of Prints at the Boston Public Library. Mr. Watkins mentioned Mr. Heintzelman's characteristics of modesty and generosity and spoke very highly of his work. The subject for the evening's talk was "Great Prints of the World."

Mr. Heintzelman clearly explained the processes by which etchings and drypoints are made, and compared the procedure of each and the appearance of the finished pictures. He then displayed many prints, showing several states of each etching to illustrate how the artist changed and improved his work after each state had been printed. He showed works of D. W. Cameron, Whistler, Rembrandt, Forian, Legros, Muirhead Bone, Lepere and McBey.

After the talk, punch and sand wiches were served. Mrs. W. Noel Middleton poured.

RED CROSS HOME NURSING

WHAT'S YOUR IQ ON SYMPTOMS?

SILLY SUSAN — When Johnny is tired and irritable, complains of a headache and sore throat, she tells him to run out and play with the other youngsters. "Fresh air will make you feel better." A few hours later Johnny is running a high temperature and his face is covered with angry red spots. Susan frantically telephones the doctor exclaiming helplessly that Johnny is dying of some strange disease

CAPABLE CATHY—She takes Billy's temperature and pulse, reporting his symptoms accurately to the doctor by telephone. She puts him to bed immediately in a room by himself, and feeds him only liquids until the doctor arrives. When the doctor says Billy may be coming down with measles, she knows her prompt action has made Billy's recovery quicker and protected other children in the community.

HELP YOUR DOCTOR — HOME NURSING SHOWS YOU HOW—You'll learn how to give simple treatments, how to feed a patient on a soft, liquid, or normal diet, and how to keep a patient comfortable in bed. All courses are taught by a professional nurse.

If there is no home nursing course offered at present in your community, ask your Red Cross chapter how you may help organize one.

RED CROSS HOME NURSING

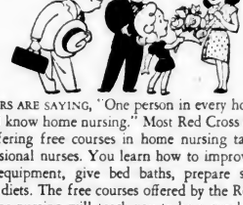

HOW HANDY ARE YOUR HANDS?

WHEN YOUR SICK CHILD is tired of lying on her back do you hoist her upright, dump a couple of pillows behind her back, and let her slouch in an uncomfortable position? Or do you skillfully make a sturdy backrest from a cardboard box and place the pillows against it so that she will be firmly supported to maintain good sitting posture?

WHEN THE DOCTOR ORDERS a steam inhalation to relieve the congestion from Sally's bad cold, do you look at him in wide-eyed wonderment and say, "What's that?" Or do you efficiently improvise a steam tent from an umbrella and give the treatment by making an inhalator from a teakettle and funnel?

DOCTORS ARE SAYING, "One person in every household should know home nursing." Most Red Cross chapters are offering free courses in home nursing taught by professional nurses. You learn how to improvise hospital equipment, give bed baths, prepare soft and liquid diets. The free courses offered by the Red Cross in home nursing will teach you to be a capable home assistant to your doctor. He'll appreciate your competence, and you'll earn grateful thanks from your family.

If there is no home nursing course offered at present in your community, ask your Red Cross chapter how you may help organize one.

SHELL OFFICIAL COMES TO WINCHESTER

William Rozett, Jr., who recently was ordered to inactive duty after 3½ years active service in the U. S. Naval Reserve, has been appointed Technical Products Supervisor for the Shell Oil Company's New England Division, according to a statement made by H. J. Underwood, Shell's Division Manager.

Mr. Rozett joined the Shell organization in 1934, after graduation from Columbia University where he was awarded his M. S. He has had a wide experience in the technical products field with Shell, until commissioned as a Lieutenant (j. g.) in May 1942. At the time of his release he was a Lieutenant Commander.

Probably the most important and interesting of Mr. Rozett's naval assignments was that of Arresting Gear Officer on the flight deck of the aircraft carrier, U. S. S. Hornet. He was awarded the American Theatre Ribbon, the Pacific Theatre Ribbon with five battle stars, and the Philippine Campaign Ribbon with two battle stars. He participated in the naval attacks on Truk, Hollandia, Palau, Guam and the Philippines. While assigned as Fly Three Officer on the Hornet's flight deck he had a narrow escape when a bomb on a returning plane accidentally exploded, ad he was struck by bomb fragments.

Mr. Rozett will make his headquarters at Shell's Division Office, 441 Stuart Street, Boston, and will reside at 11 Valley road in Winchester.

INJURED AS CAR HITS POLE

Aubrey H. Port of 54 Hemingway street sustained a bad cut on the head early New Year's morning when his Pontiac sedan struck a pole opposite the entrance to Contractor Thomas Quigley's driveway on Lake street.

According to the Police Mr. Port was driving east on Lake street and was going down the grade approaching the Quigley driveway when he saw a car parked on the right hand side of the road ahead of him. He applied his brake as he was about to pass the car and his own machine skidded, getting out of control and crossing the street to strike a pole on the left side of the roadway.

The car was damaged by the impact and Mr. Port cut about the head. He was able to call Police headquarters and report his injury, Officer James F. Noonan and John J. Dolan taking him to the office of Dr. P. J. McManus in a cruising car.

TILLAMOOK COUNTY FOREST FIRES

History was repeating itself along the crest of the Coast Range 50 miles west of Portland, Oregon, notes the National Geographic Society, when fires rampaged over more than half of the 420 square mile area in northeastern Tillamook County known as the Tillamook burn of 1933.

The 1945 fire, largest of many that have been plaguing the vast timberlands of the Pacific Northwest this summer, reached eastward over the crest of the Coast Range into a projecting corner of Washington County. There it destroyed thousands of acres of green timber, stopping just short of the logging communities of Gales wood and Cochran. At the same time, large green areas were burned in Tillamook along the Portland-Mobler rail line north of the 1933 burn.

The old Tillamook burn, described as Oregon's worst, since coast forest burned around Coos Bay in 1868, has been a model of timber conservation interest ever since 1933, despite its devastation. Although 11 National Forests cover almost one-fourth of Oregon, none reaches into the big corner north and west of Portland, where timberland is largely state-owned and worked by private companies. Conservation as practiced on the old Tillamook burn has been a state-sponsored private enterprise.

New Highway Through Region

Immediately after the early fire, lumbermen set about salvaging timber from the burned region. They fought off insect enemies of fire-killed timber, opened railroads and motor truck roads, and succeeded in turning out more than one-fourth of the estimated pre-fire board-footage of the area. Balsam furs, mountain hemlock and spruce covering the area included stately giants that had stood for centuries.

More recently, work on the Tillamook burn had turned to large-scale planting of seedlings. A good start on this program was interrupted by the war, and plans for postwar development sponsored by the state called for the investment of millions of dollars in reforestation. The latest fire destroyed newly seeded sections.

The burned area includes the headwaters of Wilson River, which runs to Tillamook Bay. In 1941 the new Wilson River highway was completed, providing a direct route between Portland and Oregon's foremost cheese-making town of Tillamook. The river bears the name of the settler who in 1851 drove the first cows into this coast area which has become the heart of a thriving dairy industry.

The Tillamook burn falls within one of Oregon's regions of heaviest rainfall, averaging 70 to 100 inches a year. A few dry summer days, however, can create conditions for the rapid spread of fire, defying expert fire fighters and the most modern methods and equipment.

The burned area is only 50 miles southeast of Seaside, resort cottage town where a Jap submarine surfaced in mid-1942 to give the Pacific Coast its only direct shelling of the war.

OKHOTSK SEA

The Okhotsk Sea is the northernmost of the five large seas washing the eastern shores of Asia.

About 1,600 miles from northeast to southwest and about 800 miles wide at its widest, the Okhotsk Sea is framed by Russian and Japanese territories. This land frame is composed of the Russian mainland on the west and north; Russia's spearlike Kamchatka Peninsula and the curving chain of Japan's Chishima (Kurile) Islands on the east; Japan's big island of Hokkaido on the south; and the fish-shaped Russo-Japanese island of Sakhalin on the southwest.

Ports Few and Far Apart

Despite its extent and its international nature the Okhotsk Sea offers few sizable ports. Port facilities have been developed at Nikolayevsk on the Siberian mainland and Nagayevo on the Soviet's Far Eastern Region, midway along the Sea's northern coast. The port is open about four and a half months a year. About 270 air miles west is the port of Okhotsk, radio, telegraph, and postal center long a funnel to the interior for tea from China.

Sakhalin has several modern ports. Okha and Moskalvo, all outlets near the northern tip, are linked by rail. Aleksandrovsk, the island's Soviet capital on the west coast, is also a shipping center. Nikolayevsk, mainland port, lies on the Amur River, which has its outlet in the Tatarski Strait, between Sakhalin and the mainland. Kamchatka's most important ports are on the peninsula's Pacific coast.

Whalers and fishing craft ply Okhotsk waters in the open season. Thirty-four kinds of fish are commercially important.

Nature has scalloped the coast with numerous bays and gulfs, and broken the Sea's broad expanse with banks and shoal patches. Western shores, for the most part, are flanked with hills and mountains, and are lined with forests. The bordering shore of the Kamchatka Peninsula is a low, sandy shelf extending inland 20 miles or so to the central spine of mountains.

Winds, Icy and Foggy

The Okhotsk is a windy sea, though gales and storms are rare in summer. Spring and summer winds blow mainly from the southwest. September usually marks the transition to northern winds. Strong northwest winds rule from the autumn into the spring. Typhoons, though unusual, are most likely to occur in late summer and early autumn, and are most violent along the Kurile reaches.

A belt of ice more than 40 miles wide forms along the shores in winter, but the central part of the Sea remains unfrozen. The ice begins to thaw in the spring, and gradually breaks away from the land, drifting out to sea in huge masses. By mid-summer the greater part of the sea is ice free. Surface water temperatures range from 30 to 54 degrees Fahrenheit in July and August. Sixty feet down readings hover around the freezing level.

THE 1946 CAMPAIGN

In less than two months the 1946 Red Cross campaign to raise funds for the continuance of its wonderful work during the coming year will be in full swing with the green light in ascendency.

Plans are being made for the prosecution of the drive in an open, efficient and expeditious manner and it is confidently expected that the loyal citizens of Winchester will continue, as in the past, to exceed the quota allotted the town as evidence of their interest and faith in this most important work which the Red Cross is carrying on in their behalf.

Vital information as to the continued need of Red Cross service will be presented and the public will be informed of the plans and methods of operation when available.

This is a project in which all are permitted to join and it is confidently expected that a hearty response in time, effort and means will make possible the continuance of a noble work, nobly done.

SCHOOL CREDIT

For Those in the Armed Services as Recommended by the Superintendent of Schools

The following recommendations, made by the Superintendent of Schools in March, 1945, and adopted by the School Committee at that time, concerning the granting of credit toward a diploma to those students who have not completed their high school course before entering the armed forces of the country, have been continued by a vote of the School Committee on Jan. 7, 1946:

1. Credit will be granted for a basic or recruit training as suggested in the pamphlet, "Planning Secondary School Credit in the Armed Forces," Page 8 (National Association of Secondary School Principals of the National Education Association, 1944). To be more specific, the amount of credit for such basic or recruit training will be two units or ten points.

2. Credit for all special training courses will be granted in accordance with the recommendations called "A Guide to the Evaluation of Civil Educational Experiences of the Armed Services" (American Council on Education).

All subjects studied while off duty, leading to some specific, bona fide objective, such as a high school diploma, will receive full credit, provided the applicant submits proof that he has passed examinations in such subjects by the U. S. Armed Forces Institute or an accredited college.

The requirement of successfully passing at least three years of English and of taking a course in American History will be faithfully adhered to.

3. When a member of the U. S. armed forces or one who has been honorably discharged, has fulfilled all requirements, a letter will be sent to him to that effect.

4. A Winchester High School diploma will be awarded at the next regular high school graduation in June following the date of fulfillment of all requirements.

The Committee also voted to amend their vote of Dec. 4, 1944, making it to read as follows: (1) any serving in good standing and who is within six weeks of being 18 when drafted into the armed services or inducted into the armed services as a volunteer, between the Christmas recess and the end of the school year, be granted his diploma in June at the time of his regular graduation.

SUPT. NORRIS ADDRESSED JOINT MEETING OF JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL AND HIGH SCHOOL TEACHERS

Speaking before an assembly of all teachers of Winchester Junior and Senior High Schools at the High School on Wednesday afternoon of this week, Superintendent Forbes H. Norris discussed the current problems of the secondary school. Declaring that the high school has become a school for all children, Mr. Norris urged the teachers to consider the needs of the individual as well as the demands of society in general for well rounded citizens.

Stressing the fact that the chief criticism of secondary school graduates usually is that they are not skilled in the fundamental subjects, such as spelling, reading, and arithmetic, Mr. Norris pointed out that secondary school teachers are thoroughly justified in taking whatever time is necessary to review these basic subjects and to consider that the [illegible] rests on the elementary school.

[illegible] secondary school program [illegible] considerably expanded [illegible] Supt. Norris pointed out that too little had been accomplished in that important field between the two wars, as evidenced by the number of people disqualified physically for military service. He also spoke in favor of increased opportunities for all girls to have at least one year of home economics before graduation and for all pupils to have what is popularly called consumer education.

In order to insure a pupil's taking advantage of what the school can offer, Mr. Norris suggested a complete review of the elective system and the projection of a curriculum which will be most suitable for meeting the needs of the student body, not accomplished by merely adding to the program, but by studying the school people and providing for their needs within a regular course of study.

Following Mr. Norris's address, teachers of both schools returned to meetings of their respective departments.

ROTARY NOTES

"Gus" Hakanson was the winner of the War Bond, and [illegible] accepting the bond he [illegible] ly of his 2 cent trip to Tennessee which was highlighted by a visit to the Rotary Club of Kingsport, Tenn.

Some clever "character" [illegible] with "Bill" Shaw at the piano provided us with a most entertaining period of song and the singing was fully attended meetings.

MR. WADSWORTH NOT TO RETURN TO BOARD

To the Honorable Board of Selectmen, Winchester, Mass.

Gentlemen:

Due to the fact that I was unable to complete the duties of the office of Selectman of the Town of Winchester after being commissioned an officer in the Naval Reserve, Jan. 1943, Mr. Elliott Cameron was appointed to fill the vacancy under the provision of Section 11 of the Temporary Laws Relating to the National Emergency, applicable in the Commonwealth. It is my understanding that the statute provides that such appointment shall continue in effect until I am able to return to my duties. Inasmuch as the time for which I was elected will expire in a few weeks as of the date of the 1946 municipal election, it would seem to me to be in the best interests of the Town for Mr. Cameron to continue to hold office for the short period remaining.

Returning to the country just prior to Christmas I was eligible for discharge the week following. There are many problems and duties to be faced in re-entering civilian life which make it impossible for me to familiarize myself with the detailed affairs of the Town which are so important at this period just prior to the annual Town Meeting. An immediate return to the duties of the office therefore seems inadvisable, and I sincerely hope that Mr. Cameron finishes out the last few weeks of the term.

I feel personally obligated to Elliott for taking over when I had to leave and for carrying on so admirably. I am certain that you and the people of the Town will understand my decision in this matter.

Respectfully yours,
Philip P. Wadsworth

WEEK-END AUTO ACCIDENTS

Although three automobile accidents were reported to the Police over the past week-end, in none of them were injuries reported. There was some damage to the cars involved, but as none of the collisions were serious the damage was not extensive.

The first of the three accidents took place Friday afternoon at 3:45 when a Chrysler sedan, owned by Ayers-William C. Jones, Inc., of 222 Sumner street, Boston, and driven by Joan D. Jordan of Gilmore avenue, Reading, was in collision on Washington street opposite St. Mary's Church with a Dodge sedan, owned by Anthony Derro of 431 Washington street and in charge of Theresa Derro of the same address. According to the Police the Chrysler was headed south and side-swiped the Dodge, which was parked at the side of the road facing south. Miss Jordan told the police that a bus headed north started up as she approached and an unidentified car passed it, forcing her machine into the Dodge.

While this accident was taking place another occurred on Main street at Madison avenue. This accident was reported to the Police by George T. Davidson of 19 Park avenue, who said his Chevrolet plumbing truck was being driven south on Main street by Harry G. Kempton of 40 Forest street. Kempton turned the truck at Madison avenue to head north on Main street and in doing so was in collision with a Buick coupe, owned by Walter K. Marooney of 433 Main street and being driven south on Main stree by J. H. Maroney of the same address.

The last of the three accidents took place after 8 o'clock Sunday evening when a Plymouth sedan, owned and being driven north on Main street by Michael L. Margery of 184 Main street, Wilmington, was in collision at a point about 300 feet north of the center with a Ford coupe, also headed north and owned and driven by George W. Gordon of 37 Sheridan circle.

WEEK-END FIRES

The Fire Department answered three alarms over the past week-end, the first Friday evening at 9.23. This was for a brush fire at the rear of the Wakefield estate on Forest street. At 5:25 a pile of hay was reported burning in a ditch on High street opposite the residence of Mr. Harry Locke.

Mr. Pant, a graduate student at Harvard will speak to the Metcalf Union at 6:30 p. m. on "Religious and Social Conditions in India." Mr. Pant is a native of India.

BIG STONE IN STREET

The Police were notified Sunday afternoon that a big boulder was menacing traffic on Ridge street opposite the residence of Mr. Willmer Smith.

Officer William Cassidy was sent to investigate, but upon seeing the boulder decided to do nothing more than call in to Headquarters for help and remain on duty until assistance arrived.

Officer Cassidy estimated that the stone went better than two tons, so the Police decided to toss it figuratively into the laps of the Highway Department. A crew from the town barn hent a chain around the big pebble and pulled it out of the middle of the road as a preliminary to hoisting it on a dray for removal.

The boulder had evidently been undermined by a washout and rolled down onto the road from an adjacent hillside. It is fortunate nothing happened to be passing when it rolled!

Winston of Jamaica Plain are vice-chairmen. Mr. Robert Rantoul of Cambridge is treasurer and Rev. Paul Harmon Chapman is secretary.

RHINE

A chief waterway of Europe since the earliest times, the Rhine occupies a basin so rich in minerals that it naturally became one of the world's leading industrial areas. Serving industries and their workers has been the principal role of the river in its modern period, says the National Geographic Society. Coal, iron ores, grains — all bulk commodities seeking cheap transportation made up four-fifths of the waterborne commerce in prewar years. This has been a Rhine trade in which both neighboring countries and distant nations snared.

Coal and lignite from German fields contributed most of the freight. Much of it was used in plants along the river, but some went to the Netherlands and to Belgium by canals. Some reached Italy and Switzerland, and France by canals or through transfer to railways.

German metal-working industries have had to look beyond domestic iron ores for their iron and steel. Top suppliers by the Rhine route have been Sweden, Spain, Algeria, and Tunisia.

Concentration and growth of the industrial population created a need to import cereals. These grains, for the most part, ordinarily come from Russia, Romania, Argentina, Canada and the United States. Cargoes moved through the Netherlands port of Rotterdam; and through the Belgian port of Antwerp, either directly by the river, by canalized connections, or by railway transshipment.

The two river-mouth ports put the Netherlands and Belgium in a special position as possessors of the keys to the entrances and exits of what is nominally a German waterway. Switzerland looks to the Rhine as a route to the sea, and a route to assure coal and iron and steel for its factories. Railways project Rhine water haulage to Italy, and carry coal and worked metals from transshipment centers.

Countries outside the immediate trading and transportation zone had their peacetime interests in the freedom of the Rhine. England long had steamer connections with Rhine ports, Russia and Romania were concerned as exporters of oil and grains. The United States was a regular seller of oil, grains, and cotton.

The Treaty of Paris in 1814 declared that the Rhine should be open to all nations. This declaration was confirmed more than a hundred years later by the peace agreement following the first World War. Peacetime traffic was regulated by a commission including members from countries outside the river's basin as well as those washed by its waters. Navigation was made virtually toll free in 1868 when Prussia succeeded in getting other German states to lift the long-standing charges.

The river rises as a two-headed stream in southern Switzerland, enters the Boden See (Lake Constance), and emerges to continue its winding 820-mile course to its multi-mouthed outlet in the North Sea. In its oceanward journey it picks up several important tributaries, such as the Lahn, the Neckar, the Main, and the Ruhr from the east, and the Mosel from the west.

In some stretches the river is an international boundary. It is a frontier between Switzerland and tiny Liechtenstein, between Switzerland and the old Austria, between Switzerland and Germany, and between France and Germany. Thru Germany the river flows in a general northwesterly direction, turning sharply west at the Netherlands line to enter the North Sea.

Lt. Kishler was last on duty on the USS. Cabana, a destroyer escort. He is married and graduated from Boston University just before entering the service.

SINGAPORE

The British warships that steamed into Singapore's harbor to take back the island city from its Japanese captors reclaimed territory that was in British hands for more than a century, says the National Geographic Society. The city fell to the Japanese by surrender, February 15, 1942.

Modern Singapore had grown from a trading settlement established in 1819 by an agent of the British East India Company. Five years later the concession granted by the Sultan of Johore and the local chief was expanded to give the British the right to occupy the entire island. When the British organized their Straits Settlements in 1826 as a colony, the city and island of Singapore were included and the city became the administrative center.

Trade The Master Key to Growth

The city of Singapore is situated at about the midway point of the southern coast of the Island of Singapore — a hill-studded, tree-grown, oval shaped land mass lying off the southern tip of the Malay Peninsula. About 26 miles long and 14 miles across at its widest, the island covers some 224 square miles. It is separated from the mainland by the Strait of Johore, about three-fourths of a mile wide. A causeway linking the island to the mainland normally carried both rail and vehicular traffic.

Trade has been the key to the fortunes of the city. It was developed as a free port, and its growth was quickened by the rapid development of the Malay States to the north. The position of the port on Britain's "life line" from the home isles through the Mediterranean via India, and on to Australia and New Zealand gave it naval as well as commercial importance. Lying at the funnel point of the Malacca Strait, its spacious harbor was in peacetime on the route of a great international east-west movement of merchandise and passengers. In recent normal years the port was served by 80 steamship lines, and cleared about 30,000 vessels annually. Retail and wholesale establishments were so numerous in Singapore that it was regarded as a city of shopkeepers.

East Meets West In Dress, Sports

Notable buildings included the residence of the governor, the administrative offices, the law courts, and Raffles College and Raffles Museum - named for the founder of the trading settlement. Religious edifices ranged from the Cathedral of St. Andrew, Roman Catholic churches, Chinese and Hindu temples, and Mohammedan mosques to small wayside shrines. Modern stores, banks, and office buildings fronted the harbor.

Few Westerners figured in the city's mewar population of 769,200-mostly Chinese, with Malays and East Indians well represented. Europeans accounted for a little less than 2 per cent. Singapore's mixed population staged special problems for the police and the law court's—secret-society feuds and Oriental gang wars. Ticket brokers did a thriving business in selling transportation to faithful Moslems bound for Mecca.

Residents for the most part readily took to Western ways. They played tennis, cricket, and basketball, rode bicycles, drove motor cars, listened to radio broadcasts, attended movies and welcomed new dance steps. Young women looked to London and New York for their hair styles and the cut of their dresses. One Singapore speciality was the open-air barber shop.

Tigers in Suburbs, Snakes in Drains

Pleasure seekers could turn to a variety of entertainment. Some Chinese theaters offered single plays that ran for weeks as dramatic serial stories. Singapore was credited with the gaudiest dance halls in the Orient. Filipino orchestras played in the hotels. The city had its Coney Island in a playground known as Happy World. Horse racing, polo, and golf were other regular attractions, and there were swimming and yachting clubs.

Labor was usually equal to any need, was skillful and cheap. The city's workers manufactured furniture, boxes, shoes, pottery, and rubber products. They turned out candy, soap, soft drinks, biscuits, and cigarettes. Large plants extracted oil from coconut meats, and canned pineapples.

Wild animals once roamed the island, and for many years captured beasts were shipped from Singapore to zoos and circuses. Numerous tigers were once a menace to suburban settlements. Pythons lived in the drains, feeding on rats and frogs.

Guns Ruled Sea, Japs Came By Land

City and island were fortified by the British to make the defenses ranks as "the Gibraltar of the East." Heavy guns were mounted along the coast and on near-by islands. A peacetime garrison of 7,000 men was expanded to meet war threats. On the northeastern rim of the island the great naval base of Seletar was developed. It included a large tidal basin, more than a mile of wharf space, ammunition storage, railway sidings, oil tanks, ship repair and outfitting facilities, and its own power plant and hospital.

When the Japanes first attacked the city in December, 1941, they struck through the air, and continued their raids for more than a month. By February, 1942, Japanese troops moving southward down the Malay Peninsula from neighboring Thailand were in sufficient force to set up bridgeheads on the northern shore of the island. From these positions they converged on Singapore, cutting off the naval base and water reservoirs.

BELMONT WON FROM WINCHESTER

Winchester High dropped its opening game of the Middlesex League season last Friday evening to Belmont at Belmont, 38-27.

The game was a good one to watch and the locals, much sharper than in recent years when they could not practice during Christmas vacation. They led Belmont at the quarter, 13-9, and had a single point advantage at the half, 19-18.

Belmont went out in front in the third quarter, leading 28-25, but Winchester was still very much in the ball game until "Rog" Latham, towering center, who had been playng a whale of a game sustained a deep cut over his eye.

The "Spider" bled like a stuck pig and it took Coach Knowlton and Trainer Lou Goddu several misutes to stop the flow of blood and patch him up so that he could continue.

Somehow Winchester didn't seem to click after Latham's injury, and during the entire last quarter the locals scored only two points to match Belmont's 10.

Grant and Fahey, the former a very speedy forward, racked up 26 points for Belmont, while Winchester had no one except Latham able to get into double scoring figures. Capt. Pat Patterson had an off night, scoring only two floor goals, very low for him. Johnny West, big back, had practiced only a day after an attack of Grippe and was able to play only a couple of minutes, which didn't help the local cause any.

Winchester won the second team game, 24-16, with Switzer leading both teams in scoring.

KENWIN CLUB NEWS

Mrs. Chester F. Dyson of Lebanon street will entertain the Kenwin Club at her home on Tuesday evening, Jan. 15.

Co-hostesses will be Mrs. Miriam Nanry, Mrs. Christine Thmpson and Mrs. Isabelle Thomas.

"Lou" Goddu, high school trainer, did all right in the ice fishing last week-end, coming back from Winnings with three fine pickerel. His brother, Warren, also got three pickerel, but whether they were fine or not, we wouldn't know. Coach Henry Knowlton got three perch, which may or may not be considered a good catch. Your liking for perch would tip the balance either way in this instance.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Be sure to save your old newspapers! The Winchester Girl Scout Council, at its monthly meeting last Wednesday, learned that, though town paper salvage has been discontinued, the shortage of paper is still acute and the Girl Scouts of Winchester plan to make use of this fact in raising money for flags for their troops.

"The Trefoil Trails", as the rally to be held in Boston May 4 is called will bring Scouts from all over the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to participate in the first statewide gathering of this organization in several years. The Winchester scouts want their troops to have proper equipment to make an impressive appearance and consider flags among the most important items. Troop 3 is already the proud possessor of a flag, given to them by the D. A. R., but is the only one so fortunate.

Though Mrs. Barbara Metcalf, our new executive secretary, parttime, is now in Northampton taking an intensive training course known as "Professional Orientation" the office will still be open, manned by volunteers from the Council, from 10 to 11:30 a. m., 1:30 to 4:30 p. m., Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Recent reports of activities during the past month include two Christmas parties:

On Wednesday, Dec. 19 Troop 5 had a tea for their mothers. It started at 1 and no 1 of the girls tried to get there (Mrs. Davis') early so that the sandwiches and things could be arranged. Joan Philips, Beverly Browne, Carolyn Stone, Sandra Davis, Brenda Bowe, Nan Cole, and Florence Herman brought sandwiches, Diana Rogers, Mary Jane Davis, Faith Connolly, Anne Hennessy, Jacheline Sturtevant, Althea Hersey and Laura Snow made cookies.

Mary Jane Davis received the mothers at the door, then they were taken upstairs by Beverly Browne and Brenda Bowe. Then they were taken into the living room and introduced by Carolyn Stone, Althea Hersey, Florence Herman and Sandra Davis.

Out in the kitchen Sandra Davis took the dues. Then we went into the living room and the hostess, Cynthia Pfennig, introduced all the girls to the mothers. Sandra Davis then read the report of what money we had spent and what we had left.

Then the Scribe read her report. Four girls received their Girl Scout pins and we said the Laws and Promise.

Each girl took her mother and escorted her into the other room where the sandwiches, cookies and tea were to be served. Sandra Davis, Nan Cole and Cynthia Pfennig arranged the table and dining room the day before. Joan Philips and Laura Snow passed the sugar and cream. Janice Collins poured the tea, while two other girls passed it out to the mothers.

Every mother also complimented the nice job we had done.

Tuesday, Dec. 18, Troop 2 had a Christmas party for mothers. It was held at the Wyman School. All the mothers of the Scout troop were invited. We formed our horseshoe and we had our first color guard while the pins were presented to the following girls: Barbara Hammet, Frances Kneeland, Sandra Thomason, Geraldine Brown and Deborah Fish.

The heads of the committees were Lynn Reed, Nancy McIlroy and Margery Dexter.

Lynn Reed read the first piece about the history of Christmas. Margery Dexter the second and Nancy McIlroy the third.

Troop 9 has been working on two badges, the needlecraft and the Winter Sports Badge. We have had a skating party up at Long Pond and have had a hike and a bicycle trip to go toward our winter sports badge. We also had a very nice Christmas party at which we played games, exchanged gifts and had refreshments.

RETURNED TO HOLDERNESS SCHOOL

Carl Pihl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall R. Pihl of the Parkway returned to the Holderness School in Plymouth, N. H. this week, after having divided his holidays between his parents in Winchester and his aunt and uncle, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Georges F. Doriot in Washington.

During his stay in Washington he was fortunate to be able to sit in on some testimonies during the Pearl Harbor investigation at the Supreme Judicial Court. Just before leaving Holderness for the holidays he was awarded his "H" and gold football, having made end on the varsity football team. This was a tribute to his speed and coordination, since his 140 pounds make him the lightest weight on the team. He also received the distinction of making the honor roll during the last marking period.

FELLSLAND COUNCIL, B. S. A. OBSERVES 21ST ANNIVERSARY

The local Boy Scouts joired with the Boy Scouts of adjoining communities in celebrating the 21 Anniversary of the Fellsland Council, B. S. A., last night in the banquet hall of the Stoneham Town Hall.

Dr. James E. West, Chief Scout of the B. S. A., came on from New York as the special speaker, and gave a very challenging address to the overflowing crowd.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of the Silver Beaver Award that was made to Mr. Lloyd Miller, now of Somerville, but for many years a resident of Medford and Stoneham. Mr. Miller has served the Fellsland Council ever since its inception in 1924, and that previous to that had served in Scouting under the old Boston Council. Mr. Miller has served for 20 years as the Secretary of the Executive Board. The highest honor award was given to Mr. Miller based on the records showing that he had given a tremendous number of years to many outside organizations dealing with the youth of the local communities. He also has given unstintingly of his time to many church organizations.

Special awards for 5, 10, 15 and 20 years service were presented to the following: Alfred Sorbello, Robert Miller and Arthur Butler all of Medford for 5 years, Robert Meyers, Emmons Douglass, Walter Currant, Edward Woodbridge all of Medford, and Winston Newman of Stoneham and John Caster of Winchester for ten years. Josephia Mobilia, George Thompson, Frank Bonitz and Bernard Cook all of Medford for 15 years, and Lyle Thorpe of Medford for 20 years.

Bill Clapp enlivened the meeting with his accordian music and community singing which was appreciated by the entire audience.

The election of officers resulted in the following slate (enclosed is list of officers for the year 1946).

At the conclusion of Dr. West's address Mr. Millard Taylor, toastmaster for the evening, presented Dr. West with a replica of the capstan of the U. S. S. Constitution (Old Ironsides). This replica was made from wood that came from the keel of the Constitution and was hand carved by Mr. William Bates of Stoneham, and included a bronze plate stating the fact that the wood for this model came from the keel of the U. S. S. Constitution.

The reports of the various officers of the Council for 1945 showed a remarkable growth in spite of the fact that a tremendous loss of manpower was incurred due to the world war situation. Reports indicated very definitely that Scouting will have a banner year in 1946.

WINCHESTER LOST AT LEXINGTON

Winchester High lost its second game in the Middlesex League series, Tuesday afternoon, being outclassed by Lexington at Lexington, 45-25. The local seconds made a game out of the preliminary contest, losing 27-24.

Winchester was never within striking distance in the varsity contest, the Minuteboys leading 17-5 at the qaurter and 28-15 at the half. The score going into the final period was 36-21.

Lexington has a good club, having four of its five Tech tournament team back this year. The game wasn't as one-sided as the score would indicate, the locals having plenty of shots but being unable to sink them.

Capt. Pat Patterson was Winchester's high scorer, but three Lexington boys exceeded the 10 points he racked up. The summary.

A committee has been organized, we read, for the relief of General Motors strikers. Its head, Leon Henderson, probably will be offered an important government post on shortly. We have not yet learned who is heading the Winchester committee. It would appear that the Social Security is inadequate. No wonder President Truman wants unemployment benefits increased.

"Strike and you get it" was the call of a month written, her weeks and weeks ago. Up to this time we have seen no reason to change or help the title or the thought. We have not been able to see the connection nor the need of those at "them" of labor, government and management to the over-sea yelp expressions to pay them instructions in labor management. However, the result are apparently showing up in the reported "protests" being made by our troops. Looking at the home front patt on, even without any instructions, they know what to do. And can you blame them? Why wouldn't they want to come home when they see members of the families of our great Washington rulers, baseball players, football players and Hollywood stars back here again?

Announcement of the first candidate to take out papers for election to town office in March reminds us that town meeting is near enough at hand for those who have community matters in mind to be getting article in the warrant which closes 28 days before the meeting. We suppose that those who favor Manchester Field as the site for whatever athletic plant the town is to provide for its high school teams are doing something about buying an article to this end included so that this matter can be discussed. The matter of an enclosed athletic field with seats and team accommodations seems sure to be brought up, and those favoring Manchester Field and the site ought to make sure that opportunity for its consideration is afforded. Otherwise some technicality may sidetrack this best of all available sites. If, as the claim is made, the town does not want Manchester Field, and Manchester Field only, then let the town say so through the proper channels. A few officials, not especially interested in athletics, or in fact well acquainted with them, ought not to decide this matter according to their personal preference.

Judging from general comment, a good many read Mr. George M. Bryne's letter about the Shore Road Athletic Field in last week's issue of the Star. Those interested in a suitable athletic plant for Winchester High School teams, and especially those, who, officially, are attempting to choose a site for such a plant, should by all means read it. Mr. Bryne is no layman when it comes to such matters, as a contractor he have given him a very practical knowledge of what you may expect from certain types of soil while his intimate acquaintance with marine contracting has given him a first hand knowledge of much possessed by many outside his field. When Mr. Bryne gives it as his opinion that Shore Road Field is not a good location for an athletic plant because of conditions which he knows from years of experience it would seem that the average layman in such matters could do a lot worse than abide by his judgment. His opinion confirms that previously expressed by Prof. Karl Terzaghi, an acknowledged soil expert. The average responsible man ought to be satisfied to accept their judgment. The M. D. C. borings are said to show 85 feet of mud at the deepest point under the field. That's quite a lot of mud. It would cover , for example, by five feet that new flagpole on the Common!

A GREAT IDEA

The latest news concerning the much needed new High School is of great interest. It formulates a plan to block off Main street and build an addition between the present High School and the present Junior High School. There you are! Think that over.

CONFIDENCE

The word is Confidence. From one end of the land to the other it echoes back and forth, embracing every Democratic American and all others. From the halls of our Rulers to the humblest citizen, confidence is the slogan. We all have it. Secretary Byrnes flies quickly to London full of confidence. The matters of State stop down, but he has the utmost confidence. Our leader in Washington is filled with confidence. The great Union leaders are just oozing with it. Kaiser and Fraiser, who can set their own price on automobiles, while other builders are held by ceilings, have the greatest confidence. The mutinous GI's have confidence something will be done. Now that Mrs. Roosevelt is a member, the great committee has the utmost confidence. There is so much confidence that there is nothing much else left. Even you and I have it. We can confidently look forward to continued milking by politicians and unions. We can confidently anticipate increased prices in everything and continued shortages in what is left. We can confidently continue to collect each others taxes, pay about everything we can earn, and subject ourselves to taxes galore. We can confidently go out of business with the full confidence that more favored competitors and those with greater confidence will take over. Confidence is the word. Let it ring out from one end of the land to the far corners of the earth. There is nothing left except social security and our taxes.

CHECKED METROPOLITAN BORINGS

Mr. Lybeck Tells of School Committee Investigation

To the Editor of the Star:

We read with interest the letter in last week's Star relative to Shore Road Field. Mr. Bryne's opinion cannot be disputed or passed over lightly. He is one of our most eminent citizens but more important, he has years of experience as an engineer and contractor.

Winchester is fortunate in having such men as Mr. Bryne and Professor Terzaghi, not to forget our efficient town engineer, Mr. Parker Holbrook. It is equally unfortunate that too many times, the unbiased technical advice of experts is grossly disregarded by those who think they know better.

Two years ago at the direction of the then committee I joined the Shore Road Field with Mr. Bryne and the late Secretary, Mr. Dayton Harvey, and found that the soil was of a very poor quality. It underlies a large area of the field and is numbered that the school committee was not authorized to go ahead with the construction of the field itself was concerned.

Mr. Bryne did suggest that we avail ourselves of the Metropolitan District Commission's borings and I, myself, checked with Mr. Parker Holbrook and learned that the present grade of Shore Road Field was arbitrarily established by the Park Commission substantially below his recommendation. The poor drainage which in part resulted from this action, led later to the suggestion that the dam be lowered. One mistake leads many times to another.

To further substantiate the facts, the school committee asked Professor Terzaghi to investigate. The result of his study, already published in the Star, also indicates the hopelessness of improvement of the conditions existing at Shore Road Field. In the light of all this evidence the school committee justly did abandon the field.

We now have an unofficial committee studying the stadium problem. We hope that their deliberations will not take too long. Not that we suggest haste to make waste, but we need the facilities as soon as practicable. To get action we need the support of the town meeting in March. Let's not forget that the Town Warrant closes in three weeks on Jan. 28, 1946. An article of some sort should appear in this warrant to permit of a free discussion of the matter and action of the town meeting so decides.

To the proponents of Gun Field as a suitable stadium location may it be pointed out that the taking of this field would rob the children of Precincts 3 and 4 of their only playground. The use of Emerald Field would similarly rob the children of Precincts 1 and 2. Manchester Field is the logical spot despite the flimsy arguments to the contrary.

Very truly yours,
Robert F. Lybeck

EAST SIDE WEST SIDE

Kassel, Germany
December 15, 1945

To the Editor of the Star:

Yesterday the "Winchester Star" of Friday, November 30, arrived and I was indeed, shocked to learn that some of the "Best People of Winchester" have decided that the best possible solution to the grade crossing problem is to move the tracks of the Boston and Maine Railroad to a height of at least eighteen feet above our heads and by doing so effect a wall through the center of town comparable to the Great Wall of China.

Do this group of "Good Winchesterites" realize what they are doing? They are bringing about the very thing that we have been fighting to eliminate for the past —Lord knows how many years.

We not-so-good people have been trying to do away with "East Side West Side" ever since I can remember.

Now someone has slid a plan beneath the noses of "The Best People" for erecting an impregnable barrier through the center of town and raising the cinder, belching monster up where it can be seen by all and where it can lay its blanket of soot and ash over our beautiful town.

When a train passes in the future we will have to stop, adjust our dust masks and raise our asbestos umbrellas above our heads to ward off the rain of sparks and cinders that drop from its firebox.

Why didn't they ask some of the not-so-good people of Winchester.

Sincerely
Samuel S. Reynolds, Jr.
9th Ord. MMCo.

P. S: I wish that I were home now so I could wait with the rest of the not-so-good Winchesterites while the longest, slowest freight that ever passed through Winchester made its way across the center as it was the last time I saw it.

NATION IN STATE OF POLITICAL CHAOS

January 7, 1946

To the Editor of the Star:

The nation is in a state of political chaos, the inevitable result of years of administrative incompetence, lack of statesmanship and the resurrection of visionary theories of dead and discredited methods of government.

The time has come to start a crusade to restore Americanism to Americans, to free the people from the tyranny of despots made by the New Deal's creation of a favored class, to restore the principles upon which this government was founded and to maintain the basic rights of democracy.

Congress by enacting the Wagner act, made lawlessness legal for its organized henchmen, created its own master in the person of James C. Petrillo, the American Mussolini, who has violated with impunity the laws applicable to all but his union, defied the President, Congress and the courts of the land because the new legislation made his acts legal. There should be no favored class. All should be amenable to the same laws with the same privileges, sacred rights and protection.

Picketing, another legalized tyranny, should be prohibited by law. There is no such thing as peaceful picketing, it is intimidation and blackmail and often times wanton defiance of the rights of others. Anarchy ensues if democracy exists when men are prevented from entering their offices and places of business by hoodlums called pickets; there is no freedom or justice where men have to pay for jobs or are compelled to join a union in order to work at a chosen trade.

As a result of federal extravagance the nation started the World War II with a peace time debt of $50 billion. In 1919 after the first world war, the national debt was $25 billion, just one half. The Roosevelt-Truman debt which was twice that of the sum total created by all the presidents of the United States from Washington up to his time. In 1945 the debt has risen to $262 billion, calling for an annual interest charge that is around five times the total federal debt in the year 1913 when it was $1, 028, 600,000. Taxes went up $7 billion in 1941 and kept increasing until 1944 when they went up $44 billion. The federal debt now is close to $10,000 for every family in the United States.

Edson B. Smith of the Boston Herald, one of the soundest financial writers, says in the Investors Column of December 28, "There is nothing to indicate that official Washington has a clear understanding of the basic difficulties of the economic situation, much less that it has any idea of what should be done about correcting them.

The attributes that make an individual strong, solvent and honest would, if applied to, make a nation possessed of the same qualities. There is no easy way or short cut to thrift and prosperity. Sound security cannot be built on borrowed money or by spending more than one's income, honest bank work is an old story.

The fanciful theories of national administration and finance foist d upon the people as panaceas for lagging prosperity and unemployment failed because they were not sound. Wallace's demands to spend and keep spending to restore good times didn't succeed nor did the theory of scarcity to promote prosperity by destroying corn, wheat, hogs and cotton by paying the farmers liberally for doing it. Work are better. Lowering taxes before the budget was balanced necessitating more borrowing to pay the defilit laused by the cut, was just a sop to the masses. Pyramiding borrowing, borrowing to pay for borrowing, round and round, creates a vicious cycle that leads eventually to disaster and dictatorship of the Mussolini, Hitler type. The sands of common sense and hard headed facts must be spread thick to stop the downward course of the New Deal toboggan.

While we were still at war certain wise and thoughtful men stated that our greatest danger was at home rather than on the battle field. Since the war sinister forces have infiltrated the ranks of organized labor just as enemy soldiers infiltrated the outposts of our armies to disorganize and kill. Our army fought to save democracy only to come home and find an enemy fighting to destroy it. Organized labor has been misled and cheated in this country just as it was in Italy, France and Germany. Industry, capital of hard work and production to the utmost limit of our enormous capacity alone can prevent the threatened inflation and a depression surpassing anything this country has ever known.

Just suppose organized labor had greeted our returning soldiers with this slogan, "Honor be to you. You have given all you had. We who have lived in comfort and safety will now give to you for you what you fought to safe for us. We ask no increase in wages but will give 10 per cent of our pay to match you to tide over the impending doom." If this were done do you know what would happen? If all strikes were called off tomorrow do you know what the result would be? There would be a shout of rejoicing from coast to coast, a hallelujah chorus that would shake the welkin ring. Thankfulness and good feeling would fill the hearts of all like the rapture of a high resolve. Production would start with a song, production in a magnitude never equaled before in all the world because we have the capacity for it. Everybody would be supplied with all he wants of everything at prices he could afford to pay. In five years organized labor would be better off, better housed and fed and clothed, more contented and happier than they would be if their demands for increased pay were granted in full. Wages are costs. Increased pay means increased costs of the goods produced. A few years ago when the steel workers got a raise the price of automobiles was immediately increased from $25 to $100 per car. When the coal miners' pay was increased last year the price of coal went up a dollar a ton. Prices will not stay down if costs go up. An increase of wages over and above the present scale will not benefit the worker in the long run.

In four years following 1916 the average hourly earnings went up nearly 100 per cent to reach a peak. A severe depression started in 1920. Beginning in 1923 wages went steadily up until 1929 and in that year the most severe and prolonged depression of modern times began. From 1933 to 1937 wage rates advanced 10 per cent to an all time high and late that same year business activity took a violent drop. The three most serious depressions in the last quarter century came simultaneously with hourly wage peaks which shows that high wages do not prevent them.

There should be no ill feeling between employer and employee. At the present time organized labor is taking a course that will eventually lead to its destruction. This would not have happened if years ago capital had been fair to labor. It missed a golden opportunity to cooperate in a just and friendly way, to lay the foundation of sound and lasting industrial peace and friendship. Capital was unwise and wrong then. Organized labor is wrong now.

Very respectfully yours,
Daniel C. Dennett, M. D.

CONCERN OVER NATIONAL TREND

To the Editor of the Star:

I am taking the liberty of sending you a speech left recently by my two sons. I am very sorry not to publish along with your own editorial comment. I would prefer for personal reasons not to have my name appended but I believe that to your better judgment it is entirely your wish.

I submit this after careful thought for the following reasons:

1. I find a growing concern among my acquaintances in town with the trend of national affairs. If present policies continue we will soon be without liberty and without personal resources. We'll be run by labor bosses and bureaucrats and half the population will be living on the producers. And I don't want to see that.

2. Winchester is a better than average town and is so regarded beyond town limits. We might even start a movement here in our town that could have national ramifications because the feeling is wide spread among decent folk that "something should be done."

Your Winchester Star is a good paper but it could be much more influential if used as a forum for public discussion. Why not your paper might grow a Town Forum that would crystalize sentiment in behalf of people like the majority of our fellow town-men and finally get something concrete done.

I have no personal ambition in it. I don't want any job. I have'nt thought out any detailed plan but there are brains enough in our town equal to the best and if we get them aroused and working there is bound to be a mighty force for constructive good.

What about giving it a try? You are the Town Editor, in a way a Town Smoke-man, that's why I address this to you.

I'd be glad to talk it over in person if you cannot yet get the dream I vision. May I hear from you?

President Truman (for whom I did not vote) recently asked us all to get in touch with our Representatives while they were "home."

Well just prior to that and for reasons of my own I tried to get in touch with incumbent who represents Winchester, one Edith Nourse Rogers (for whom I did vote). I had some thoughts, on National matters which I think should be the great concern of all of us; like National thrift, and the right of a man to work even if some of his fellow-employees want to strike.

Any employer is scorned as being against the public interest if he enforces a lockout against his employees. Yet only recently a union gang on strike against an oil company located in Quincy came up to Chelsea and by threats prevented men working therefrom making fuel oil deliveries to Winchester and other towns, even though there was no dispute in Chelsea plants. Isn't that a lockout?

That's one of the kinds of things I wanted to discuss with the Representative.

A while back I wrote to our (?) Representative in Congress to ask how she would vote on a specific measure then pending. Not a threatening letter, you understand; just a courteous inquiry. The first reply told nothing. It was a form letter and I could see was a blank. Then I got sort of insistent and that brought the reply that the Representative was "for all progressive legislation." What did that mean?

I wanted to know how to get an answer from the Representative (?) that meant anything at all.

So as the Representatives are now reported to be at "home" I telephoned to make an appointment at her office in Lowell. Her agent said to come up the next day. Remember how the roads were on Saturday, Dec. 29? Well, I mushed up there in the morning and when I got there the Representative (?) wasn't in her office or going to be.

So I asked for a definite appointment at any time to suit the Representative. My address and telephone number were taken and I would get "a call and an appointment." Did I? Not up to today, a similar experience.

Once again it is my pleasure to send my check for another year's subscription.

We think your editorial page has been very interesting this past year especially during the feud between "Oop Doc Hoss Sense" and E. C. Sanders—also "Bluebird." Of course our sentiments don't count for much now but we have been and will continue to cheer for "Bluebird" and the "Doc."

Sincerely hope this coming year we will read that the High School boys are going to have a good stadium with shower and dressing facilities. I wish you could see the George Washington High School where my son attends. In fact as soon as I can I will send you some snaps showing a beautiful building and stadium right on the school grounds.

It seems that you are in for another hard winter back home from what we read, while here we are having plenty of rain. It usually starts with a shower or two in the first part of November and during Christmas week rains in earnest. Well since then we have 16.22 inches where our seasonal normal should be 8.14. Our annual normal is about 22.02 so you see we keep ahead of tradition.

We did have a beautiful day for the East-West game and my son and I sat on the 50 yard line rooting for East but the best we could do a- you know was tie. In the third quarter East had four inches to go and couldint do it, tug and strain as we did.

IN THESE CHAOTIC TIMES

To the Editor of the Star:

I am making a suggestion which of course is merely that and nothing more.

At the Thanksgiving Union Service in Winchester Rev. Walter Lee Bailey offered the prayer and I was so impressed with it that I asked him if he had written it down, as it had a "prayerful" sound and I hoped he had done so. He said he felt it was important and had composed and written it before coming to the church.

I am enclosing the copy of the prayer and I wonder if you would feel it was a good thing to publish it. The times are so chaotic it seems as if you have a wonderful people so unsure of the future the thinking of people, especially tul opportunity to help stabilize to the young.

Mary P. Gooch

A Prayer

Composed by Walter Lee Bailey Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Winchester, Mass., and delivered at the Union Thanksgiving Service, 1945.

Almighty God, our Heavenly Father, Thou hast been to Thy children of every generation in turn as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land. Our fathers trusted Thee and served Thee in their day and left to us the heritage of faith. In Thy fear and admonition we have been reared and through the years Thou hast been our refuge and our strength.

We come to Thee, therefore, driven by our need of Thee. That in which we have trusted has failed us. Our confidence in man has been shaken; our trust in things has been misplaced. Grant unto us a new discernment, that we may not miss the lessons Thou art teaching now. May ours be a hearing and an understanding heart and a teachable spirit, sensitive to Thy voice and obedient to Thy will. Thou, a very present help in time of trouble, art calling us back to Thyself, and bidding us to put our trust in Thee.

Instill, we beseech Thee, in all who are in places of authority and influence a deep sense of their responsibility and duty. Raise up righteous leaders who shall themselves be led of Thee, and endow them with that wisdom and devotion and unselfishness that shall make them the fit instruments of Thy holy purpose. Cast down from their high places all who have exploited others to enrich themselves, all who have betrayed their fellows for their own advantage, and purge us every one of every false affection and dependence and all

MUSICAL FIREMEN

The Star has just learned that the "boys" at the Fire Headquarters, had a Christmas Eve music festival all their own, and it was even a greater success than that of 1944.

According to the visitors present, "Cubby" Carroll was the master of ceremonies and he was ably supported by a large chorus of fine singers.

All the traditional carols were sung, to the accompaniment of Auxiliary Deputy Chief "T. P." and his slide trombone.

Many callmen and "auxies" joined the festival and even Chief Gorman was observed in the audience.

Plans for a big sing next Christmas Eve have already been made and the "singingest fire department" hopes there will be no alarms to interrupt their carols.

WINCHESTER CAMPAIGN STARTS

The Victory Clothing Collection for Overseas Relief is now underway. The drive to obtain in behalf of UNRRA the national goal of 100,000,000 used garments in addition to shoes and bedding started Jan. 7 and will continue through Jan. 31.

Mr. Nelson A. Rockefeller said in calling on people to respond generously: "The people literally hold in their hands the gift of life for millions who today are dying from exposure and the lack of clothes. Conditions are worst of all for infants and children, whose weakened powers of resistance cannot withstand another winter of suffering, but people of all ages need clothes desperately."

Receiving centers for this material in Winchester have been arranged with the Central Fire Station, the Post Office and the Edison Shop. Garments should be securely tied together in an unwrapped bundle and shoes tied together in pairs by their laces.

Please search through clothes closets, trunks, chests and bureau drawers for garments, shoes and bedding that can be spared for the relief of the needy and destitute people of the war torn lands.

HEINTZELMAN ETCHINGS AT LIBRARY

Those who hold that the etcher's needle is less facile than other art mediums should see the exhibition of etchings and dry points by Arthur William Heintzelman which the Winchester Art Association is sponsoring this month at the Library Art Gallery. The same advice is good for those who believe that all portraits are more or less alike, and that when you have seen one you have seen them all.

Etchings and dry points by Mr. Heintzelman have been shown before in Winchester. Some of those in the current show have been exhibited here before, but they can be seen to advantage again and again. His subjects as suggested by the titles are largely old world folks and his approach is that of one who loves and understands the people he graves on his copper.

His current show is with three exceptions exclusively portraits, or perhaps better, character studies. There are two fine studies of Beethoven, "Vieux Lion Fatigue' and "Pensee," two of the only three etchings which Mr. Heintzelman has published from the many which he has done of this great musician and composer. Mr. Heintzelman has the greatest admiration for Beethoven, has done much research concerning him and his studies are not the superficial ones produced by many artists.

For sharp contrast there are the studies "Le Valaison", a big leonine, bearded man with head carried high on his strong neck, and "Three Score and Ten," showing a small, senile hatted old fellow with beardless wrinkled face and one naked old shoulder peeping from the edge of his cloak. "Prelude" shows a bearded old jongleur picking the strings of his guitar, a listener with a beer stein in his hand in the background.

There is a wealth of atmosphere in the portrait, "Rehearsal," a sympathetically done study of an old musician, tired-looking and not too prosperous, clasping his 'cello and bow as he gazes wistfully into space during a pause between numbers

Four plates, entitled, "Mendiant Italien," hold unusual interest since they show the development of an etching from the first proof to the final stage. The effects obtained by the clever addition of mere lines or shading show clearly in these studies of an old man, seated, enveloped in a cloak and holding a stick in one gnarled hand. The unkempt beard and hair are beautifully done and the listless droop of the pose is excellent.

An especially fine character study is "Vignernon", or winetaster. Every phase and technique of the etcher's art comibne in this portrait of an elderly man with shirt open at the neck, his sensitive hands holding a taster's bowl while he wobbles a mouthful of wine about before passing his judgment on the pressing.

Departing from the single personality, "Cafe Montmarte" is a sensitively etched study in light and dark, having fine grouping. In it are shown a group of artists and musicians watching the central figure, a girl about to begin her dance. The whole is dominated by a huge crucifix which looms through the shadows at the rear of the low vaulted room. The facial expressions of the subjects in this plate are beautifully delineated.

A light note is struck in the "Chanteur Populaire", a fat and jolly minstrel twangling the strings of his guitar before his song. One senses that it will be no psalm tune to which he will give throaty utterance.

Two especially poignant studies are those depicting the passion, "Crucifix" and "The Mise en Tombeau." The first is a subject which has taxed the powers of the greatest masters, speaking well for the modern Mr. Heintzelman, whose study has strength, reverance and realism. The physical agony and mental anguish of the Christus show clearly, yet are not overdone, while a hint of immortalty derives from the dimly seen cross and shadowy drapery behind and around the figure.

This is a dry point like its companion study, which shows the grief-stricken group laying Christ in the tomb, the figures being stark against an all white background. The love and sorrow in the faces of the mourners, the lines of agony on the face of the dead Christ, the strength of the figure bearing the weight of the body and the reverence of the two women in prayer, one glancing above and the other with bent head show a depth of interpretive feeling comparable to the very apparent technical skill.

There are a number of beautifully etched portraits of children, very difficult to do in this severe medium. Also there is an excellent portrait of an old lady, Le Gran'mere Forain, which reviewer Robert Rey finds very much akin to Whitler's famous "Mother."

OUR DEMOCRACY —— by Ray

Progress Through Research

INVENTIVE GENIUS HAS ALWAYS BEEN HIGHLY VALUED IN AMERICA, BUT IN THE EARLY DAYS OF OUR COUNTRY THE SCIENTIST AND INVENTOR-- WHILE ACCOMPLISHING GREAT THINGS--OFTEN WORKED AGAINST GREAT OBSTACLES--POVERTY, LACK OF EQUIPMENT AND TECHNICAL LIBRARY FACILITIES.

TODAY--THROUGH ORGANIZED RESEARCH-- WORKING TOGETHER IN MODERN LABORATORIES-- OUR MEN OF GENIUS HAVE THEIR OPPORTUNITIES MULTIPLIED MANY FOLD--CONTRIBUTING IN EVER INCREASING MEASURE TO THE ADVANCEMENT OF OUR DEMOCRACY.

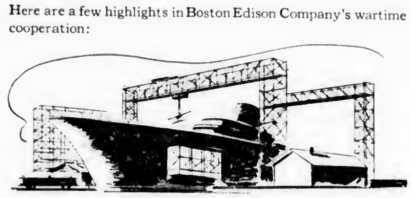

A PLEDGE FULFILLED

The Annual Report to Stockholders of Boston Edison Company for the year 1941, issued early in 1942, contains this pledge:

"Until this war has been brought to a successful conclusion, the interests of our country and its allies transcend any and all other interests. Therefore, during this extreme emergency the entire resources of your Company, animate and inanimate, must be devoted primarily and unstintingly to cooperation with and acceleration of the great war effort. In doing this, however, neither inconvenience nor sacrifice should be imposed unnecessarily or ruthlessly upon our customers, employees or stockholders. Their interests must be given every consideration consistent with the Company's primary obligation to the country."

Volumes could be written on the manner in which Boston Edison Company fulfilled this pledge. During the 44 months of war which ended on V-J Day, this Company's resources, were "devoted primarily and unstintingly" to such cooperation. The high quality of Edison's war service is attested by the grateful comments of our customers. And meanwhile, the principal operating expenses — taxes, wages and fuel — increased 40 per cent, while revenues increased only 25 per cent. The Company absorbed these additional costs without increasing its basic rates.

1. EVERY WAR DEMAND MET PROMPTLY. By the construction of new generating facilities, which was already under way before the outbreak of the European War in 1939, Boston Edison Company was in a position to meet the extraordinary demands of war industries. Between 1940, when the National Defense Program was launched, and 1944, the peak of war production, the Company's sales of electricity to industrial customers, measured in kilowatt-hours, increased more than 100 per cent. The manner in which the electric companies of America responded to the requirements of war industry has brought two significant tributes from high-ranking government authorities. Said the Chairman of the War Production Board, "Power has never been too little nor too late." Said a Vice-Admiral of the Navy, "When we asked for power we got power and not — thank God — alibis."

2. EMPLOYEES MET THE TEST OF WAR. With 638 employees of Boston Edison in the armed forces, the Company began to feel the manpower shortage early in the war. The Company's personnel was reduced from 3300 in 1941 to 2600 in early 1945. Despite the handicap of having 600 fewer men and women at work, the Company nevertheless continued to meet every demand upon its facilities. Today more than 200 of our service men and women are back on the job. Twelve who gave their lives in defense of their country will not return; for their last great measure of devotion, we at Boston Edison shall forever be indebted.

3. ARMY AND NAVY "E" AWARDS. Since electric companies do not manufacture any article used directly in combat, they were not eligible for "E" awards. But the 62 large customers of Boston Edison Company who received Army and Navy "E" awards frankly admit that they could not have qualified but for the assurance they had at all times of ample and reliable Edison power. Certain shipyards, munitions factories and other war plants increased their power loads from 300 to 500 per cent over 1940, but Boston Edison met every such demand promptly.

4. UTILITIES WARTIME AID PROGRAM. Since early in 1942 the public utilities of America have worked in close cooperation with the armed forces for the most efficient use of available facilities. In the New England area, the Boston Edison organization was privileged to assume leadership in this work of patriotic cooperation. The services of highly trained engineers from New England utilities were at all times available to Army and Navy establishments, and the savings in time, money and manpower are incalculable.

5. CONFIDENCE IN BOSTON'S FUTURE. The management of Boston Edison Company has implicit confidence in the future of Boston and the 39 cities and towns of Greater Boston which are directly served by our lines. This area not only can hold its own in competition with other parts of the country, but it has potentialities for more rapid progress — its matchless harbor, its strategic geographical location for air transportation, the skill of its workers, the thrift of its citizens, the excellence of its educational opportunities, and its many other natural advantages.

For many years the stockholders of Boston Edison have been investing in that confidence and will continue to do so. In the next five years this Company plans to spend $40,000,000 — increasing its generating capacity, extending its transmission lines, making alternating current available in direct current districts, and in other ways modernizing its facilities and service. Adequate electric service must precede, not follow, industrial development. General Motors was able to select a site in Framingham for its new assembly plant because five years earlier Boston Edison had brought additional power to that area with a new 110,000-volt transmission line. Those who are planning the industrial development of postwar Boston may proceed with confidence that electric power — the life blood of industry — will be "never too little nor too late."

39TH ANNIVERSARY TEA

Last Monday afternoon Jan. 7, 1946 in observance of its 39th anniversary, the Guild of the Infant Saviour, Boston Chapter, gave a most enjoyable tea, in the Imperial Ballroom of the Hotel Statler. Members of Winchester Chapter were invited and a large attendance was noted. A musical program was presented by members of Boston Chapter. Solos by Mrs. William Joyce, Mrs. Coleman McDonough, Pres. read her report for the past year, in which she mentioned the commendable work, and large financial donation of Winchester Chapter. The new officers for 1946 were then introduced and were given a hearty welcome. Rev. Fr. John Doyle, Director of Diocesan Charities, and his assistant Rev. Fr. J. Kennedy were guests, and Rev. Fr. Doyle spoke briefly. They had as their Guest Speaker, Richard Reid, K. S. G. Editor of the Catholic News, archdiocesan paper of New York who gave a most interesting talk on "Catholic Action."

Next Tuesday afternoon Jan. 15 at 2:30 P. M. at Lyceum Hall, the Winchester Guild will hold their annual meeting, and reports of the various officers for the year 1945 will be read. Mrs. Michael Hintlian, President will preside and all members are urged to be present at this very important meeting. Tea will be served. READING HERE TONIGHT

Winchester High will try to break into the basketball win column tonight when Reading High comes to town for a Middlesex League engagement in the high school. 1st and 2nd team games will be played, commencing at 7:30.

To date the locals have lost four straight, losing to Newton, the Alumni, Belmont and Lexington. The home team hasn't done too badly but, its old bugaboo, inability to shoot effectively has thus far kept the accounting on the red ink. Coach Knowlton believes his team will make plenty of trouble when and if a game comes up in which two of his sharpshooters happen to be finding the hoop at the same time. Thus far only one high scorer at a time has had his eye on the strings.

Infacing Reading the locals have no particularly soft touch, Lexington beat Winchester 20 points on Tuesday and Reading beat Lexington at Reading in the opening league game of the season. Granting that Lexington might have been off form on that night, it still looks like Reading has a team with which it will be unsafe to play around.

Coach Knowlton will probably start his usual lineup against Reading which means Capt. Pat. Patterson and Twiggy Nolan in the fore court, Spider Latham at center and Dean Blanchard and Sammy Tibaudo at guards.

During the past week hundreds of sea gulls have been seen in the water and on the ice in Mystic Lakes. Maybe they are getting organized for something.

SURVEYING THE DAMAGE

Post mortems leave much to be desired. After the horse is stolen, it is too late to lock the stable door. The hazard always precedes the act which the loss logically follows. Safety always calls for precaution. A modern insurance program is capable of doing a very complete job of protection, but only if the various policies are properly integrated to the needs of the individual. An insurance survey, made by this agency, will give you a preview of the loss hazards to which you are exposed by reason of your possessions, personal activites, business responsibilities. We then audit your present policies and make such recommendations for changes, additions or eliminations as our findings may warrant. Why not call us today for a free insurance survey?

3. Arts and skill workers, especially in pottery and hooked rugs, who are qualified to instruct convalescent boys in hospitals are much needed to officiate in this capacity and thus help to build up morale and hasten recovery.

Those willing to help in any of these worthy causes will please contact local Red Cross Headquarters for further information.

Major Richard J. Clark

SPEAKS ON HEART DISEASE AT DISTRICT NURSING MEETING

The annual meeting of the Winchester District Nursing Association was held on Jan. 11 at the home of Mrs. George Chatfield, 6 Allen street, and the 70 directors, members and guests present felt that they were particularly fortunate to hear Dr. Richard J. Clark, recently returned from overseas as guest speaker.

Before Dr. Clark was introduced a brief board meeting was held, and the feeling of all present was one of regret and gratitude; regret that Mrs. Harlow Russell was retiring as president of WDNA after having planned and carried on an energetic and forceful program for the association, and gratitude for her untiring work.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hospitality committee, and after excellent reports by the secretary Mrs. Alfred Higgins and treasurer Mrs. Amy Pond, Mrs. Angeline O'Leary, R. N., executive director of WDNA gave an interesting talk on how the association has followed through in its objective to help promote better health in Winchester by giving service and offering health education in homes and schools.

Mrs. Russell then introduced Dr. Clark, whose enlightening talk on recent developments in the treatment of heart disease was enthusiastically received by all present. Dr. Clark mentioned the four major types of heart disease, stressing in particular the rheumatic heart and rheumatic fever.

Dr. Clark emphasized the "growing feeling that Rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease should be considered as primarily a public health problem in the same light as tuberculosis has come to be considered." He also emphasized "the importance of close collaboration between doctors, public health nurses, and social service workers in the handling and guidance of these patients." Dr. Clark spoke of "work that is being carried out by the U. S. Children's Bureau in co-operation with the states in development of diagnostic and treatment clinics for this condition. Such is now in process of development in Massachusetts."

Following Dr. Clark's talk, the report of the nominating chairman, Mrs. Albert Huckins, was read and accepted and Mrs. Russell, in a speech acknowledging the efforts of all her co-workers, presented Mrs. William Kugler, the incoming president.

MRS. DAWN KELLEY BARTLETT

Mrs. Dawn Kelley Bartlett, 29, of Winchester and Montclair, N. J., died suddenly on Okinawa last month while serving with the American Red Cross. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Kelley, of 47 Mystic Valley Parkway, have been informed that her death was caused by a complete collapse, the result of over-work.

In the notification of her death, Basil O'Conner, national chairman of the American Red Cross, wrote, "She endeared herself to her co-workers, and her services in the Red Cross for her country were distinguished by conscientious performance of duty and selfless service on behalf of the members of the armed forces. Her life closed while engaged in a great humanitarian service, appreciated by her fellow Americans on foreign soil, by the military authorities and by the American Red Cross."

Military funeral services were held on Okinawa, Dec. 27.

Mrs. Bartlett had been overseas in the Pacific area for more than a year doing morale and entertainment work for combat troops. During the war she was stationed at Hickham Field, Oahu, and at other military installations in the Hawaiian Islands.

With cessation of hostilities, she was one of seven Red Cross workers flown to Okinawa, the first group of club girls to land on that battle-torn island. Arriving immediately after the devastating 1945 typhoon there, the group had to start with nothing to build recreational and entertainment facilities for the troops.

Typical of the problems surmounted by the Red Cross girls overseas was one project Mrs. Bartlett undertook prior to her death. As a staff member of the newly-created Red Cross Club on the island, she supervised hundreds of details for the club's opening for 4,000 soldiers, sailors and marines.

Mrs. Bartlett's strong desire to help overseas in World War II manifested itself in 1944 when she went to Washington, D. C., to start Red Cross training after serving in the Red Cross motor corps and allied relief work in Montclair, N. J., and with Red Cross military units at Lowry Field, Col. Following her training, she was assigned a post at Langley Field, Va. and went overseas from there.

Dawn was born in Winchester, was graduated from Winchester High School in 1933 and from the Erskine School for Girls in 1936. She was a member of the Winchester Unitarian Church and the Junior League of Montclair, N. J.

In addition to her parents, she leaves a sister, Mrs. Robert H. Smith, of Winchester, and a brother, Arthur S. Kelley, Jr., of West Medford.

Rev. Paul H. Chapman, minister of the Winchester Unitarian church, held a memorial service for Dawn Sunday, Jan. 13, in connection with the morning service at the church.

MRS. IDA M. BELICHON

Mrs. Ida M. Belichon, widow of Gustave Belichon, passed on suddenly Sunday forenoon, Jan. 13, at her home, 20 Mason street. Her passing was wholly unexpected, she having been in her usual health that day.

Mrs. Belichon was born in Boston Aug. 30, 1856, the daughter of Charles and Sarah (Balch) Ramsdell. She was educated in the Boston schools, graduating from high school as valedictorian of her class.

Mrs. Belichon was twice married. On Feb. 18, 1884, she married William Thompson, a Canadian ship-owner, who died in the south seven years after their marriage. As Mrs. Thompson she travelled extensively with her husband in this country and Canada, as well as visiting Bermuda, Nassau and places abroad.

After her first husband's death, she returned to Winchester for a time, before going abroad to England and the Continent. She lived abroad for 15 years, spending 12 years of that time studying art in Paris and other French art centers.

While in Paris she met Gustave Belichon, an artist and professor of French, whom she married in the French capitol Oct. 23, 1895. They returned to Winchester permanently in 1907, living first on Lebanon street. Later she lived on Willard road, which became part of Governor's avenue, before moving to her Mason street address. Mr. Belichon died May 22, 1924, shortly after he had consented to teach French in an emergency situation which had occurred at the Winchester High School.

Mrs. Belichon was a member of the First Church of Christ, Scientist in Winchester and of the M. S. P. C. A. In her more active years she was also a member of both the League of Women Voters and the Women's Republican Club.

She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Morris K. Hand, and a brother, Clifford C. Ramsdell, both of Winchester.

For 30 years they made their home on Foxcroft road.

Mr. Rogers was active in the old Calumet Club and until he became ill seven years ago he was a member of the Winchester Country Club. He was a member of William Parkman Lodge of Masons, of Woburn Royal Arch Chapter, Hugh de Payens Commandery, Knights Templar; and of Aleppo Temple of the Mystic Shrine. STADIUM COMMITTEE DISSOLVES

The committee informally organized in December to consider possible locations for a high school athletic field with suitable seating and other facilities met on Tuesday evening. In view of the fact that the school committee in the interim has proposed the acquisition of the Ginn estate and has long term plans for the erection of both a high school and an athletic stadium thereon, it was agreed that the entire matter should be deferred until the town meeting in March has either acted upon the purchase of this property or at a later date after a vote has been taken on the recommendations of an official committee appointed to consider the subject.

As this group was to function only to the extent of making a report at the next town meeting on desirable locations and as the Ginn estate would be the most logical place to locate athletic facilities in event it is purchased for the eventual construction of a new high school as proposed, the committee voted to dissolve without formal action being taken.

TOBACCO—SNUFF

Announcement that the U. S Government took in more than $670,000 in taxes on one month's sales of snuff is a reminder that the aromatic art of snuffing tobacco is not lost.

Use of snuff is a tradition of the United States Senate, about as old as the Senate itself, says the National Geographic Society. The officials of the chamber provide two well filled snuff boxes, one for Democrats and one for Republicans. The containers are placed in wall niches, one on each side of the presiding officer's rostrum. Many pairs of boxes have been "worn out" during the life of the custom. Moisture in the snuff corroded the hinges. The ones our containers are lacquer boxes lined with cedar and are about ready for replacement. They are approximately three inches long, one and a half inches wide and an inch deep. Not many Senators are regular users of snuff but some have temporarily turned to the aromatic powder when they have colds.

Taking snuff was once regarded as an indulgence especially marking gentlemen. Ornate snuff boxes carried on the person became a sort of proof of gentility. Kings and princes gave jeweled boxes as evidence of their favor. Over the centuries the use of snuff has spread from the aristocracy to the common man. Largest quantities are now bought by south an laborers, mostly negroes; Scandinavians living in Wisconsin and Minnesota; and New England mill and industrial towns.

This change in the class of consumer has brought about the virtual disappearance of the personal snuff box. Much of the snuff now sold is offered in paste or moist form. These varieties are not applied to the nostrils, but are stuffed between the gums and the cheek.

Snuff is prepared by pulverizing the stems or the midribs of the leaves of fire-cured tobacco. In the half century from 1890 to 1940 production of snuff in the United States increased from 9,500,000 pounds to 37,000,000 pounds. For 1945 the figure was 43,179,200 pounds. Snuff is taxed at 18 cents a pound.

WINCHESTER SET BACK READING

Gave Visitors First Defeat of Season, 31-29

Winchester High's embattled basketball team pulled the unexpected last Friday evening by beating hot Reading 31-29, in the local gym.

A capacity crowd saw the game, every available inch of space being taken. Reading came to Winchester undefeated, having beaten both Lexington and Belmont, and a big crowd accompanied the visitors to town.

Winchester, on the other hand, had been beaten by both Belmont and Lexington, but there were plenty of loyal rooters on hand hoping for a reversal of form.

Their hopes were realized, for Coach Knowlton's charges played good ball, not only offen-ively, but defensively, while their shooting was much better balanced than in previous games.

Capt. "Pat" Patterson was the game's high scorer with 7 floor goals, with Twiggy Nolan and Spider Latham also doing some effective shooting. Latham, besides racking up nine points did a great job defensively on Reading' Robertson, who had been running wild in previous games.

Reading led at the end of the first quarter, 4-0, both teams guarding exceptionally close. At the start of the second period Coach Knowlton sent in West for Tibaudo in the back court and big John broke the ice for Winchester with a pretty goal that seemed to snap the locals out of their scoring lethargy.

Winchester led at the half, 15-9, and had a 23-17 advantage starting the final period. Here Reading commenced to come and actually outscored Winchester in the final quarter 11-8.

With a minute or less remaining the visitors made good a foul shot to make the score 31-29 and had the tying basket miss just as the final gun sounded.

Winchester won the preliminary game, 24-19. The varsity summary:

STONEHAM HIGH UPSET WINCHESTER

A good looking basketball team from Stoneham High ran up a big lead in the early stages of Tuesday afternoon's Middlesex League game with Winchester in the local gymnasium to win finally by five points 35-30.

The locals outscored Stoneham after the midway mark and were coming fast in the closing minutes of play. Stoneham had a 25-12 advantage at the half and this proved enough to enable the visitors to weather the storm.

Winchester was without "Twiggy" Nolan regular left forward, but Jimmy Olivier, playing his position, racked up eight points which is better than Nolan has shown thus far. Capt. Pat Patterson had another off day as far as scoring went, getting only one floor basket.

Winston, high scoring center from Stoneham, led both teams with 19 points. He has been doing better than this in most games and bid fair to have a field day here, running up 15 points at the half.

After intermission Coach Knowlton put Dean Blanchard on Winston and the local guard covered so closely that the visiting pivot picked up only one floor goal and two foul baskets in the last two periods. Another five minutes and the locals might have won. They outscored Stoneham about two to one in the final quarter.

Winchester won the second team game 22-12. The varsity summary:

Sunday evening the Fellowship met in the church parlor. After the service, led by Lillie McCane, Mr. George Roghaar presented a program of moving pictures including "On the Air—The Story of Radio Broadcasting", sports films and cartoons. Refreshments were served by Barbara Warsky and David Wylie.

WINCHESTER GIRLS BEAT MEDFORD

ITALY'S BIGGEST INDUSTRIAL CENTERS

Heading the list of portions of Italy recently turned back to Italian administrators by the Allied Military Government are areas which make up most of the flaring top of the Italian "boot", and include the kingdom's foremost centers of industry, notes a National Geographic Society bulletin.

They are the departments of Piedmont, Lombardy and Liguria, and the Venezia region excepting its eastern sector adjacent to Yugoslavia. They include Italy's share of the Alps and most of its agriculturally and industrially fruitful valley of the Po River.

Each of these four northern areas contains a city of top rank in the kingdom. On Lombardy's fertile plain stands Milan. Now a teeming community of 1,120,000 people, it is second only to Rome in size, as it was in pre-Christian times. Its position on Alpine and sprawling machine plants make it Italy's first city in industry, commerce, transportation and finance.

Italian "Ruhr" Escaped Early Bombings

Piedmont's metropolis is Turin, known as Italy's Detroit because of its automotive factories. Second only to Milan among industrial centers, it was paired with the larger city 80 air miles southwest as "Northern Italy's Ruhr", a region inaccessible to Allied bombers until southern Italy was invaded in 1943. With 630,000 inhabitants, Turin holds a virtual tie with Genoa for fourth place among Italian cities.

Liguria, stretching around the Gulf of Genoa on the Ligurian Sea, has Genoa itself as a focal point. Named as the home town of both Columbus and Amerigo Vespucci, Genoa is easily Italy's greatest port, and a peacetime rival of Marseille for sea trade leadership among all Mediterranean ports.

Chief city of the Venezia region is Venice (Italian Venezia) magnet for tourists because of its position in a great lagoon of the Adriatic Sea. The city with its shops and dwellings and palaces rises from low islands threaded by hundreds of "canal streets." Of importance in Europe's trade with the East, it counted 264,000 citizens before World War II.

The Venezia region of northeastern Italy includes three departments. Italy's equivalent of states. They are Venezia proper, containing Venice; Venezia Tridentina, reaching northward to Austria; and Venezia Giulia, on the east adjoining Yugoslavia. Still retained under Allied control in early 1946 were all Venezia Giulia's districts (such centers of controversy as Fiume, Gorizia and Trieste) plus the Udine district of Venezia proper.

Also returned to Italian administration at the beginning of the new year were bomb-stricken Naples, second port and third largest city, on the shin of the boot 120 air miles southeast of Rome; the Leghorn (Livorno)-to-Pisa coastal area around the mouth of the Arno River in Tuscany; and Pantelleria, Lampedusa and Linosa, pin-point islands in the editerranean bottleneck between Tunisia and Sicily. These islands west of Britain's Malta were seized by the Allies in 1943 as necessary steppingstones to the invasion of Sicily.

The dissolving of the unofficial committee of town officers formed to consider the proposal to erect a suitable athletic plant for the use of high school teams seems a wise move. The committee had no authority from the town to make recommendations, yet its opinion, because of the prominence of its members, would have been bound to carry considerable weight in any discussion of an athletic plant, and its location, at town meeting. This could have been too bad, because with few exceptions, none of the members of the committee has shown any great interest in, or knowledge of competitive athletics. Now that there will be no recommendation from this committee it seems doubly the duty of the School Committee to have inserted in the warrant articles covering more than one solution of the athletic field problem. It is understood that this committee has a plan. Its proposal however depends upon the prior acceptance of another and much bigger plan. Provision should also be made for one, or perhaps two alternative plans for an athletic field alone, in the event the town does not accept the larger proposition. It seems definitely up to the School Committee to see that suitable athletic facilities are provided for high school teams. There ought to be at least two avenues of approach to the problem.

With only a little more than a month to town election in March there has been no great rush of candidates as yet, particularly for the Board of Selectmen and School Committee. It seems especially desirable that there should be some strong candidates for both of these boards this year. The possible elimination of the grade crossing is only one of the important problems likely to confront the Selectmen in the so-called reconversion period while few Committees have been called upon to face the program which looms in the School Department. With this in mind it is unfortunate to find so little interest apparent in the contest for School Committee. As a matter of fact, unless sentiment changes appreciably, there is likely to be no contest, and Mr. Ayer, running for re-election, will be automatically elected with Mrs. Smith, running for the first time. The Star means no disparagement to either when we say that this is not a good situation. The school program in Winchester is in a very delicate position. A start has been made toward remedying certain defects brought to light by the Fowlkes survey, but admittedly only a start. This start has been made because of an aroused public opinion which focussed interest upon the schools and insisted upon very definite steps being taken. Such steps were taken only because of strong public sentiment. Succeeding steps in the program of rehabilitating our schools may only be taken if this strong sentiment continues and manifests itself in a lively interest in the School Department and its workings. There ought to be more candidates for School Committee this year, especially. We do not mean that Mr. Ayer and Mrs. Smith are not good candidates, but they ought to have opposition so that the town may have a choice. Especially should there be a candidate or candidates from that large group whose dissatisfaction with the schools brought about the changes that have been made. Lack of such candidates shows a corresponding lack of interest which can only result in a return to the old inertia which many feel was chiefly responsible for the conditions which were condemned by the Fowlkes survey. We repeat that it will not be too hard to return to the old regime. Only a determined and sustained fight against heavy odds on the part of a few courageous souls, backed by an aroused public opinion, succeeded in bringing about what little progress has been made. Once viewed that the public is no longer interested, those who have made the fight may well give up the battle. Our school system stands at the cross-roads. Its future will depend upon those who guide its destinies in the next two or three years. A new superintendent has been chosen. He is a stranger to Winchester. He needs, and indeed deserves, a strong committee to work with him. A strong committee is usually not one to which members are automatically elected. This is as true of the Board of Selectmen, or Park Commissioners, or any public board, as it is of the School Committee. Lack of candidates for town office is not a hopeful sign. Especially in connection with the School Committee and Selectmen it is to be deplored this year.

To the Editor of the Star:

Referring to your one paragraph lead editorial in your Jan. 4 issue, you state "the only criticism was by Edwin R. Rooney, Jr." That is not correct. You mean it was the only criticism you received in the mail. There are undoubtedly many critics of your "Strike" editorial (and I am one of them) who did not bother to write since your influence and circulation are fortunately so limited that we are not particularly worried about you.

I resent your smug statement that Mr. Rooney's objection "was undoubtedly made in line with his duties," with the implication that he is merely an opportunist writing for a cause he does not believe in. You know, there are quite a lot of fairly intelligent people who disagree with your political opinions, or who are at least willing to examine both sides of a question with an open and unbiased mind. Your hysterical character who calls himself Socrates might learn something from them.

Very truly yours,
(Cpl.) Dorothy L. Fitts

(Mr. Rooney, with the armed forces, is, we have heard, a correspondent for a labor magazine, so that his objection was undoubtedly made in line with his duties." We understand that this committee has a plan. Its proposal however depends upon the prior acceptance of another and much bigger plan. Provision should also be made for one, or perhaps two alternative plans for an athletic field alone, in the event the town does not accept the larger proposition. It seems definitely up to the School Committee to see that suitable athletic facilities are provided for high school teams. There ought to be at least two avenues of approach to the problem.—Ed. FINDINGS ON GINN PROPERTY

Board of Appeal Gives Opinion to Trustees Who Now Seek to Oppose Ruling

Editor of the Star:

In view of the misleading news items in the Boston papers regarding the denial by the Winchester Board of Appeal of the petition to convert the Ginn mansion into a lodging house, I hope the Star can print at least the material portions of the Board's decision.

The evidence was that married students at Harvard would be housed. There was no evidence that a single foot of space would be used to house Winchester's married veterans who so greatly need homes.

In its opinion, the Board invited the town in definite terms to consider and take appropriate action to help Winchester veterans.

TOWN OF WINCHESTER BOARD OF APPEAL

In the Matter of the Trustees under the will of Edwin Ginn More than four lodgers in a single residence district

This is a petition by Arthur N. Holcombe, Franklin T. Hammond, and Francis Goodale, trustees under the will of Edwin Ginn, for permission to use the premises situate and numbered 55 on Bacon street to house more than four lodgers.

A hearing on the petition was held at the office of the Building Commissioner on Tuesday, the 11th day of December, 1945, after due notice as required by the zoning laws, at which Messrs. Hughes and Howard of the Board and Roland H Parker, appointed by said members as substitutes for Mr. Clark, who disqualified himself, served.

The premises to which the petition relates is a tract of land of several acres, on which is a dwelling house and a music building connected thereto by a vestibule, and a stable. The buildings are of brick with wood trim. The house contains 16 or more rooms and seven bathrooms, with an additional lavatory. Three living rooms of exceptionally large size, a large hall, and pantry and kitchen are on the ground floor. Six large bedrooms are on the second floor, and the third story contains four or five bedrooms. It is now unoccupied.

It is proposed to use the first two floors of the house to accommodate seven married couples—14 persons—and an additional number could be housed if fire escapes were provided for the third story. All seven couples would have separate rooms. Five would have private bathrooms. The remaining two couples would share one bathroom. All would use in common the present kitchen and dining room, but electric hot plates would be permitted within the rooms, and there was testimony of the possibility that a pantry used as a kitchen before the present kitchen was constructed, would be restored to use as a kitchen.

The trustee indicated that probably married college students would be the lodgers, most of whom are veterans of World War II.

Several reasons were stated as the bases of the petition:

1. The entire premises are not readily salable as a single residence or rentable to a single tenant because of the expanse of land, the large size of the house and its rooms.

2. Standing idle, the premises produce no income to meet taxes and upkeep.

3. When last lived in, the size of the house necessitated the consumption of 15,000 or more gallons of oil for heating purposes. Fuel cost, therefore, makes impracticable the use of the house for only four lodgers.

4. There exists a serious shortage of housing facilities, amounting to an emergency, especially for veterans returning from war.

The petition is for a lodging house (Building by-law, section 10). The locus is in a fully developed residential district of sizable and better than average single dwellings.

It was apparent that many, if not a majority, of adjoining owners might favor the petition for temporary use of veterans, but that all opposed permanent use of the property as a lodging house.

Two findings are prerequisite to further findings of this by-law section 8 (A) and (B): The proposed use is permitted by section 2 (C), with the approval of this board, but it is not a use incidental to or usual in connection with a single residence. The proposed use would not violate section 9 as that section was modified by Tranfaglia vs. Building Commissioner, 306 Mass. 495.

The petition is brought under section 7 (D) for a temporary permit, which by the terms of the section, may be granted for not exceeding one year and renewed not more than once. The purpose of that section was stated in the decision of the Selectmen, sitting as a Board of Appeal, on the petition of Viola F. Bunker, dated July 6, 1926*.

" . . . we construe that paragraph as one which provides for otherwise prohibited uses which are temporary and not permanent in character or for prohibited uses in emergency which may be permanent in character but for temporary periods only, and we believe that the section should not be used, except in emergency, to permit prohibited uses which are permanent in character for temporary periods . . . "

In a single residence district, a lodging house is a prohibited use, except upon approval of this board. The petition, therefore, could have been brought under section 2 (c), and this board could impose such limitation of time and conditions as it deemed reasonable (G. L. c. 40, s 30), and, for the purpose of this decision, it is necessary to refer to the provisions of section 2. The bald power given to this board to permit a lodging house; yet there should be good reason to excise that power without substantial detriment to the public good and without substantial derogation from the intent of purpose of the by-law.

The character of the neighborhood has not changed. It is a better than ordinary residential section; commercial traffic is prohibited from the street; commercial enterprise is many streets away; and it is not a locality within which boarding or lodging houses exist or might be expected to exist.

Within the scope of this petition, the alleged inability of the trustees to sell or rent the property as a single residence does not afford as sufficient reason to vary the by-law, and does not show that the desired variation will not derogate from the purpose and intent of the by-law. (Phillips v. Board of Appeal, 286 Mass. 469, 471).

(*See also decision of the Selectmen, sitting as a Board of Appeal, dated Feb. 1, 1932, on application of Manlino G. Moffett et al)

Nor is the fact that the property is costly to operate and produces no revenue sufficient, in itself, to justify our granting the petition. (Prusik v. Board of Appeal, 262 Mass. 451, 457. In that case the Court said:

"The financial situation or pecuniary hardship of asingle owner affords no adequate ground for putting forth this extra-ordinary power affecting other property owners as well as the public."

The fact may be considered, however, along with other facts, in arriving at a decision.

It is our opinion that on the points so far covered we are not justified in granting the petition.

There remains, however, the problem that there is a great need for additional housing. Many of the young men who went to war from Winchester are returning and find no homes for themselves and their wives. The need is pressing, and it can be said to amount to an emergency. That condition obtains throughout the Commonwealth and the nation.

The individual desires of members of this board to aid veterans are circumscribed by the power to regulate use of land under the zoning by-law and to permit variance in an emergency. So, with what sort of emergency should this board deal under section 7 (d)?

We believe that we are required to give individual relief in individual emergencies. We are of the opinion we should not apply to individual cases the relief which is required to be applied on a town-wide, state-wide and even nation-wide basis. To do so is to attack with a toothpick that which requires a steamshovel.

It is solely within the province of the town to take such steps as it deems fit to relax temporarily its by-laws to permit additional persons to live in single residences, to permit the establishments of lodging houses, or to take other temporary emergency measures. It is not within the province of this board.

The petition must be and is denied.

GINN TRUSTEES APPEAL FINDING

Ask Superior Court to Review Board of Appeal Decision

The trustees of the Ginn Estate on Bacon street have asked the Superior Court to review the finding of the Winchester Board of Appeal denying the trustees petition to use the Ginn property as a residence for more than four families in opposition to the town's Zoning By-Laws.

The Board of Appeal held a public hearing upon the trustees petition and after consideration, denied their appeal.

ROTARY NOTES

The regular meeting of the Winchester Rotary Club was highlighted by the largest attendance in recent years, and visitors were welcomed from the Rotary Clubs of Woburn, Wilmington, and Boston. Rotarian John Young of the Tihue Club, Kanai, Territory of Hawaii was also a visitor.

The program for the meeting was under the direction of "Don" Lewis, who introduced Mr. F. Winchester Denio, Chairman of the Massachusetts War Finance Committee, as the guest speaker. His story of war financing as it related to the sale of the different types of securities offered by the Treasury Department was extremely well presented and proved to be most interesting. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Denio paid special tribute to the citizens of Winchester and to the school children for their successful War Bond selling efforts.

He also complimented the Winchester War Finance Committee for its splendid work. Mr. Denio serves as vice-president of the First National Bank of Boston and vice-president of the Bay State Corporation, Boston.

Dr. "Angie" Maietta was a second time winner of the Victory War Bond, his number having been drawn by War Finance Chairman Denio. It was pointed out to Mr. Denio that this was one of the Club's War Bond sales promotions efforts.

Many of the members made individual contributions to the "Wishing Well" which is to be a feature during this year's Winton Club program.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott K. Blaisdell are the parents of a son, Elliott Kimball, Jr., born Jan. 15. Grandparents are Mrs. J. Harper Blaisdell of this town and Mr. Edward H. Cameron of Newton Upper Falls.

106TH ANNUAL MEETING OF FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

The 106th annual meeting of the First Congregational Church was held Wednesday evening in the parish hall at 7.45, preceded by a delicious chicken pie supper served by a committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles W. Lovejoy. Mr. William A. Kneeland acted as Moderator.

Dr. Chidley gave a brief address preceding the business meeting on the state of the churches in America. He said that while the denomination had gained 10 per cent in membership from 1926 to 1945, the First Church had gained 60 per cent, and while the Sunday School enrollment had receded drastically during those years in all the Churches of America, the Sunday School of the First Church had gained 29 per cent.

Moderator, 1 year, William A. Kneeland.

Clerk, 1 year, Albert K. Huckins

Treasurer, 1 year, Rupert F. Jones

Assistant Treasurer, 1 year, Mrs. Rupert F. Jones

Auditors, 1 year, John Carruthers, James N. Jones

Church Committee, 2 years, Leo W. Blaisdell

Prudential Committee, 3 years, James H. O'Connor

Five Church Visitors, 2 years, Mrs. F. Milne Blanchard, Mrs. William L. Parsons, Mrs. Franklin McDermott, Mrs. Warren A. Hersey, Mrs. William D. Barone

Music Committee, 1 year, Mrs. Howard R. Hartt

Music Committee, 3 years, Mrs. Robert A. Drake, Dr. Eugene M. Pollard.

House Committee, 3 years, Mrs. Raymond J. Dickman.

Women Missionary Committee, 1 year, Miss Helen A. Hall, Mrs. Norman J. Padelford

Supt. of Sunday School, 1 year, Arthur W. Pratt

Treasurer of Sunday School, 1 year, Dwight E. Bellows

Directors of Sunday School, 1 year, Gilbert H. Hood, Jr., Meredith F. Cooper, Mrs. Norman J. Padelford.

The following resolution was passed with reference to Mr. W. Irving Plitt's resignation from the Superintendency of the Sunday School, due to the fact he and Mrs. Plitt will shortly move to New York:

"The First Congregational Church in Winchester, Mass., desires to go on record as expressing its keen regret that removal from town necessitates the retirement of Mr. W. Irving Plitt from the Superintendency of our Sunday School.

Mr. and Mrs. Plitt have entered into the life of our church in unusual measure and have cheerfully and generously given of their time and strength for its benefit. Few couples have been so actively identified with so many departments or have served so effectively; and we take this occasion to express our gratitude.

We wish to assure them that when they leave Winchester they will take with them the affectionate well-wishes of hosts of friends and the deep appreciation of the church for their exceptional service."

The meeting closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

THEN AND NOW

Monday evening found a large group of attractive young Winchester people eagerly waiting to rehearse for the Winton Club Concert which takes place on February 1st and 2nd at the Winchester Town Hall.

This, a harmony year as it is the Club's 25th Annual Show given for the benefit of the Winchester Hospital Linen Fund. This year's show is being produced by the John B. Rogers Co. under the able direction of Mr. Robert S. Bancroft. Music will be furnished by the well known Karle Rhode's Orchestra of Boston. This orchestra plays for the Ice Follies and Ice Capades and other big shows. The decorations this year of the Town Hall will be outstanding.

Don't miss the first number which is to be a minstrel show, the best yet, the famous Winton Club Drill with more splash and dash than ever, a gorgeous waltz number composed of beautiful dancers, the bathing beauty parade is one of the most glamorous numbers, the tapping number tops, the alpine number unique and colorful, the high kickers of the pony chorus are one of the highlights of this year's bigger and better all amateur show. The Finale, representing Winton Club's 25th Cabaret Anniversary, is one of the most spectacular numbers in the program. This year's show is composed entirely of local amateur talent.

Mrs. Leyden B. Burnham is general chairman of this year's show assisted by Mrs. Everett P. Stone, Mrs. Paul H. Comins, and Mrs. Stephen B. Neiley. Mrs. Ben R. K. OF C. NOTES 6

At the last meeting held Jan. 7 the honors of the first degree was conferred upon a large class of new candidates. On Monday Feb. 4 the final first degree class will be admitted to the council. All brothers who are sponsoring new candidates are urged to see that the new candidates are on hand for the exemplification of the first degree.

A testimonial banquet for Rev. Fr. Fitzsimmons our past chaplain will be held in the council rooms on Thursday night Jan. 31. This testimonial is for members only and the committee in charge will contact each member personally.

More brothers have been discharged from the service and it sure is good to see them back. Welcome home, fellows.

Bro. Milse Foley who is chairman of the Valentine party to be held in the council hall on Thursday Feb. 14 reports that plans are being made to make this party one of the "highlights" of the year. Anyone who has attended any of "Milse's" partys know that a good time is guaranteed to everyone attending.

Thursday, Jan. 24 has been assigned to the Winchester Council as their "night" at the Servicemen's house at 36 Commonwealth avenue in Boston. This house which has taken care of over 150,000 servicemen the past four years is still operating, and will continue to do so until all the boys are home, sets aside one night a month for each council to send in a group of brothers to "take over" for the evening and entertain the visiting servicemen. Let's make the "Winchester night" on Jan. 24 one to be long remembered by the servicemen.

The council loses one of its best members with the transferring of Fr. Fitzsimmons. Through his guidance and work the council has strengthened in numbers and will always remember him as a leader in making the council the success that it now has. The council extends him its wishes for continued happiness and success in his new position.

A very important issue will be discussed and voted upon at the next regular meeting to be held on Monday evening Jan 21. It is every brother's duty to be present at this meeting which involves the success of the council. So do not forget the date, Monday, Jan. 21 at 8:15 P. M.

Be there!

Cpl. Francis W. O'Neil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. O'Neil of 9 Alben street has recently been discharged from the Army. He served in Belgium, Holland and Germany.

XMAS SEALS NET $2743

Contributions received from the 1945 sale of Christmas Seals now total $2,743.20, announced Mrs. Alexander Aitken, chairman of the Winchester Tuberculosis Committee. This shows good support by the people of this community, but last year's total has not yet been reached. Mrs. Aitken and the committee feel that many people who forgot to make early returns think that it is too late to do so now. To correct this idea post card reminders are now being sent to those from whom no reply has been received. All money taken in during the next few weeks will be used to finance the 1946 program of tuberculosis prevention and control.

WINCHESTER CO-OPERATIVE BANK TO AID VETERANS

Mr. E. R. Enstis, treasurer of the Winchester Co-operative Bank announced today that Mr. E. D. Duncan recently separated from military service will aid veterans of World War II in acquiring G. I. 4% home loans.

It is urged that veterans avail themselves of the experience attained by the Winchester Co-operative Bank through over 50 years of successful home financing in Winchester. Be sure the house you contemplate building or buying is the right home for you.

WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION MEETS JAN. 22

At the winter meeting of the Women's Association of the First Congregational Church, to be held on Tuesday, Jan. 22 at 2 o'clock, Samuel Bracy Coles of West Africa will speak on "Our Next Church in Africa".

Mr. Coles, Congregational missionary, has been working with the Odimbunmas people of the American Board of Foreign Missions in Galangue, West Africa, for the past eighteen years. Believing that a man with an empty stomach is not too much interested in his soul, Mr. Coles has made a specialty of agriculture and the making of simple, modern tools for the native people. He has helped build a hospital in the jungle, and has constructed an adequate water system in the Bush.

The worship service of the Women's Association meeting will be lead by Mrs. John Prescott Robertson, wife of the new Assistant Pastor. A full report of the Merry-Go-Round Fair will be given by Mrs. Edwin R. Rooney, its chairman. The tea following the address will be served by the Mission Union Guild, hostess for the afternoon, Mrs. Robert M. Keeney, President of the Women's Association will preside over the meeting.

SYMMES CORNER DISCUSSION GROUP

The recent meeting of the Symmes Corner Discussion Group for the 1945-56 season was held Thursday evening Jan. 12 at Mystic School.

Prof. William M. Jewell of Boston University College of Liberal Arts gave his excellent lecture, "Masterpieces of American Art," illustrated by slides.

The meeting was unusually successful. Attendance was nearly perfect for the regular membership to which were added some 50 guests.

Mrs. Charles Livingston presided.

WINCHESTER GARDEN CLUB

The Winchester Garden Club will meet on Jan. 24th at the home of the President, Mrs. John B. Wills at 238 Highland avenue. The speaker for the afternoon is Mrs. Samuel B. Kirkwood, who will discuss Garden Problems.

TOWN GIFTS BY EN KA

On Tuesday, Jan. 15, Mrs. Clayton G. McElwain, Jr., graciously opened her spacious home for the winter meeting of the En Ka Society.

Sixty-five members enjoyed a delicious luncheon served by the meetings committee of which Mrs. Warner Shoemaker is the able chairman.

Miss Penny Bugbee, the president presided at the meeting. She welcomed the eight new Pledgees into the club.

Of interest to the town, was the report of the Finance Chairman, Mrs. Forrest L. Pitman, of an annual gift of $100 to the District Nursing Association. The Red Cross received a $200 donation for Christmas gifts. A gift of $100 was given to the newly established Winchester Scholarship Foundation. Twenty five dollars was sent to Miss Meade of the Winchester Library for books for the book truck. An additional gift of $75 for the hospital bed for the District Nursing Association. Money was voted to buy dishes for the Home for the Aged, when available. An oxygen tent, at an approximate cost of $585 was voted for the Winchester Hospital.

Mrs. Clark Collins reported that 175 Christmas boxes were packed and sent to Sailors and Marines through the Red Cross.

Following the business meeting came the long awaited report of the chairman of the 1946 Street Fair, Mrs. Gordon H. Smith. It was divulged that the Fair would be a Rainbow Fair and the date was set as Saturday, May 18.

Reports from the various chairmen were most interesting and showed that En Ka members, as usual, were working to put the Fair across in the usual way of financial success. All Winchester residents should be vitally interested in the success of this Fair for we get back what we give and En Ka has the giving spirit.

Further details of the Street Fair will be given in later issues of the Star.

Lt. Comdr. Charles V. L. Smith of 9 Hillside avenue was released from duty in the United States Navy Jan. 14 at the Separation Center in Boston after four years service. Lt. Comdr. Smith had served in the Post Graduate School at the United States Naval Academy. He is married and before the war was an assistant professor of mathematics at Lafayette College.

CONSTANCY
(For The Winchester Star)
Often the way is rough, and rugged
And life's road seems long and drear,
Clouds obscure the blessed sunlight
But we'll never succumb to fear
Because we've held our peace when angry
And braved the scoff and the sneers;
Always we'll stand for home, God and country
Thanking God for the richness of the years.

SITE OF HISTORIC TOWN PUMP NOW SERVES GASOLINE

Newport, R. I.—The site of one of the nation's oldest town springs is now serving as the location of gasoline pumps. Cleared by early Rhode Island colonists in 1639, and purchased from the Indians for "one coat with buttons" the site held the old town spring house in history-filled Newport. Around it grew the village that centuries later has grown into one of America's most fashionable watering places. The location of the famous "old town spring" was marked for history by Colonial Esso when the station was opened. One of the first public service companies in the nation was formed in 1802 on this spot, when a water company was incorporated on the spot. Now, pumps supply a different fluid for modern civilization.

INADEQUATE PROTECTION

Umbrellas with holes in them are no good in the rain. Such protection as they afford is inadequate. Neither does an insurance program which leaves loopholes for possible losses give the policyholder adequate protection.

Modern insurance is capable of doing a very complete job of protection, but only if the various policies are properly integrated to the needs of the individual. This usually requires a detailed survey by a competent insurance advisor. Our agency has the men and the facilities to adjust your insurance to your particular needs. May we review your present policies and prepare a chart showing the extent and the limitations of your present insurance program? Call this agency today for a free insurance survey!

CHESTER W. MacNEILL

LEWIS K. MOORE ELECTED PRESIDENT

Chester W. MacNeill of Portland, Me., vice-president of the Union Mutual Life Insurance Company of Portland and a former resident of Winchester, died suddenly of heart attack Jan. 20, in Boston where he was spending the week-end. He was 58 years old.

Mr. MacNeill was the son of George Leonard, and Lilly (Weston) MacNeill. He was born in Medford, educated at Somerville High School and Northeastern University School of Law, and was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar.

He spent all his business life in the insurance field. He was for 13 years president of the Massachusetts Accident Company of Boston and in 1931 was president of the Health and Accident Underwriters Conference, a national organization. He was a director of the Pilgrim Trust Company of Boston, a member and past master of John Abbot Lodge, A. F. and A. M., of Somerville, and a member of the Central Club of that city.

Mr. MacNeill came to Winchester in 1928, occupying the house at 39 Grove street, built by his father. He lived here until 1940 when business took him to Portland. He had been making his home there at the Eastland Hotel. Mrs. MacNeill, the former Bernice A. Kendall, died while the family was living in Winchester, in 1931.

Mr. MacNeill leaves a daughter, Mrs. John F. Malone of Worcester; a son, Clifton W. MacNeill of Portland; five grandchildren, a brother, Walter L. MacNeill of Hartford, Conn., and a sister, Mrs. Bertha Mitchell of West Medford.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at the Unitarian Church, with the minister, Rev. Paul Harmon Chapman, officiating. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

FIRST AID COURSE

An instructor has been secured for a Standard First Aid Course to start about the middle of February. Applicants please register at local Red Cross headquarters at once.

* * * *

All loyal supporters of the Red Cross will be interested to know that early last week the local Chacter shipped 14 large cartons of clothing, nearly 700 garments, for relief work overseas. This shipment included children's coats, capes, pajamas, layettes, boys' shirts, girls' wool dresses, and quilts. These were all made by individuals, local groups and in the workroom at headquarters and went directly to a waiting ship which is now at sea hastening to bring comfort and relief to suffering humanity in war-stricken countries.

* * * *

When there was an urgent appeal for blood plasma to save the lives of boys wounded in battle American donors were so generous in their response that when the war came to an end sooner than was anticipated, millions of units of this blood plasma, stored for future emergencies was declare surplus and will be made available for civilian use without charge for the product. This supply will be turned over to the American Red Cross, by the Army and Navy, for distribution.

Another instance of how the Red Cross serves humanity in times of peace as well as in the days of conflict.

At the second annual meeting of the Sherman M. Doig, Mc. Club of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church, held last Monday evening, the members unanimously elected Lewis K. Moore as presiding officer for the coming year. Mr. Moore was one of the first to visualize the need of such a club in the church, and, from being an organizing member, has served as chairman of the membership committee and as one of the directors.

During the past year, this club, under the very able leadership of Mr. Milton G. Galluzia, held nine meetings, and other social gatherings, entertaining several service and ex-service men. During the year, also, the club became affiliated with the Winchester Assembly of Men's Clubs, and voted to sponsor a Boy Scout troop.

The other officers elected at this meeting were as follows:

Vice President, George B. Needham

Secretary, W. Raymond Chase

Treasurer, Kenneth W. Lamprey

Chaplain, Rev. Harris E. Hevenly

Director for three years, J. Wilson Armstrong

MRS. VIENNA G. PRESTON

Mrs. Vienna G. Preston, wife of Fred A. Preston of 12 Madison avenue, passed away at her home Sunday morning, Jan. 20.

Mrs. Preston was a member of one of Winchester's old and prominent families. She was the daughter of Louis, and Rosanna (Roy) Goddu, her father having been an inventor of shoe machinery, much of which has been used successfully by the United Shoe Machinery Corporation.

Mrs. Preston was born Feb. 22, 1873, in the old Goddu homestead, located across the street from the house in which she died. She was educated in the Winchester schools and at Chauncey Hall School in Boston, and 50 years ago, Nov. 13, 1895, married Mr. Preston, the ceremony being performed at her parents home by Rev. D. Augustine Newton, then pastor of the First Congregational Church.

Mrs. Preston was actively identified for many years with the Unitarian Church and with the old Ladies' Friendly Society of that church, now the Woman's Alliance. She was also an active worker for the Red Cross.

FIRE AT LINCOLNSHIRE WAY

What might have been a fire with serious consequences was nipped in the bud by the Fire Dept., late last Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. William Laird, 2 Lincolnshire way.

The fire was started apparently by the hot door of a fireplace cleanout in the basement setting fire to a wooden box. Box 26 was put on for the fire, and the firemen got to the premises in time to confine the blaze to the basement.

Floor timbers of the first floor were charred and the house was a solid bank of smoke when the firemen arrived, the family having been given refuge in the home of a neighbor.

Fire Chief John J. Gorman said that had the fire originated during the night, there might have been serious results.

Besides the above fire, the Fire Department put out two chimney fires over the week-end, both on Saturday night. The first was at the Martin home on Niles Lane, and the second at the King home on Mason street, the latter alarm being received at 11:40 p. m. The Niles Lane fire was at 7:20.

Though he and his men wore the traditional crossed pistols of military police they were really known as "Zone of Interior Troops", and Col. Grindle organized one of the first Zone-of-Interior Battalions soon after he was called up in 1942. He trained under Melvin Pervis of the F. B. I. at Fort Ogelthorpe, Ga., and afterward served at many posts in New England and at Fort Riley, Kansas.

COLD WEATHER FOLLOWED BY STORM

Following the coldest day thus far this winter, the town experienced another heavy snow storm on Monday. With a week of cold seasonable weather, the glass fell steadily on Saturday to register anywhere from zero to ten below Sunday morning. Gradually rising temperature brought light snow Sunday night, with a small covering at daylight on Monday. However, as the day opened and during the forenoon, a real winter snow piled up, and by afternoon, when it changed to rain, walking and driving was "at the owner's risk." Colder weather Monday night froze the slush and snow, making traveling disagreeable.

Mrs. Joseph Flaherty (Mary Crosby) of the National Bank staff, who recently underwent an operation at the Winchester Hospital, was able to return to her home last Friday.

CORRECTION

In reporting the death last week of Mrs. Mercy Jane Goodwin, a member of the family at the Home for Aged People, and mother of Harry C. Goodwin of Mt. Vernon street, it was incorrectly stated that she had been ill for six years.

Mrs. Goodwin had been at the Home for six years, but had been ill only for two weeks. Those who knew of Mrs. Goodwin's daily walks and other activities doubtless noticed the error in reporting her death. We regret the misunderstanding which resulted in the erroneous statement.

PARKHURST NOMINATED FOR MARITIME BOARD

Richard Parkhurst of Grove street was on Tuesday nominated by President Truman to be a member of the United States Maritime Commission, succeeding Vice-Admiral Howard L. Vickery, who has resigned. He would serve for Admiral Vickery's unexpired term which began April 16, 1942.

Mr. Parkhurst is a Republican, a former chairman of the Boston Port Authority and has been serving in Washington with the Commission on Inter-American Affairs. Son of Hon. Lewis Parkhurst, former State senator, he has been active in town affairs, having been commander of Winchester Post, 27, A. L., and a member of both the Board of Health and Park Commissioners.

His appointment to the Maritime Commission was hailed by John F. Fitzgerald, present member of the Boston Port Authority as another step toward New England representation on commissions dealing with Maritime affairs.

FARRELL AND LEE OUT OF SERVICE

"Bobbie" Farrell, son of Patrolman and Mrs. James E. Farrell of Lebanon street and Robert "Ollie" Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lee of Grove place, both former Winchester baseball stars, were discharged from the Army over the past week-end after two years of foreign service.

Farrell, a member of the anti-aircraft artillery, served in Australia, New Guinea and the Philippines, coming home from the latter base. He did a lot of pitching for service clubs in New Guinea and the Philippines, winning 17 games, losing two, and pitching in two "all star" games.

The second of these "all star" contests was in the big Manila stadium before 30,000 fans, including members of a traveling group of big league baseball stars.

"Bobbie" was one of several pitchers who participated in the game. He worked two innings, and wasn't scored upon. He had a chance to chat with many of the big leaguers, and got some coaching from "Fat Freddie" Fitzsimmons, former Phillies manager and pitching star for both the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers.

"Ollie" got around a lot while overseas, seeing service in Africa, Corsica, Italy, Germany and Austria, coming home from Austria. He was a meteorologist in the Army Air Forces. Big "General" played little baseball while he was in the service. His old Millionaires and Elks manager, Paul, Quigley, was unable to say whether or not he threw any horseshoes while in khaki.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT CLUB

It was an ideal night for the Wednesday Night Club winter party, except for the skating which was a bit rough. The group divided and some enjoyed coasting and others skating. Those who preferred to be inside by the fire played table games. When the coasters and skaters came back everyone enjoyed the hot fish chowder served by the refreshment committee. Mrs. Eugene Pollard was chairman of the refreshment committee assisted by Mrs. Samuel Graves, Mrs. Jane Cutter and Mrs. Paul Nason.

The next meeting of the Wednesday Night Club will be a birthday dinner, Friday, Feb. 15 and all members are urged to save that date.

SELECTIVE SERVICE BOARD RECEIVED MEDALS

Exercises Held Monday at Town Library

Members of Selective Service Board, No. 161, serving Winchester and Stoneham, received Selective Service Medals Monday evening at exercises held at the Library Art Gallery in connection with Selective Service Day, set apart to pay tribute to thousands of uncompensated civilians who have served as members of the Selective Service System, as local board members, Government appeal agents, members of appeal boards, reemployment committeemen, doctors, dentists and medical advisory board members.

Only a handful of persons attended the local exercises which opened at 9.45, inclement weather and difficulty which inadvertently developed over advance notice of the event doubtless conspiring to keep many away.

Chairman W. Allan Wilde and John F. Murphy, the latter of Stoneham, were the only members of the local Selective Board present to receive their medals, but another member, George E. Graham of Stoneham, received his directly from President Truman at the Washington ceremonial, he having been selected to go to the Nation's capitol to represent Massachusetts at Selective Service Day there. The other members of the local Board, Justice Curtis W. Nash and John F. Fitzgerald were unable to be present.

Others serving in an official capacity with the Winchester Stoneham Board who were present to receive medals were Government Appeal Agent Robert R. Elliott, former Government Appeal Agent Roland H. Parekr and James W. Haggerty, labor representative on one of the State Boards of Appeal.

Chairman Ralph H. Bonnell of the Selectmen expressed the thanks of the town to the Selective Service Board and its assistants, praising the members highly for arduous efforts faithfully performed over a long period. He also made the official presentation of the medals.

The Selective Service Medal which was awarded is of bronze suspended from a gold and blue ribbon. On the face of the medal is the seal of the Selective Service System, surrounded by the words, "Selective Service System World War II". On the obverse side of the medal are the words, "Awarded in the name of the Congress of the United States for faithful and loyal service". Accompanying the medal are a service ribbon and a small lapel bar. The medal is contained in a leather box with "Selective Service Medal" stamped in gold on the cover.

In addition to the medal, a handsomely engrossed Certificate of Merit in colors was issued, bearing the words, "In the name of the Congress of the United States there is issued herewith the Selective Service Medal to (John Doe) in appreciation of your loyal and faithful adherence to duty given voluntarily and without compensation to the impartial administration of the Selective Service System, the Government of these United States expresses its gratitude in this Public recognition of your patriotic services."

Attest: Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service.

Chairman Wilde spoke for the Selective Service Board, giving some interesting vital statistics which are published below. The connection with the Board's work meeting listened to Governor Tobins Selective Service Day address by means of a radio loudspeaker.

Mr. Wilde stated that the local board had up to Jan. 1, 5,286 registrants from Stoneham and Winchester under its jurisdiction. Their official records indicate that in spite of the fact that over 2,000 names are on the Winchester honor roll, which includes many men who did not come under the jurisdiction of the local board and all women in the armed forces, that 1,295 Winchester registrants are or have been in the armed forces, of which about 800 were inducted thru the Selective Service Board. Up to Jan. 1, 768 Winchester registrants have been discharged, certain transferred to an inactive status.

Prior to VE day about 800 of the registrants of the board, who were otherwise considered for military service, were carried in a deferred classification because of their occupation, and that of the registrants in the age bracket 18-25 inclusive, all of whom are considered for service in the armed forces, aside from about 150 registrants classified in 4F as physically unfit for military service, only 15 registrants are now in a deferred classification because of their occupation, 12 of whom are in the Merchant Marine service.

The board held 235 meetings between Oct. 16, 1940 and Jan. 1, 1946, many of which lasted in the late hours of the night, during which many personal appearances were made by registrants, their relatives, or employers and further, that the records of the board indicate 56 registrants, who were credited as being residents of Winchester at time of registration, are said to have been killed in action or died in service.

The board is continuing its activities in assisting and advising discharged veterans and is continuing each month the regular induction of registrants between 18-25 years of age inclusive into the Army.

BANK OF FRANCE

The French franc, newly legged at a value of about five-sixths of a cent, has fluttered forward for 32 years from a pre-World War I par value of 19.3 cents. Bulwark in the French Republic's critical fight to arrest inflation and hold the franc from further drop is the Bank of France.

Like the Bank of England, says a National Geographic Society bulletin, the almost equally renowned Bank of France has been a private joint-stock institution with government-assigned authority for issuing and regulating currency. Each has been its nation's "bankers' bank," subject to special government controls. In recent weeks, nationalization of the Bank of France has been ordered, and Britain's government is considering such a plan for the Bank of England.

Unlike the Bank of England, however, the Bank of France has not gradually withdrawn service for individual depositors. While carrying on its exclusive duty for issuing government-guaranteed banknotes, it spread its operations until in the 1930's it had 18 Paris branches, and offices or agents in more than 600 communities outside the capital.

Avoided Early Pitfalls

At the bank's inception in 1800, Napoleon's name led all the rest in the list of subscribers to the capital stock. Just as in modern times the bank's most important function has been to offset the effects of expensive wars on the nation's financial structure, its original purpose was to counteract the French Revolution's impairment of the national flow of funds for trade.

Benefiting from the experience of the Bank of England, founded 100 years earlier, the canny French bankers managed to avoid many of the early pitfalls that had bothered their English model. In general, their bank enjoyed a rather less hazardous existence throughout the 114 years preceding World War I. Its power to issue banknotes was extended on a limited basis in 1803 and was made national in 1848. Extended periodically, this power was due to expire December 31, 1945, but was recently renewed in the course of nationalization.

In 1812, the Bank of France moved into the historic Hotel de la Vrilliere, built early in the 17 century by Francois Mansard of Mansard roof fame. Today part of the original la Vrilliere mansion is incorporated in the huge building and annex northeast of the Palais-Royal that is headquarters of the bank.

Gold Stored Underground

For tourist visitors, the Galerie Doree (Gilded Gallery) was the bank's one attraction, exhibiting the decorator's art of the time of Louis XIV. Withheld from public view was the elaborate underground strong-room for the nation's huge gold reserve. It is a massive, thick-walled cubicle, covering a heavily fortified, two-acre area, extending down 80 feet. Among its defenses is a flooding system.

For many years prior to World War I, Paris was the ready money center of the world, and the Bank of France was the one institution able to arrange such cash payments in gold over the counter as $40,000,000 for the Panama Canal and $20,000,000 for the Philippine Islands.

Shortly before France's surrender to Germany in June, 1940, however, the bulk of the Bank of France's gold was shipped to the United States to keep it from falling to the Nazis. The underground fortress was not built to defy an enemy army of occupation.

TABRIZ

Tabriz, which has been capital of Iran's province of Azerbaijan, has now become the headquarters of the province's newly formed self-government. The ancient city, says the National Georgaphic Society, is only about 50 miles from the boundary of the Soviet constituent republics of Armenia and Azerbaijan which border Iran (Persia) on the northwest. Until 1826, Soviet Azerbaijan was part of Iran. After the conquest by Russia, the populace slowly became assimilated, some of the inhabitants, however, migrated to the Iranian provinces bearing the name of their country and speaking it.

Marco Polo, passing through Tabriz centuries ago, found it full of busy merchants and wealthy citizens. Situated on the route from India to Trabzon and Erzurum in Turkey, Tabriz was then the emporium of the East. With the building of the Suez Canal, caravans no longer had to take the long overland journey through Iran from India, and Tabriz lost its importance. Its population of 30,000 in ancient times, has risen to 219,000 today, although it is still Iran's second largest city.

It is said to have been founded A. D. 791 but it is mentioned A. D. 297 by the name of Tauris, as the capital of Tiridates III, king of Armenia. Since that time Tabriz has been conquered by Arabs, Seljuks, Turks, Mongols and Russians.

Nestles High Among Mountains

Situated on the banks of the Aji River, Tabriz is 4,000 feet above sea level. The elevated valley is surrounded by mountains on three sides. On the fourth is an extensive and fertile plain where fine fruit is grown. Overlooking the valley in which Tabriz lies is the volcanic cone of Sahand, 12,000 feet high. The city's climate is healthful although cold weather persists for four months of the year. The temperature varies between 6 and 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

Devasted many times by earthquakes, Tabriz has within its surveried brick walls many ruins, the most conspicuous being that of a one-year-old Citadel. The Kabud Masjid (Blue Mosque) is renowned for its beautiful tile faiences. The native quarter is a tangle of mud hovels and bazaars which line narrow, tortuous streets, some of which have been widened recently. Mules, horses, camels, porters and carts crowd one another for space. Unveiled women and men wearing clumsy-looking European clothes mingle with Iranians and Afghans in native costume. In the foreign quarter, the houses are large and beautiful with lovely gardens surrounding them.

Tabriz is an important center for the dried fruit and rug industries. Each year, rugs, fruit, leather, silks, skins and tea are exported in exchange for manufactured goods. Because of its industry Tabriz maintains a branch of the Imperial Bank of Irand and a local telephone service. A railroad connects Tabriz with the Soviet Caucasian system at Dzhulfa in Armenia. There are many good highways.

WINCHESTER SWAMPED CONCORD

Winchester High locked the door after the horse was stolen, and locked it in good fashion, last Friday evening at Concord, beating Concord High in a Middlesex League basketball game, 69-26. With Belmont, Lexington and Stoneham already having beaten the locals, the victory didn't do too much good.

Winchester led all the way, 14-6 at the quarter, 31-13 at the half and 49-15 with the last quarter coming up. Coach Knowlton had second stringers in action a lot of the time to keep the game within bounds.

Capt. Pat Patterson broke out of his scoring lethargy to tally 19 points, leading both teams. Spider Latham had 15, Sammy Tibaudo 13, and Jimmy Olivier 11. That's the sort of shooting Winchester ought to get in the objective games, but never does.

The Winchester seconds won the preliminary game by 10 points, 41-31. The varsity summary:

WINCHESTER WON FROM WAKEFIELD

Winchester High won its second straight Tuesday afternoon, beating Wakefield in a Middlesex League game in the local gymnasium, 41-37. The Winchester seconds won a hotly contested preliminary game, 28-26.

The locals had to come from behind to win the varsity contest, though Wakefield at no time had a commanding lead. Winchester led at the quarter 11-8, but trailed at the half, 20-21, and were behind another thin point at the three-quarter mark, 30-31. Outscoring the visitors, 11-6 in the final period gave Winchester the ball game.

BOYS CAUGHT TAMPERING WITH LIFE-SAVING LADDER

Early Saturday afternoon Police Headquarters was notified that boys had thrown the life-saving ladder kept on the island at the Mill Pond into the water.

Sgt. Thomas F. Cassidy got to the Pond in time to catch the boys, 4 Symmes Corner youngster, the oldest 12 and the youngest, 10 years. They were taken to Headquarters where Chief William H. Roger gave them a severe lecture before sending them home to tell their parents of the escapade.

EXTRACTS FROM THE REPORT OF THE WATER AND SEWER BOARD FOR 1945

This year no serious problems confronted the department. The necessary maintenance work has been carried on. There still remain many things that should be done to the plant in order to keep it in good repair. The main gates at the reservoirs must soon be replaced. The gates at the North Reservoir were installed in 1873 and those at the South Reservoir in 1890. They are in such condition they cannot be operated. We are depending on the pipe line gates to shut off the reservoirs. New gates must be installed and the pipe line through the dams cleaned in the very near future. This is a major operation and will entail a large expense.

The West High Service, supplying that part of the town west of Cambridge street, is now receiving its water from the new standpipe of the Metropolitan District Water Supply Division in Arlington.

The old cement tank has been abandoned on account of its condition.

We reported last year that the West High Service tank was in very bad condition, that it had been repaired a number of times and was disintegrating very rapidly. It is not large enough to supply the future demands on that part of the system. A new steel tank of much larger capacity and height would have to be installed. We requested an inspection by the Engineering Division of the State Department of Health and they reported as follows:

Massachusetts State Department Of Public Health
October 26, 1945

Water and Sewer Board
Town Hall
Winchester, Mass.
Gentlemen:

In response to the request contained in your letter of October 9, 1945, the Department of Public Health has caused the water supply of the town of Winchester to be examined with particular reference to the storage facilities at the West Side High Service Standpipe.

The examination showed that this tank was constructed of reinforced concrete in the year 1912, 29 feet in diameter and about 40 feet high. The wall thickness varies from 28 inches at the bottom to approximately 14 inches at the top. The Department is informed that for the past few years trouble has been experienced with the deterioration of the quality of the water supplied because of the chipping off of concrete on the inside near the base of the standpipe. The deterioration has resulted also in a considerable amount of chipping on the outside of the standpipe to the extent that some of the reinforcing bars have been exposed, permitting the water in the standpipe to seep through the weakened concrete in a number of points.

In the opinion of the Department, this standpipe is in such a condition that it is in danger of rupturing, in which case a considerable population in the vicinity of High and Arlington streets would be without water.

The Department recommends that to avoid such a possibility you consider the repair or replacement of this standpipe without delay or that you arrange for a supply of water for this section of the town by some other means. In the opinion of the Department, this situation may be considered of an emergency nature.

The Department is of the opinion that in this matter time is of the essence since the coming winter season is likely to considerably increase the rate of deterioration of the concrete.

Respectfully,
(Signed) Vlado A. Getting,
Commissioner

On Turkey Hill in Arlington, near the Winchester line, there has been erected a new 2,000,000 gallon tank for the Metropolitan District Commission. On making inquiries we found that the Town could purchase water from the Metropolitan District Commission for the West High Service for $40 per million gallons. It now costs the Town for pumping and other expenses about $60 per million gallons. The saving by purchasing water from the State would be about $20 per million gallons, besides the building of a new tank which would cost about $30,000. Under the new law enacted in 1945 by the legislature the entrance fee to the Metropolitan System was done away with if a town or city takes its entire water supply from the Metropolitan. But, if only a part of the supply is taken a small entrance fee, based on the valuation of the district served, acts as a service charge.

In the case of Winchester it would be $4,500. We are very fortunate in having a large pipe line within 500 feet of the Metropolitan supply which could be connected to this supply at a very small cost. After consultation with the Finance Committee we all agreed that it was the wise thing for the Town to make this connection and purchase the water for this district, thus saving a large investment by the town. The Town of Arlington was ready to rebuild the street in which the main would be located and it seemed best to the Water Board and the Finance Committee that this pipe be laid before the street was resurfaced, thus saving quite a sum of money. The Water Board has connected our system to the Metropolitan system. We wish to thank the Finance Committee for their very careful consideration of this problem and for their advice. A large part of the future development of Winchester will come in the district served by this new supply and we are now ready to take care of any additional load. We will still maintain our pumping equipment so we may return to our old supply if for any reason it seems wise.

We have recently passed through a very dry weather cycle and the auxiliary water supply more than justified our recommendations for its installation. We now appear to be in a wet cycle. The auxiliary plant was shut down in February and we do not anticipate having to use it for some time as the reservoirs are very full for this time of year and we expect that they will overflow in the spring, which has not happened since 1939.

We must carry on a program of cleaning water mains some of which are very old. In this way the present mains will be adequate for some time and will increase the supply for fire protection. The Forest street main from Highland avenue to the Stoneham line was cleaned this summer with good results.

We have been able to replace one automobile with a new one, much to the advantage of the repair account and the efficiency of the department. Others must be replaced as soon as possible.

Much needed repairs, both inside and outside, were made at the Superintendent's house.

Some new housing developments have started during the year and it now looks as if we would be called upon to supply quite a number of new houses with both water and sewer.

There were no unpaid water bills on Dec. 31. A cash profit of $12,500.81 was made for the year 1945, in addition to providing free care and water for 430 town fire hydrants and water for all town buildings.

At the annual Town Meeting in March the Town voted to pay a bonus to its employees of 2½ per cent up to $500 for the year. The total amount paid to Water and Sewer Department employees was $1,382.54. This was added compensation to the regular wages to cover the increased cost of living. The amount was paid out of a special appropriation for bonuses and not a departmental appropriation.

Four of our men who joined the Army have returned to work suffering no casualties, for which we give thanks. The department has been handicapped for the services of these men. We now hope to carry on in a normal way.

Respectfully submitted,
Water and Sewer Board

The Star reporter chanced to be chatting with a man on Wednesday who the day previous had driven up through New Hampshire into New York State. He found the roads in fine shape, well plowed and sanded, and was interested in the method they used in plowing many of the places he went through. They plowed toward the center of the streets, making two lanes, after which the snow loader goes down the middle of the street clearing out the dividing wall. This of course does not throw all the heavy snow into the gutters, across driveways, etc., a procedure which causes even the lowest blood-pressure to rise into the danger bracket, particularly after the second shoveling. We of course do not know whether such procedure would work here. Perhaps our streets are too narrow, or we do not have enough snow-loaders, or trucks, or men, or something. We would however be inclined to favor any method of plowing which does not turn into a solid wall of snow across the entrance to the drive we have just ruined our back to shovel.

The town welcomes back to his high school principalship Col. Wade L. Grindle, who left his post in the early spring of 1942 to serve his country in the armed forces. He has been an able principal and a citizen whose activities have by no means been limited to his school duties. It is nice to have him back. Meanwhile the thanks of the community are due Samuel M. Graves, who has filled the difficult post of interim principal. Sam, too, has done a good job in trying times under conditions which have affected schools as they have every thing else. His discharge of the principal's duties has been such as to vindicate the judgment of the school committee members who selected him to carry on in Col. Grindle's absence. It is reassuring to know that our school system has in its ranks men who can satisfactorily accept higher executive responsibility.

WHY NOT LIFT THE PLOWS

Many people are asking why the snow plows are not lifted when walks and cross streets are encountered. It does little good to shovel or plow a path and then fill it in at its entrance so that, while one can see a clear space beyond, it cannot be reached because of the snowy barrier. Private drives and paths are the same. No sooner are they are shoveled out, along comes a plow and fills them in. With the freezing rain which followed Monday's storm making these barriers great icy mounds, householders have a greater job clearing their entrances than shoveling the whole stretch. Perhaps someone will give orders to lift the plows at paths, drives and cross streets.

SOMETHING SHOULD BE DONE

Winchester, Jan. 22, 1946
To the Editor of the Star:

The enclosed letter came to me and having asked and received the writer's permission I pass it along to you for publication or not as you see fit.

Sincerely yours,
J. L. Munro

Jan. 22, 1946

Dear Mr. Munro:

Two weeks ago you had a letter in the Star, the burden of which was that the country is in bad shape and that something should be done about it.

You're darned right something should be done. I just finished four and a half years in service; 54 long, long months. I make no claim to be a "spokesman" for the G. I., and I don't want to sound like a professional veteran, but what I have to tell you is my own opinion. I'll bet plenty of ex-soldiers feel the same way.

The country's in a mess. When the plain, average citizen finds himself in a situation where a handful of selfish men can deprive him of the goods and services which are his public right; when the plain, average citizen has to stand by helplessly while these same few selfish men determine whether this great, wonderful country shall be prosperous or broke; when the plain, average citizen, in whose name this country is run, cannot demand and get from his government the strong, impartial leadership that the present situation demands—then, by all that's holy, the country's in a mess and something had better be done.

There's one way to resolve an intolerable situation—and that's the way that very few in this country want: some strong-boy is liable to appear and claim to know all the answers. He won't look like Hitler. He won't talk like Hitler. He won't even smell like a dictator. He'll have the American flag wrapped around him three folds deep, and he'll sound like a real, down-to-earth American, b'gosh. All he'll want to get us out of an intolerable situation is for us to give up "temporarily"—a few of our rights.

And if we allow a character like that to solve a problem in that way, we'll end up with as much freedom as a blind man in a locked cellar.

There's a better way than that. There's an American way, and you mentioned it in your letter. Let's get the plain, average citizens off their butts. They're the MAJORITY in this country, and if they'd stop standing and griping and allow themselves to be inspired and cramped up and realize that if they got off their comfortable behinds and got together, there could be some very plain noises that Washington could hear without any trouble.

A lot of ex-servicemen are now plain, average citizens. We've been out of touch with politics for a long time—but we're willing to learn. And speaking as an individual, I'd like to join any group of citizens whose aim is to begin shouting—loudly, reasonably, and logically—that the government of the United States, which is the servant of the people of the United States, stop compromising with the welfare of the majority of the people, and get this country started toward the kind of peace and prosperity we all want.

If there's a movement of this kind started, tell the Star to keep it going. There are plenty of people who don't want to be pushed around, and it's time they got together.

WHO OWNS WHAT?

President Truman, in trying to force profits already earned by General Motors to be turned over to them workers as increased wages, has set out on a revolutionary course—more so than anything proposed by Mr. Roosevelt. It is a threat against the private ownership of property.

Congress could not levy a special tax on the profits of General Motors for the purpose of handing them over to the employees. All taxes must go into the public treasury for public purposes only. What right, then, has the President to use the authority of his great office to force the distribution of profits to workers? Can he, or his fact-finding boards, do what Congress itself is forbidden to do by the Constitution?

"This is a government of law, and not of men . . . It must never be forgotten that such a government . . . with all its reach and powers must . . . stop at the boundaries of the uncompensated taking . . . of private property legally acquired and held." (Regan v. Trust Company, 154 U. S. 362).

Our government has no legal power to tax, or seize profits in order to distribute them to private persons. Power, so prostituted, ceases to be taxation and becomes plunder. This is not a Robin Hood government as long as the Constitution stands.

Anyone can share in corporate profits by buying stock. Nothing prevents him. Or management and men may enter into voluntary profit-sharing agreements. There are many such. Some have worked successfully; others have not.

In the case of General Motors, however, there is no profit-sharing agreement. The collective bargaining contract between General Motors and the United Auto Workers calls for no payments whatever other than the wages agreed upon, which were the highest in automotive history. Nor is it to be overlooked that organized labor always has been hostile to profit-sharing agreements.

There can be no question whatever as to whom profits, if any, belong. Unless there is a profit-sharing agreement they belong to the owners, exclusively. Whether the owner is the village blacksmith or a partnership, or a corporation with its stockholders. That has been "the law of the land" for centuries. Workers have no more right to seize profits, than owners have to seize wages.

The sovereign power of government may be used, of course, to tax profits, as income, in order to support the government. But the United Automobile Workers CIO is not the government, nor is it the Congress. Not yet! Nor is Mr. Truman trying to enrich the treasury of the United States. He is trying to force the distribution of profits to employees which are the property of General Motors or its stockholders.

If he can do that to the stockholders of General Motors, he can take my property and give it to you, or take your property and give it to me. He can, with no better right, force a thrifty workingman who owns his home to turn over one or more rooms, rent free, to anyone Mr. Truman designates. He can require wage differentials to be abolished, and force all workers, skilled and unskilled, sober or drunk, worker or loafer, to take equal pay, as the Russian Communists started to do. He can take seniority rights from some workers and give them to others.

Mr. Truman has been badly advised. If he persists, he raises a question of transcendant importance. If he succeeds in doing what Congress itself cannot lawfully do under the Constitution, no one's property is any longer safe in this country.

The forcible socialization of profits is just one step short of the socialization of private property in America. That is the basic issue in this case.

TOWN ENGINEER REPORTS ON SHORE ROAD FIELD

Jan. 14, 1946

Board of Selectmen
Winchester, Mass.
Gentlemen:

In compliance with your request of Dec. 3, 1945 to make a survey of Shore Road Field for the purpose of determining whether or not it could be put in condition and maintained for an athletic field, I report as follows:

The area now known as Shore Road Field was part of the Whitney land purchased by the town about 1912 which at that time was part of Judkins Pond or commonly known as Black Ball Pond.

About 1914 the town started using this area for a dump for waste material of every description and continued this use through to sometime in 1934. In the fall of 1933, during the depression, the Town of Winchester started their first Federal Project under C. W. A.—E. R. A.—W. P. A. filling and grading of the playground area and excavation of the pond area were carried on until the end of 1936 and in 1937 the playground was completed. Since 1936 to date surplus material from various sources has been used in filling in portions of the playground area.

In 1934, a chain link fence was erected to enclose the playground area and facilitate the grading work. I voiced my opinion at that time in opposition to the erection of the fence and the finishing of the final grading in the belief that the playground area would settle.

In 1935, at the beginning of the Federal Projects the engineering department made a cross-section survey and plan of the whole area and established a grade for the playground area and in November 1945 levels were taken, identical with one of the original cross-sections. These levels showed settlement below the finished grade throughout the entire section and approximately half of the section, the settlement was below the elevations taken in 1935. The maximum settlement in the 10 year period was two feet or more in this section. Levels taken by the engineering department for Mr. Terzaghi during the last few years indicate that this settling is still going on.

The Metropolitan Sewerage Board in 1942 made borings throughout this area in determining a foundation for the construction of a sewer. These borings show a depth of mud ranging from a few feet up to 85 feet below the water surface of Judkins Pond. The Metropolitan Sewerage Board located and constructed their sewer on the east and north sides of Judkins Pond and used piles ranging from 15 to 30 feet in length for foundation.

In view of the foregoing facts and conditions as stated above, to restore the field to proper grade together with the necessity of regrading every few years because the playground area is still in process of subsiding, I am of the opinion that the field cannot be put in a stable condition and maintained as such.

Very truly yours,
Parker Holbrook,
Town Engineer

The evidence seems to be all in now, the Board of Selectmen having finally heard from the town engineer about the Shore Road Athletic Field. Mr. Holbrook's opinion follows the report of Terzaghi and Mr. Frew and agrees with them, that the Shore road field is not the place to locate a permanent athletic plant. Some people seem to fee, Mr. Byrne among them, that a letter right in the face of Mr. Holbrook's opinion and advice had been sought a lot further back in the game.

PLANNING BOARD LOOKS TO FUTURE

The Star is indebted to Mr. William L. Parsons of the Planning Board for an advance copy of the report which the Planning Board has submitted for publication in the annual town report. It is interesting reading and indicates that the Board has given careful consideration to town development in the immediate years to come.

In the report the Board reiterates its preference for elevating the railroad tracks through town, as a means of eliminating the grade crossing in the center. It further feels that all speed possible should be made toward the grade crossing abolition since other and large-scale public developments and improvements can, and probably will be definitely affected by the form of abolition finally decided upon.

Some of the public improvements visualized in the six-year planning program are arterial highways at Cross street, Pond street, Hutchinson road, Johnson road, High street and Horn Pond road, at an estimated total cost of $99,000.00; additions and additions to the town yard, $40,000.00; addition to junior high school, $495,000.00; elementary school building, Emerson road, west side, $225,000.00; addition to Mystic and Washington schools, $50,000 each; west side playground construction, $20,000.00; Middlesex street playground construction, $22,000.00; building for Park Dept. Headquarters, $25,000.00; addition to library building, $125,000.00; and the purchase of an aerial ladder for the Fire Dept., $18,500.00.

Projects for the future, beyond the six year bracket, are an indoor recreation building, $90,000.; a branch library on the west side, $80,000.00; and a new town hall or auditorium, $100,000.00.

In discussing these and other proposed improvements the Planning Board does not believe that its program can be carried out with a tax rate of $27.20. It has based its planning program on a rate of $30.00, commencing this year. It will also be necessary to draw upon the town's excess and deficiency fund and upon the post war reserve set aside under Chapter 5 of the Acts of 1941. This fund now amounts to $400,000.00, and the excess and deficiency fund, to $302,818.00.

Other matters which have received the Board's attention are the further development of the town and certain alterations to the zoning map.

Developing the civic center, it is proposed this year to construct a traffic circle at the intersection of Washington street and the Parkway and to widen Washington street between the Parkway and Main street. The Board points out that a single house only remains to be required to complete the plan for enlargement and beautification of the high school lot.

After considering the possibility of locating an air landing field in Winchester and securing professional advice, it appears that there is no suitable site. The Board seems not prepared to regret.

The principal change in the Zoning map proposes to place in single residence land on both sides of Washington street north of Forest street, now classified in general residence.

Besides Chairman Parsons and Frank L. Rowe, secretary, the members of the Planning Board include Arthur W. Dean, Frederick S. Hatch and Harris S. Richardson.

NEED OF ACTIVE COMMUNITY INTEREST

To the Editor of the Star:

Your editorial of last week emphasized the need of an active community interest in school problems and a strong School Committee. It also implied the desirability of a change from time to time in membership of this and other important Town boards. With these objectives I heartily agree.

It may be, however, that some of your readers will assume, in spite of your careful wording that there was also an indirect criticism of present school committee candidates. It is with this possibility in mind that I should like to explain my own reasons for seeking re-election.

In the case of the School Committee, it has been a common practice to serve six years rather than three. The consensus seems to be that while two 3-year terms are enough, a single term has its disadvantages. In dealing with its important problems, the Committee obviously benefits from the experience of members who have had more than one or two years of service. If, as I believe, this reasoning has merit, it applies with particular force in the present situation. It is on this basis that I have agreed to serve, if elected, for a second term.

Probably this is not the place to speak at length about qualifications or educational theories. I have thought, however, that as an interested citizen with three children in the public schools and with a background of six years of varied teaching experience I might make some contribution.

It has seemed to me that a committee member should be sufficiently intelligent and open-minded to recognize the relative soundness of various educational methods whether they be labeled progressive or old-fashioned. It has been my ambition to represent the entire Town rather than any single group of voters. Finally, since the school system with a $400,000 budget is in part a business enterprise, I have tried to use practical judgment in thinking of our problems as related to those of other town departments and the ability of our community to pay for the improvements which we all desire. Stated briefly, this is still my "platform."

With these facts made clear, I shall be glad to leave to the good judgment of Winchester voters the question how many other candidates they should consider and for whom they should finally vote. There is, as you have suggested, much still to be done and the Committee, however comprised, will need the interest and support of all our citizens.

Very truly yours,
Hazen H. Ayer

GOVERNMENT OF LAWS OR MEN, THE ISSUE

To the Editor of the Star:

In your edition of The Winchester Star of Jan. 11, 1946, were two letters from John L. Munro of this town. The two together made for long reading but I was one who read them completely.

These letters have in them a vital note for the "American Way of Life." Each and every one of us who resides in this town, yes State and Nation, is fighting to carry on in these days of organized minorities which organizations have fostered by propaganda, and in some instances by untruths, rules, regulations and even laws which are definitely for minority interests under the guise of taking care of the "General Welfare."

Mr. Munro has hit upon an idea that is practical, vital and necessary for the continuation of our constitutional form of government which is supposed to be established as government of laws and not of men. But all of us are not interesting ourselves in the problems of our government and not offering our combined efforts, assistance, ideas, and yes, even demands upon our Federal and State Representatives. If we expect our Senators and Representatives to represent our interests, they must be informed definitely and with no uncertainty as to our wishes. Likewise, if our Senator or Representative is not forthright in his or her position on the matters, he or she should be given a chance to so state. His or her position specifically and not in general platitudes and evasive phrases. Then if he or she does not represent the interests for which he or she has been elected, the opportunity for change is still permitted by the ballot—our sacred right. To bring this about by constructive means, a "Grass Root" movement must be organized and started now in this town as well as in the other towns and cities of this State and Nation.

The greatest known force for good—capitalism—and a small organized minority of the country known as organized labor, have now joined in battle. The "General Welfare" of the Nation, which includes all of us, is now definitely being affected.

Do we want a government of laws - laws representing the majority of this country, or dictatorship in any one of its various political theories?

Let your Senator and Representative know your position by letters to them and to The Winchester Star, your Boston paper, or other publication. This will stimulate thought and action on the part of all of us.

The time is here for every good citizen to come to the aid of his country. Don't forget the organized minorities are letting their Senators and Representatives know what they want. How is your Senator or Representative to know what your position is and what your demands of him or her are for constructive action for the "General Welfare" and the "American Way of Life", which is "Free Enterprise" for all, unless you write him or her, demand an accounting and organize for that purpose?

In closing, Mr. Editor, I hope you will permit these open letters to be printed in a "Forum" or other space for discussion of the problems, conditions and constructive criticism.

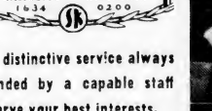

Yours very truly,
James M. Joslin

MELROSE HERE TONIGHT

Winchester vs Belmont at Boston Garden Next Week

Winchester faces one of the top teams of the Middlesex League tonight when Melrose High comes to the local gymnasium for a league engagement, first and second teams, commencing at 7:30. Melrose seems definitely one of the teams to beat for league honors this season and Tuesday after noon beat Reading 11 points.

Winchester has been getting some better distributed scoring in its past two games, and if more than one local player can get into the double figures tonight, the locals can bother Melrose. Winchester's trouble against the good teams has been that only one boy has been doing any shooting at a time. You can't win games with only one player sinking them.

The local engagements next week include Lexington Tuesday at Winchester and Belmont at the Boston Garden Thursday night.

Playing in the Garden will be quite an experience for the local performer, and it will be interesting to see how they react. The Winchester team that played in the Tufts tournament a few years back made a sorry showing against a team they would have beaten during the regular season.

At that time however most of the boys either were sick with flu or just getting back on their feet after bouts with this enervating illness. Here's hoping they are rugged next Thursday.

Winchester and Belmont played a nice game at Belmont early in the season. The locals lost, but felt they could beat Belmont next time. Next Thursday is it. A win at the Garden would be nice!

CLOTHING DONATIONS LAG

The committee in charge of the "Victory Clothing Collection" announce that thus far donations have been disappointing. While some articles have been received, nothing like that amount which might be anticipated has shown up.

Winchester people are urged to make their donations and keep this town in its proper place in the drive.

Donations of clothing, shoes and bedding may be left at the Post Office, the Fire Station or at the Edison Shop.

NORTHWEST TERRITORIES

Concern of the Canadian and United States governments to provide joint defense measures in the Artic regions raises questions for ground and air forces. Operations have been planned to determine whether troops can be supplied by planes and to learn more about the weather, the terrain, and the performance of men and equipment.

The field of these experiments is Canada's Northwest Territories. This vast region, says the National Geographic Society, almost spans the Dominion, extending from Baffin Bay and Davis Strait on the Atlantic side to the Yukon Territory on the west. The Northwest Territory includes the districts of Mackenzie, Keewatin, and Franklin. Franklin District comprises several islands, among them Victoria, Prince of Wales, Somerset, and Baffin.

Rich In Land, Poor In People

Lying between the Artic Ocean and the northern boundaries of the provinces of British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba, this gigantic sweep of land and water accounts for more than a third of Canada's area. On its more than a million square miles live some 11,000 people, mostly Eskimos and Indians — an average of one person to 116 square miles. "Centers of population" in northern Canada signify trading posts, missions, police barracks, military stations, and Eskimo and Indian villages.

Civilization has made Eskimos and Indians less inclined to volunteer their services, less receptive to pay for mental work. Some Eskimos have developed large-scale trading stations, and pay the Dominion Government substantial income taxes. Eskimos are usually more friendly than Indians. Penetration of the white man has improved far-northern diets. The larger trading posts stock California canned fruits and tinned delicacies from England. Before the war fresh oranges and bananas were no longer regarded as curiosities.

From the highlands of the Strikine, Mackenzie, Ogilvie, and Richardson ranges in the west, northern Canada levels off into an area which is the northern extension of the continent's great interior plain. Farther to the east are the broad stretches of the Laurentian Upland or Canadian Shield, a treeless tract broken by the wide expanse of Hudson Bay. The breadth of this land belt is indicated by the fact that it includes five time zones. When it is 8 a. m. in the east it is only 4 a. m. in the west.

The land is seamed by many streams. Biggest of all is the 1,100-mile Mackenzie, flowing into the Beaufort Sea through four main outlets. From mid-June to late October the river is open to navigation. Lakes are numerous and sizable. The area of Great Bear Lake is larger than that of Massachusetts.

Winter with its ice and snow comes in October, lasts into May. Temperature readings along Canada's deeply-notched Arctic coast show a January average of 20 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. July averages range from 40 degrees at Isachsen to 0 degrees on the mainland. Below the Arctic Circle to about the 60th degree of latitude the January average is 30 degrees, and the July average approximately 60 degrees.

Rainfall on the coastal strip and near-by islands amounts to less than 10 inches a year. South of the Arctic Circle, with some exceptions, the annual precipitation totals between 10 and 30 inches.

Railways and roads are virtually non-existent in the Northwest Territories. The course of settlement has moved over hunting trails, trappers' routes, and along navigable lakes and streams. The Hudson's Bay Company operates a fleet of river steamers to supply its trading posts. Airplane services are available in some parts of the Territories.

Nature Is Filled With Tricks

Natural resources in considerable variety are scattered over the region. Uranium and radium distinguish the mineral wealth. Silver, lead, zinc, and copper are mined. Some gold is found. Oil is brought up in commercial quantities. The timber line extends from the southern-most part of Hudson Bay northwestward to Great Bear Lake. Spruce grows the farthest north. Willows and larch trees line river banks.

Furs — fox, mink, marten, and muskrat — are a regular stock in trade. Conservation of wild life has been assured through game preserves, among them refuges for musk oxen, reindeer and caribou.

Outlanders in this northern country find Nature somewhat puzzling. At high altitudes, for example, , the air is warmer instead of colder. T hereason is that air heated in the Tropics, rises, moves toward the poles, and sinks to the earth's surface when cooled. This cycle completed, it flows back toward the Equator.

In December, January, and February, the Arctic full moon is continuously above the horizon for 24 hours a day. Because the air is free from dust and the snow reflects the light so well, it is possible to read a newspaper by moonlight. At Coppermine, a coastal town at the mouth of the Coppermine River, the sun may be seen day and night from May 28 to July 17, if the weather is clear. The nearer the North Pole, the longer the annual period of continuous sunlight.

Radio direction equipment and compasses may perform erratically owing to interference from the North Magnetic Pole. Located on Boothia Peninsula according to most maps, the magnetic pole was found to lie in the Sverdrup Islands by a 1945 flight party of British explorers.

BOOKS IN THE NEWS

SEVENTEEN years ago a sports writer in Berlin, who was covering a six-day bicycle race, mentioned to his fellow reporters that he had just written a novel about the war. His friends threw up their hands; nobody wants to read a war book, they said. But that war book sold more than a million copies in Germany alone, became an international best-seller, and was made into one of the most successful movies ever produced. The book was "All Quiet on the Western Front" and the sports writer was Erich Maria Remarque.

Remarque earned his success the hard way. Drafted into the Kaiser's army at 18, he was wounded five times. In the economic chaos that followed the war, he tried practically everything to keep going; he taught school, worked on newspapers, was a test driver for a tire company; at one time he even played the organ in an insane asylum.

The Nazis hated Remarque. They burned his books, took away his citizenship. The author became a refugee, one of the people he writes about in his new novel, "Arch of Triumph."

"Arch of Triumph," like "All Quiet on the Western Front," is a Book-of-the-Month Club selection, and, like its predecessor, is slated for the best-seller lists and for the films. Remarque is now living in New York and is due to become a U. S. citizen this year.

TURKEY TROT

It's some years now since the "Turkey Trot" was a popular number for the more rugged dance devotees, but early last Saturday morning a real live turkey and a dog put on a dance number up around Salem street that for rapid action was better than anything put on under this heading even in the "good old days."

Mary F. Kinnane of 58 Salem street was awakened last Saturday by the crash of glass at the rear of the house and by vague sounds of something moving around the kitchen in more or less of a hurry. Mrs. Kinnane went out to investigate and found her premises occupied by a turkey, who working on the philosophy of any port in a storm, had flown through her pantry window, without the formality of putting down the sash. The turkey was being chased by a dog and hadn't had time to be too particular.

Mrs. Kinnane assisted the bird outdoors with a broom, and then notified the Police, being afraid the dog would get after the bird again, this time with better results. Also, would the Police have the owner of the bird do something about her broken window?

Officer John J. Murray was sent to investigate, and found the turkey was owned by Mrs. Margaret McHugh of Clark street. It was safe and sound in the family pen, having apparently returned home after its perigrinations. Mrs. McHugh regretted the broken Kinnane window and said that she would see it was replaced.

So every one was happy, except the dog, that when you get right down to it was responsible for the whole commotion.

PRINTS BY FRANCIS E. GETTY

In The Winchester Public Library

Residents of Winchester who knew Mr. Francis E. Getty will be glad to hear that the Library Trustees have been so fortunate as to secure a number of copies, ten in all, of his sketches of typical Boston scenes. The sketches are to be designated as the "Francis E. Getty Collection" and have been placed in the Veterans' Room in the Library.

Inasmuch as Mr. Getty was one of the finest and most charming men who ever lived in Winchester, and one of the best of neighbors, his friends will be greatly pleased to have these prints of his permanently in the Library where all may see and enjoy them.

MR. SYMMES SPOKE ON BEES

Gave Interesting Address to M. S. P. C. A.

The January meeting of the Winchester S. P. C. A. Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. William N. Beggs.

Mr. Arthur H. Bryer, who has charge of the Winchester Shelter, reported his year's work as follows: 616 animals and birds were cared for at the Shelter, 95 were inspected, and 80 received ho-pital treatment; there were 490 ambulance trips, with a mileage of 3,625. This area extends to Wilmington, Lexington, and Billerica. It was a year of intensive work, with excellent co-operation among all.

Mr. Marshall W. Symmes gave a very interesting talk on "My Temperamental Pets the Bees." Mr. Symmes makes a hobby of keeping bees, and the service they have rendered him and his family in the form of honey, especially in these days of sugar scarcity, may well be appreciated. The idea occurred to him during the first world war. There was a sugar shortage at that time. He was having a cup of cocoa in a little French restaurant and found to his surprise that it was quite sweet. Upon inquiry he learned that the owner kept bees and that the cocoa was sweetened with honey. He thereupon determined when he returned to America to keep bees, in the event of another war and a sugar shortage.

There were no honey bees in either the North or South American continent when Columbus landed, however the bee industry dates back some 4,000 years. There are two kinds of honey bees at work for us here, namely, the Italian bee, which is the tamest and hardest worker, and the German bee, which is big and black and has a bad disposition. These have been crossed in order to obtain qualities of both types.

Bees are shipped to Mr. Symmes from the deep South, and they immediately go to work upon being placed in their hives. A good hive produces about 100 pounds of honey a year. Bees hatch out five or six days after the eggs are laid, and it is possible to start with 10,000 bees and increase them to 100,000. They are sluggish in winter, coming out just once during the season.

The beehive is one of the best communities in the world, for there is co-operation in every direction. The queen is the "boss." Some queens are smart, others are lazy, some may be orderly, and so on. If a queen is not satisfactory, she is ousted; another can easily be purchased to replace her. She divides the colony into many groups, each group having its own specific work to do. Some supervise traffic, others keep the hive clean and orderly, and there is the "medical board" which attends to the health and well being of the bees. There is also a guard which stands at the entrance of the hive and who will pounce on any undesirable intruder. They are afraid of nothing, except thunder and fire, and will fight anything that attacks or tries to penetrate the hive. There are a few hundred drones; the others are workers or neuters, and they must work to live.

A bee has a keen sense of direction. He can find his way home at a distance of five miles from the hive; and he always recognizes his own hive. But this sense disappears in about 24 hours. After moving a hive it is wise to close it up for 48 hours, to prevent the bees from returning to their previous location. Honey may be obtained within a radius of several miles from the hive.

DR. WIENER ADDRESSES MEN'S CLUB

"Social Implications of Recent Developments in the Field of Science" was the subject of an address to the Men's Club of the First Congregational Church on Thursday evening, Jan. 17.

The speaker was Dr. Norbert Wiener, Professor of Mathematics at Mass. Institute of Technology, and one of our foremost mathematicians. He has worked with other leading scientists in his own and allied fields on problems of vital importance to the Army and Navy during the war.

Dr. Wiener reviewed the scientific developments which led to the Industrial Revolution and the changes in life conditions for all resulting from it. From the middle of the past century up to the present time, he said, the trend has been to place more and more of the problems of coping with our material environment to automatic mechanical processes. As examples of the degree to which automata have been perfected, he explained the amazing feats of modern calculating machines and fire control mechanisms of airplanes. These, it seems, are not only able to perform routine processes, but can also meet foreseen emergencies as they arise, and cope with them with a precision impossible by human control.

Dr. Wiener believes that, aside from its destructiveness, atomic energy has great potentialities for the benefit of society, but that these will come largely through centralized production, rather than through general use.

Probable results to society from recent scientific developments were discussed by the speaker, particularly changes in industrial production and employment which seem inevitable, and present many problems of readjustment.

Following his address, Dr. Wiener answered many questions asked by the group.

WINCHESTER BETTER HOMES GARDEN CLUB

On Thursday, Jan. 17, a delightful afternoon at the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum was arranged by Mrs. Austin Bunker, president of the Winchester Better Homes Garden Club and her efficient committee. A group of over 80 members and friends of the club were in the party.

The beautiful court of the palace with its marble statues and fountain was gay with yellow and white chrysanthemums, cyclamen in colors from deep rose to pale pin kand white, and tall stalks of heavenly blue colens of an unusual variety. From windows above and in other unexpected vistas, drooped the lacy, graceful acacia.

The group broke up into smaller ones and these were guided through the museum until 2.45, when all were ushered into the spacious tapestry room. There they were seated facing a huge fireplace with a cheery fire to greet them. For half an hour they listened to a program of piano numbers and songs, by two young artists.

After the concert the party progressed through other rooms of the palace, pausing before the portrait of Mrs. Gardner. It seemed as though each one should say "thank you" to her for such a place of interest and inspiration.

The "tea" in the Dutch Room climaxed the afternoon at 4.10. Mrs. Norman Mitchell and Mrs. Alonzo Woodside poured at the long table and a variety of delectable sandwiches and cakes were served.

GRADE SCHOOLS TO HAVE BANDS

Superintendent Announces

School bands are being formed in each of Winchester's elementary schools, Supt. Forbes Norris said today. Any child in grades 4, 5, or 6 who has musical talent and whose parents are willing to furnish an instrument is eligible to become a member of the school band.

Band members will be taught to play by Mr. Fred Felmet, former band director in the public schools of Richmond, Va. and former member of the North Carolina and Charleston, S. C. Symphony Orchestrs, who is now giving musical aptitude tests to grade school children. Over 200 students have asked to be given these tests.

There are several instances of talented children whose parents are willing to buy an instrument but who have been unable to find a suitable instrument for sale.

If you have a cornet, trumpet, alto horn, French Horn, trombone, baritone horn, flute, oboe, clarinet, saxaphone, or bassoon that is made in standard (A-440) pitch (most instruments made in the United States during the last 20 years are built in standard pitch), you may be able to help get the school bands started. If you wish to sell the instrument, Mr. Felmet will be glad to state what he considers a fair price, estimate the cost of repairs and put you in touch with a prospective buyer. He will be at the school superintendent's office, Win. 1780, from 9 to 10 each morning next week.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

On Jan. 14 the Fortnightly met at the Congregational Church parish house. They were delightfully entertained by Prof. Dirk Jon Struik who spoke on "The Dilemma of Poland."

His talk was on the Old Poland and the new and explained that the "Land Reform" whereby the landed estates consisting of several hundred acres are to be divided into 12 acre lots for a family. This would bring cultivation of the farms and a paying occupation to a large number of the peasants.

The Dancers, Misses Bourgnani and Aroff and their pianist Madam Dumas were in their native costumes and were greatly enjoyed. They performed dances of many countries and were colorful and gay.

Regular Meeting

Jan. 28 at the Congregational parish house. There will be a talk by Marion I. Rudkin on "Books and You." Coffee will be served at 1 o'clock. Hostess, Mrs. Jacob Van Vloten.

"All Out for the Hunt"

For bedding, clothing, shoes, etc. for Foreign Relief from Jan. 7 to 31, Mrs. Sydney Burr and her Social Service Committee are counting on you for donations.

WINCHESTER LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Trends in Modern Education

On last Friday, Jan. 17th, the League of Women Voters met at the home of Mrs. Wilbert E. Underwood, Mrs. Guy Livingston, chairman of the Dept. of Education presented Mr. Forbes H. Norris as speaker of the afternoon. His subject, "Trends in Modern Education as they affect Winchester", brought together many League members and their friends. Mr. Norris pointed out that educators had always been faced by three basic struggles, 1. Meeting the needs of a society that supports the schools. 2. Combating formalizm instruction and 3. Popularization—that is, meeting the needs of all! Coming out of these three basic struggles are trends, in other words, the practise behind the theory. Some of these are the change in attitude toward the pupil. Teachers today recognize all phases of the child and make him an object of study. His interest must be captured. "He learns best who learns with interest." Methods in instruction are changing-group instruction is necessary as a premise but teacher leadership and guidance to note individual needs and differences is of great importance.

In the field of Housing, the needs of the school plant are changing. Larger school sites will be necessary. One day the school program may be expected to start with nursery school and go on to Adult Education. Community relationships are important and new trends in the Administrative end all play their part. Mr. Norris was kind enough to answer several questions from the audience.

A charming tea followed, served by Mrs. Wallace Miller and Mrs. Weston Howe. Mrs. Marshall Pihl and Mrs. A. Allen Kimball were the pourers.

League members are again reminded of the School of International Relations to be held Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 30 and 31, at Agassiz House, Radcliffe College, Cambridge.

Lt. (j. g.) Robert Kitchin of Wellesley Hills has been discharged from the Navy and is returning to Harvard Feb. 1. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kitchin, former residents of Winchester.

VICTORY CLOTHING DRIVE

The First Baptist Church through the Thrift Shop is participating in the current clothing drive for European refugees. During the past year the church workers have carefully examined the material in the shop and have selected a quantity of useful and practical clothing for the refugees and suffering people of Europe. Large bundles of winter coats and other warm clothing were shipped to Finland and Russia early in the fall so as to be of use for the present winter. The Thrift Shop is now collecting material to be added to the current drive for clothing.

Human Nature's noblest asset is

The hand that would foment

INADEQUATE PROTECTION

Umbrellas with holes in them are no good in the rain. Such protection as they afford is inadequate. Neither does an insurance program which leaves loopholes for possible losses give the policyholder adequate protection.

Modern insurance is capable of doing a very complete job of protection, but only if the various policies are properly integrated to the needs of the individual. This usually requires a detailed survey by a competent insurance advisor. Our agency has the men and the facilities to adjust your insurance to your particular needs. SELECTMEN'S NOTES

The town meeting warrant was signed Monday night, Jan. 28 at 8 o'clock.

There will be an article in the warrant to change the number of members on the Board of Appeal from three to five.

The Cemetery Commissioners reported that $7,594.12 is available for transfer to the cemetery maintenance account and $8,000 for embellishment and improvement of Wildwood Cemetery.

The Board has set the opening of the polls on March 4 at 7 a. m. and the closing at 6 p. m.

The Board voted to hold the first town meeting on Monday the 18th of March instead of the usual Thursday following election.

The matter of bus service on Highland avenue which was tabled during the war has again been brought up and necessary procedure is being studied.

The question of establishing a Department of Public Works had some serious thought and it was the consensus of opinion that this idea should be carefully studied for necessary action as an appropriate time.

At a meeting held at 2 o'clock on the 18th at the office of Mr. Sughrue, chief engineer of the Boston and Maine Railroad Company, plans for raising the tracks and having an overhead railroad structure for the center of Winchester were discussed. Mr. Sughrue had present two associate engineers. The Planning Board was represented by Mr. Arthur Dean, the Town Engineering Department by Mr. Parker Holbrook and Mr. James Wakefield, and the Board of Selectmen by Mr. Bonnell and Mr. MacArthur. Mr. Moore, who has been engaged by the Board of Selectmen as a consulting engineer on this project, explained many of the technical details.

The meeting was most satisfactory and it was definitely stated that the railroad would offer its full co-operation in the elimination of the grade crossing and approves the plan presented.

The matter of cost is a determining factor and is under consideration awaiting an interpretation from Washington of the amount to be apportioned to the railroad. A decision on this point is expected in the near future.

Mr. Sughrue is very definite in his statement that the railroad would oppose any plan that involved lowering the tracks through Winchester center.

During the past two months the girls have had several socials, one was a Miseltoe Hop and following the next meeting they had a Talent night, both proving very successful. Last Friday the girls went to a social at the Tutti home and all enjoyed it very much.

CADMIUM

After three and a half years in the service, cadmium has doffed its uniform and donned overalls for one of the most diversified of metallic jobs that any mineral is called on to perform.

Harder than tin, but softer than zinc, cadmium is prized for its ability to work with other metals, says the National Geographic Society. It teams up with them in soft solders and fusible alloys, is bonded with them in bearings and dental fillings, and shields them from corrosion by a rust-resisting plated film. Ductile and malleable, this metal can be drawn into thin wire, rolled into thin sheets, or hammered into foil. Bluish white in color, it takes a high polish. Bend a sheet of it, and it emits the characteristic crackling "cry" of tin. Its low melting point has been brought into industrial service in devices to detect and fight fire - factory sprinkler systems for example.

Overcoat For Iron and Steel

Foe of rust and corrosion from salt water and alkalis, cadmium provides a protective overcoat for many iron and steel products. Plating uses range from simple articles stocked by home workshops to parts of complex mechanical devices.

Workaday wares that have long had a coating of cadmium are bolts, nuts, screws, nails, rivets, and washers. Fishing tackle, fittings, bicycle parts, metal toys, and buttons for work clothes have had their cadmium touch in common. Builders' hadware - locks, hinges, fixtures, and the like - and industrial hardware - chains, pulleys, hose couplings, filters, and such - share the metal's saving touch.

Every field of mechanical and engineering progress has made use of the anti-corrosive quality of cadmium - a virtue heavily underscored by war. In peacetime, cadmium is spread thinly, but effectively over exposed parts of electrical equipment, office and household appliances, textile machinery, farm implements, and fire-fighting apparatus. It has prolonged the life of measurement and control devices, radio, telephone, and telegraph parts, and the vitals of planes and automobiles.

Replaces Tin in Solder

Readiness to cooperate with other metals has been put to work in cadmium-base bearings for automobile, aircraft, and marine engines. Graphite filled with cadmium make an oilless bearing lining.

When wartime need for tin threatened its elimination from solders and started a search for low-tin or tinless formulas, cadmium's low fusing point gave it recognition as a serviceable substitute. Collapsible tubes and low-carat gold alloys take some cadmium.

A small addition of the metal to trolley and telephone wires adds strength and wear resistance. In the aircraft industry it serves as an alloy ingredient for thin-walled tubing fitted to plane interiors by bending. Although bluish white itself, cadmium yields red and yellow pigments. Some compounds are used in photographic films, and in electrolytic solutions for metal plating.

Known since 1817, cadmium is rarely found alone. Usually it occurs in company with zinc, and is recovered in the smelting of zinc ore. The fine dust collecting on the cones of the retorts is mixed with coal, then distilled and redistilled until cadmium appears.

Normally, more than half the world's output was produced in the United States, domestic recovery reaching about 7½ million pounds in 1943, the latest year for which figures are available. Colorado, Idaho, Montana, and Utah were credited with almost three-fourths of the total. Home production was not adequate for the year's needs of almost 8 million pounds. Reserve stocks filled the gap. Nine-tenths of the supply is used in electroplating and bearing alloys.

Chief world producers, apart from the United States, have been Mexico, Germany, Canada, South West Africa, Poland, Australia, Belgium and Norway. War keyed production to high figures in all zinc-smelting countries, and increased Canada's total in 1941 by 30 per cent. In prewar years the United States imported metallic cadmium, and exported compounds.

Cadmium is put up in small round sticks, 12 inches long. For electroplating it is prepared in variously-shaped anodes.

ROTARY NOTES

As guest speakers at the Thursday noon meeting of the Winchester Rotary Club, M. Edward F. Whitney, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Boston Elevated Railroad, established himself as one of the best entertainers heard by the Club members in many months. His astute answers to the Massachusetts political situation, a subject which he is admirably qualified to discuss, was a most fascinating and revealing story. Mr. Whitney's fine sense of humor was evident in the many amusing stories with which he delighted the meeting.

Cigars were again used in evidence this time in honor of the arrival of a second son at the home of President "Vic" Ambrose Mosher and son are reported as progressing nicely at the Winchester Hospital.

Secretary John M. Dean paid tribute to Col. Nathan S. Thunin's contribution as Past Governor of the Suburban Rotarian Association.

Numbers were pulled for a lucky number to "Hap" Shattuck who was a first time winner of the Victory Bond.

On Wednesday, Jan. 30, the Winchester Club is to meet with the Boston Rotary Club at their regular meeting in the Hotel Statler, Boston, at 12:15 noon. Our regular Thursday meeting will be held as usual on Jan. 31.

ROBINSON—DURGIN

Winchester Widow Flew to California to Marry Old Winchester Boy

Mrs. Nettie L. Durgin of 41 Westland avenue and George N. Robinson of Redlands, Cal., were married in Los Angeles on Monday, according to news reports from the west coast. Mrs. Durgin, a 72 year old widow flew to California for the ceremony after Mr. Robinson, who is 71, had been unable to get transportation east. Mrs. Durgin made her home in Winchester with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene C. Hussey, Jr. She and Mr. Robinson met 50 years ago when Mr. Robinson was a member of the Tufts college Glee Club that sang Gilbert and Sullivan's "Patience" at the Church Mrs. Durgin attended. Both married other mates, and both have daughters named Dorothy. Mrs. Durgin's husband died 29 years ago and Mr. Robinson has been a widower for five years. A mutual interest in literature and music prompted them to get married. Dr. Whitcomb J. Brougher was the clergymen manned to perform the marriage ceremony.

Of further local interest in connection with the marriage is the fact that Mr. Robinson, a retired General Electric Company official, is an old Winchester boy. He is the son of the late Calvin Robinson and grew up on Fairmount street, later moving to Washington street where his father built a house in the rear of the what is now Ridgeway.

THE RED CROSS DRIVE

In less than a month the 1946 Red Cross Drive will be in full swing and those chosen to supervise this worthy project are already busy planning the methods and means for making this affair a gratifying success.

While the responsibility nominally rests upon the shoulders of a few we should all realize that we are the Red Cross and this work is being undertaken for us in order to perpetuate the service of an institution in which we all are vitally interested.

If all of our citizens would consider themselves members of a "Committee of the Whole", to do their part in overreaching our quota, success would be assured with a minimum of effort.

We don't need to be reminded of the work still to be done among our service men at home and abroad, in the hospitals and to meet the demand in civilian life and we also know that whatever is contributed to the fund will be expended wisely and any surplus will decrease the amount to be raised for the next year.

The drive is a cooperative affair in which the solicitors and contributors alike are interested in its ultimate success.

Enjoy the joy of giving.

WILLIAM DUNNING SULLIVAN

William Duaning Sullivan of 64 Fletcher street, widely known newspaper man and former managing editor of the Boston Globe, died Wednesday, Jan. 30, after a long illness. He was in his 84th year and had been retired since 1927.

Mr. Sullivan was born July 17, 1862, in Somerville. He graduated from Somerville High School and from Harvard, in the class of 1883. He commenced his newspaper career while an undergraduate at Harvard, writing college sports, particularly rowing and football, and he continued to do much sport writing for several years, being in charge of college sports for the Globe after he became city editor.

He covered professional baseball from 1884 when the Union League was organized with a Boston team playing on the site of the State Armory west of the Dartmouth street railroad bridge. Later he followed the Boston National League Club, writing an exclusive story for the Globe at the time Mike "King" Kelley, famous Chicago Cubs catcher, was bought by Boston at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., for the unprecedented price of $10,000.

Mr. Sullivan's chief sports interest was in the college field and he was especially interested in Harvard-Yale rowing and football. For fully half a century he was an annual visitor at Harvard-Yale Regatta rowing quarters below Gales Ferry at New London and his pre-game analysis of the crews and colorful stories of their races were considered authoritative.

His write-ups of Harvard-Yale football games, Globe features for years were equally popular, and from the middle '80s through the coaching regime of the late Percy Haughton he was close to Harvard football, known affectionately as "Sully" his influence went far beyond the confines of Harvard in the intercollegiate field, his sportsmanship and love of fair play winning him a place high in the esteem of college and football players throughout New England.

Mr. Sullivan broke into newspaper work under Gen. Charles H. Taylor, who began the building of the Globe more than 70 years ago. He received valuable training under General Taylor and was considered one of the most thorough, judicious and brilliant editors in the country. He became sports editor in 1884, assistant city editor in 1889, and the same year became city editor, a post he held for 37 years. He succeeded A. A. Fowle as managing editor in 1926, continuing until his resignation.

Mr. Sullivan saw an almost complete revolution in the technique and character of newspaper work during his 60 years on the Globe. He was alive to, and progressed with the mechanical improvements. He never got excited or lost his temper. He was resourceful and to borrow a newspaper phrase, could "smell" news. Added to this was his unusual judgment and ability to pick the right men for any emergency. He had tact, was able to avoid trouble, and always sought to present news fairly. In a political campaign he wanted both sides treated alike.

Mr. Sullivan came to Winchester about 1900. He was a member of the Winchester Country Club, Winchester Monday Club, Harvard Club and the Boston Veteran Journalists Club. He was a communicant of the Church of the Epiphany and had served the church as a member of the vestry.

He was one of the founders of the Newspaper Club of Boston, serving as editor-in-chief in 1892, and again in 1919, when the club observed its 25th anniversary. He retained his interest and membership in the organization to the end.

In 1909 when he completed 20 years as city editor, 150 of his associates in the editorial department gave him a surprise at the Boston City Club and a silver coffee urn, the presentation address being made by Gen. Chas. H. Taylor. Again in 1923, which marked the 40th anniversary of his service on the Globe, he was given a complimentary dinner at Young's Hotel and another present of silver plate.

Mr. Sullivan was twice married. Sept. 29, 1887 he married Alice White Hayward, who died in 1892. On March 23, 1903, he married Caroline Eaton Van Horn, who survives him, with a daughter by his first marriage, Mrs. Russell Stiles of Scarsdale, N. Y.; and three grandchildren, Capt. David Stiles of the Army Medical Corps, Ruth H. Stiles of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Mrs. William Sumner Stiles of the Seabees, now stationed in the Philippines.

Funeral services will be held this Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Bigelow Chapel, Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge. Rev. William S. Packer, of this town, Episcopal clergyman and associate of Mr. Sullivan for many years on the Globe, will officiate.

Horace Ford, former big league baseball star, now a restaurateur on Winchester Terrace, has been regularly feeding the wild ducks that gather on the river near his establishment. Yesterday morning as he threw a handful of provender to the eager fowl his fur-line glove went along. "Hod", of course has heard that one about getting back bread that you cast on the water, but he wasn't too sure about its application to gloves. At any rate he got him a long pole and fished out his property, getting plenty of verbal advice but little real help from his friends and associates at the post-office and restaurant.

DR. EDWIN BISSELL HOLT

Former Harvard Psychologist Native of Winchester

Dr. Edwin Bissell Holt, one of Prof. William James' most distinguished students, a former Harvard phychologist and native of Winchester, died Friday, Jan. 25, at Rockland, Me., after a long illness, at the age of 72.

Dr. Holt came of an old Winchester family. He was the son of Stephen Abbott, and Nancy Wyman (Cutter) Holt. His maternal grandfather was Stephen Cutter, a member of a family prominent in Winchester in the old days, from whom the so-called Cutter Village on upper Main street took its name.

Dr. Holt attended the Winchester schools and Winchester High School, graduating from Harvard in the class of 1896. He received his master of arts degree from Columbia in 1900 and his doctor of philosophy degree from Harvard in 1901.

At Harvard, he studied under Professor James and received his degree there magna cum laude. He later continued his studies in the field of radical empiricism. Among his books were "A Concept of Conscience," "The Freudian Wish and its Place in Ethics" and "Animal Drive and the Learning Process."

He was a member of the Harvard faculty from 1901 to 1918 and was visiting professor of psychology at Princeton University from 1926 until 1936 when he retired to make his home at Tenants Harbor, Me. He leaves no near relatives.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon, at the home of a cousin, Miss Anna Kloss, 51 Oakland street, Medford. Interment was in the family lot in Wildwood Cemetery.

COMDR. POLLARD TO APPEAR IN "TEN MINUTE ALIBI" WITH PARISH PLAYERS

Dr. Eugene M. Pollard, popular member of Parish Players in pre-war days, will play the leading role in the mystery play, "Ten Minute Alibi", to be given in the Congregational Parish Hall Feb. 8 and 9.

Dr. Pollard went on active duty May 18, 1942 as a Lt. (sg) in the Dental Corps. In May, 1944 he went overseas. He was in New Hebrides and Pearl Harbor. He was then assigned as dental officer to the USS. Sierra, a destroyer tender. Dr. Pollard was promoted to Commander November 1945, and placed on inactive duty and is now on terminal leave.

Dr. Pollard always acts with precision and ease. He has a large following among those who attend the plays in the Little Theatre Beneath a Spire, and the Parish Players are happy to have him back to help celebrate their 20th season. While many other Little Theatre groups have disbanded during the war the Parish Players, because of the excellence of their work, have continued to draw large audiences.

The remaining members of the cast are Joanne Worthen, Jr. Waldo Bond, Boardman O'Connor, all well known and enjoyed by Winchester audiences, and Sgt. David Abbott, just back from Italy, where he was on active duty with the famous 86th Mountain Inf. Reg. The Parish Players welcome to the cast of "Ten Minute Alibi" two new players who show great promise, Lt. Edward Frederick, USNR and Robert P. Blake.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Marion Rudkin's Talk

On Jan. 28, the Fortnightly met at the parish house of the First Congregational Church to hear a talk on "Books and You" by Mrs. Marion Rudkin. With her dramatic charm, her wit and originality and the clear honesty of her judgment, Mrs. Rudkin is one of the best of our current literary speakers.

The large audience listened with eager interest and delight as she told the lovely, poetic story of "Silence of the Sea", described the somewhat painful "Bridehead Revisited" (which, although it is unquestionably a fine work of art, she did not recommend as pleasant reading)—praised the humor and blamed the profanity in "The Egg and I" and applauded the fine fervor of Louis Adamic's "A Nation of Nations."

Her dramatic presentation of Daphne du Maurier's "The King's General" was the most detailed of her analyses, and was especially enjoyed. Mrs. Rudkin has long been a favorite of the Fortnightly and her enthusiastic reception was a proof that her popularity is well earned.

Coffee was served at 1 o'clock, with Mrs. Jacob Van Vloten as hostess.

Literature Group

On Monday, Feb. 4, the Literature Group of the Fortnightly will meet in the Public Library to consider another phase of the year's subject, "The Growth of Literature in Massachusetts." The contribution which the many notable magazines published in Massachusetts have made to literary history, their aims and development in content since early colonial days, will be the subject of a paper by Mrs. Blanche S. Barnard. The part played by newspapers during our state's growth, will be the topic discussed by Mrs. Ruth N. Gauby.

Next Regular Meeting

The next regular meeting will be held in the Parish House of the First Congregational Church on Monday, Feb. 11 with coffee at 1 oclock. Mrs. Wm. E. Pries will be the hostess.

Mr. Donald J. Moore will give a lecture, entitled, "South of the Border", illustrated with colored films of South America.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Fitzgerald Cleansers will reopen Monday, Feb. 4. However, due to delays in the delivery of some equipment and particularly because of inability to secure sufficient personnel, with the necessary qualifications to meet the high standard set by the concern, garments can be accepted only on a limited scale.

There is a shortage of skilled hand-finishers and consequently for the present only woolen garments can be accepted. As soon as possible expansion will be made in the services offered until the plant can produce to its capacity the quality cleansing to which its clientele had become accustomed prior to July 1943.

We Deal In Atoms

The "Atomic Age" is centuries old in pharmacy. The pharmacist works with atoms every day because the chemical formulae for prescription drugs are given in terms of atoms; for example, to the pharmacist, bi-carbonate of soda is NaHCO3—one atom of Sodium, one of Hydogen, one of Carbon, and three atoms of Oxygen. He must know and recognize hundreds such formulae because upon his knowledge depends the health and welfare of the people he serves.

FATHER'S NIGHT AT WYMAN SCHOOL

Wednesday evening, Jan. 23, was Fathers Night at the Wyman School. The evening was a great success. Parents were invited to visit the school rooms during the coffee hour which took place from 7:30 until 8:15 and after the excellent talk of Dr. Forbes Norris, Superintendent of the Winchester Schools.

An outline of Dr. Norris's talk is given below and should prove interesting for all parents to read.

Education—A Co-operative Undertaking

The educational resources of Winchester, or any community, cannot be confined to the public schools. They must include the schools, homes, churches, movies, radio, and even the streets. For this reason, the schools can't claim credit for all of the good; neither can they be blamed for all the weaknesses.

Since education is a co-operative undertaking, what are some of the responsibilities of the school?

1. To provide good teachers—people who are well-prepared, well-poised, and with a knowledge of sympathy for children.

2. To provide good instructional material.

3. A plan or method of teaching that will give more attention to the individual.

4. Provide surroundings conducive to learning.

5. Keep parents informed as to the progress and status of the pupil.

Responsibilities of the Home

1. Send pupils to school who are ready to learn—properly fed and clothed; courteous, obedient, with a desire to go to school. The home should send the pupil to school with as little emotional disturbance as possible.

2. Build support of and respect for the teacher and the school. (Parents who criticize the teacher or school before their children are inviting trouble. They should go to the school with the sincere intention of arriving at an understanding.

3. Maintain an interest in good schools.

WINCHESTER HIGHLAND'S MEN'S CLUB

On Saturday afternoon, the Winchester Highlands Men's Club gave a free movie and refreshments for the children between 4-9 years of age. The program consisted of an educational film and comics. Singing was conducted by Neil Dowe at the piano. One hundred and ten happy and appreciative youngsters spent a very enjoyable afternoon.

Francis McFeeley our local Boy Scout representative donated and ran the Scout's excellent sound machine.

A very active committee headed by Pat Tofuri, and ably assisted by Ben Marshall, James Robertson, Henry Clark, Al Higgins and Ralph Slocombe made certain the children had an enjoyable time.

LEXINGTON BEAT WINCHESTER AGAIN

Lexington High won its second Middlesex League game from Winchester Tuesday afternoon at the local gymnasium, beating the hapless locals 46-38. It took a big third quarter to give the Minuteboys the game.

The visitors jumped to a big lead at the start of the game, running up some 14 points while Winchester was sinking one foul shot.

The locals finally got going, but trailed at the quarter, 17-8. Outscoring Lexington 15-4 in the second quarter, the locals led at the half 23-21, but in the third quarter the Minuteboys fired the shot heard around the world, tallying 19 points while Winchester was picking up five.

The locals came back to outscore Lexington in the final canto, 10-6, but the horse was gone then and locking the barn did no good.

Continuing their sharp aggressive play, the Winchester seconds edged the Lexington seconds in a tight preliminary game, 20-18. The varsity summary follows:

STILL NEED TO ENTERTAIN SERVICE MEN

Although the tension of the war has lessened, the numbers of service men using the USO clubs are just as large, if not larger, than at any time during the war. They need the relaxation, the physical comforts, the soft chairs and family atmosphere, that only the home can supply.

While there are not as many Army boys in our clubs here, on account of Boston being a seaport and a Naval base, we do have them to consider very definitely in our plans, as they come into this vicinity on leave from Devens or Edwards or on their way through to discharge points.

Weekdays, small groups entertained in the home in the evening, from two to six men, are particularly desired. Sunday groups for dinner are important and should be continued especially in spring and summer.

Our responsibility to these young men is greater than ever before. Please spread the word among your neighbors and tell us of homes available to service men and women. If anyone can entertain service men, please call Mrs. Lyman B. Smith, Win. 0802.

HAY RIDE A SUCCESS

The Young Peoples Society, of the Second Congregational Church, braved the elements last Sunday evening and thirty strong went on a hay-ride to Saugus. The cart was filled to capacity, but it did help to keep everyone warm enough. The time was spent in singing all the songs in everyones repertoire, which required most of the evening.

Once at Saugus, the group left the cart and climbed to the top of a hill where they roasted hot dogs and drank hot coffee. Those who found it too cold on the hill top retreated to the barn, where the animals kept them amused. After everyone had had sufficient to eat and drink, they returned to the cart and were driven home.

The group was under the able leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Baker of Woburn, who were assisted by Mrs. Foster, and Mrs. Bragdon, also of Woburn.

GIRL SCOUTS

The following report from Troop 4 gives a glimpse of the varied interests of the Girl Scouts. The instruction in flower arrangement speaks for itself, but for those who have not heard about "friendship bags" it might be well to explain that this is one phase of the program for international citizenship. Each troop is providing, for Scouts of some particular country bags containing items we consider necessities and rather take for granted. These articles, however, such as needles, thread, toothpaste, games are true luxuries to the girls in Europe and it is anticipated that much friendly correspondance will result.

For Troop Four's fourteenth meeting which was on Jan. 25, 1946, we had as a guest Mrs. Crockett, who came to show us how to arrange flowers. She told us that you should always have a background and that the background should be bigger than the flowers. Mrs. Crockett also said that the arrangement should be about once and a half the size of your container. She showed us how to arrange flowers for a sick person's tray, a centerpiece when people would be sitting all around it, and she showed us how to make a centerpiece if it was up against a wall. After Mrs. Crockett had showed us these things, the troop divided up into groups of two girls each. Each group was supposed to make an arrangement themselves. Afterwards Mrs. Crockett came around to correct us and see if the arragements were all right.

About three girls of Troop 4 have finished their friendship bags to go to Poland and the others are working on them at home.

His last permanent duty station was at the Naval Personnel Separation Center, Bainbridge, Md., following which he was sent to the U. S. Naval Hospital at Chelsea for final treatment of a back injury which he sustained in the Pacific area.

Comdr. Benson expects to resume his practice of general medicine and surgery early in February.

SNOW-BALL BROKE TRUCK CAB WINDOW

Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock Richard L. Ganley of Lakeview avenue, Lowell, reported to the Police that a boy had thrown a snow-ball and broken the cab window of his Federal truck while he was driving south on Cambridge street near Church street.

Officer William E. Cassidy took a ride around in a patrol car and picked up a west side boy responsible for the markmanship. Officer Cassidy took Ganley to the boy's home where the latter's father put $7.50 on the line for the broken window. What further action was taken did not appear on the Police blotter.

What will you bet the UNO does not pick Hyde Park?

What great ruler proclaimed "Open Covenants, Openly Arrived At?" And now the secret pacts made at Yalta are gradually being sprung.

"The strikers were stopping trucks carrying badly needed fuel from entering the city yesterday. Several factories shut down and many homes were without heat as a result of fuel oil shortage brought on by the strike. One of the largest fuel oil distributors in the area reported his tanks were empty." A great victory for the strikers!

"If you will get, or tell me where I can get, some butter, I will tell you where you can get a ton of coal." This was heard last week. Talk about the more abundant life!

We witnessed the meeting between a man and a woman last week who had evidently not seen each other lately. "Are you working?" she asked. "Yes", he said, "I got a job two weeks ago. But we are out on strike now." "Too bad" she said. "No", he said, "I'm doing all right."

The price of fuel oil has gone up slightly.

"My son," said a gentleman of our acquaintance, "is not working now. He had a good job but the Union pulled him out. He could get a job at another place, but he has to join the Union there, and if he does his present Union will not take him back and he cannot work!" It has about as much sense as any of this New Deal stuff.

KIRWAN N. U. WINNER

Copped 1000 at Interscholastic Meet

Tall Tom Kirwan, Winchester's state cross country champion last fall, won his first start of the indoor season Saturday afternoon when he easily won the 1000 yard run in the Northeastern University interscholastic meet at the YMCA in Boston.

Some forty schools were attracted to the meet and Kirwan faced the best available in his event. He was apparently overlooked by the wise ones in the pre-meet doping, and his easy victory had the experts in something of a dither. Checking the book they found Tom was unbeaten in cross country last fall, while winning the state harrier crown. He was also runner-up for state honors in the half mile a year ago.

Kirwan drew the first heat in the 1000 and was on the pole in the second line of runners. He ran a nice race, being second at the first quarter and in second place at the end of the first lap, some 2 yards off a blistering pace.

The pace-maker faded quickly, but his early spurt did not draw Kirwan out. Tom ran his own race, being content to stay behind the leaders until three laps remained to go.

Then the Winchester boy took over and easily stayed out front, winning by a good 25 yards and finishing so strongly that he could undoubtedly have lowered his time had any one been near him.

As it was Tom did a respectable 2m 33.6s for the N. U. saucer, having nearly two seconds on the runner-up, Carl Joyce of Boston Commerce. Places were awarded by times.

Kirwan also came back to run the first leg for Winchester in its three-cornered relay race with Hyde Park and Melrose. Melrose was the winner, 15 yards in front of Winchester in second place. Kirwan ran a good first leg, being only three yards off the pace after his 1000. The distance is short for him as it is for Gunby the second runner, who is also short of work due to an appendectomy last fall. McFarlane and Coe were the last two local runners, Coe on the anchor leg cutting down a bit on White of Melrose.

WINCHESTER LOST TO MELROSE

Melrose High's fast stepping basketball team won a Middlesex League game from Winchester High last Friday evening in the local gymnasium, 39-32. The local seconds, playing a much livelier brand of ball than the varsity, won the preliminary game from the Melrose seconds, 24-15.

Melrose led all the way in the varsity game, having a five point lead at the quarter, 11-6, and leading at the half, 19-13. Winchester, with Patterson, Latham and Tibaudo, counting, outscored the visitors in the third quarter, 7-5, but Melrose, with its star centre, Loveys, running wild, took over the game the final quarter to pull out the win.

Loveys scored 24 points to lead both teams, Patterson's 11 being the best for Winchester. The visitors had several tall boys and generally had a height advantage. Sam Tibaudo played well for the Winchester, but generally speaking the locals seemed off their game.

TURKEY

Demands by citizens of the Soviet Socialist Republics, Georgia and Armenia, for sections of Turkey's coastal territory along the Black Sea would include an area extending indefinitely inland. Claims have not been specifically defined, but probably would include most of the old Empire of Trebizond and its capital, Trabzon (Trebizond), largest port in the area, Trabzon's prewar population was 30,000.

Through this port passed trade between East and West as far back as early Roman times, says the National Geographic Society. It was one of the many cities along the coast settled by Greek colonists.

The Greeks called the citadel Trapezus, meaning "table," from the shape of the town site, high and plateaulike with steep, stony embankments on two sides that contributed greatly to its defense.

Beauty Became Diplomatic Asset

At Trabzon in 400 B. C. ended the five-months, "Retreat of the Ten Thousand" after the Battle of Cunaxa, near Baghdad. Xenophon, the Greek historian, turned military leader on this occasion to conduct the troops, in retreat following the death of Cyrus, across Armenia and the mountains.

Their line of march from Babylon through hostile country covered old caravan routes still in use. Even in the present century, before the advent of the railway, as many as 50,000 camels a year passed through Erzurum taking Persian goods to the port of Trabzon. Trucks now carry merchandise over a 400-mile road from Tabriz, Iran (Persia), through Erzurum to Trabzon.

The Empire of Trebizond was founded in the 13th century by Alexius Comnenus and prospered for 250 years. The beauty of the women of the royal family proved a diplomatic factor. Their marriages became international ties to strengthen the position of the Comnenian Court, famed for its magnificence and culture. After many sieges, Trabzon yielded finally to Mohammed II in 1461.

With the coming of the Turks, many of the ancient Christian churches were converted into mosques. In the hills south of Trabzon is a large cave that housed a shrine to Mother Mary, which was visited every August by Greeks. Despite their different religious beliefs, Turkish women flocked to implore intercession against fever and ills, even against louse.

Includes Turkey's "Siberia"

South of Trabzon, at the foot of the Small Anadolu Mountains, is Gumusane (Gumush Khaneh), the Silver City, visited by Marco Polo when it was famed for its silver and lead mines. The mountains rise to 11,000 feet and more. To the southwest is Sivas, on the railway that runs east from Ankara through Erzurum to connect with the Soviet rail system. Sivas is noted for its rug and cement factories.

Sivas and Erzurum each had 33,000 residents before World War II. Erzurum is rapidly becoming a modern city, with a swank officers' club, little theatre, motion picture house, library, high school, and a new post office building. There excavations for a new hotel penetrated an old Roman sewer which was found to be still serviceable.

East of the province of Trebizond is that of Kars, which has only 10 miles of Black Sea Coast. Its eastern boundary line with the Soviet Union passes through country described as one of the wildest and most mountainous tracts in that part of Asia. The interior region has winter temperatures as low as 40 degrees below zero Fahrenheit. It is known as the "Siberia of Turkey," with winter weather lasting for seven or eight months. As much as 10 feet of snow may obliterate the roads.

Much of the interior of the territory sought by Georgia is a plateau whose reddish mountains bear the seared markings of volcanic action. It is largely treeless and suffers extremes of temperatures, although it is no farther north as New York City.

The Black Sea coast of eastern Turkey is hilly, cut by short, swift mountain streams, and aside from the Trabzon's bay is largely devoid of good harbors. The coastal hills, especially in the extreme east, are backed by a continuous range of mountains rising to lofty snow-covered peaks.

ANDREW—FIFIELD

At Ripley Memorial Chapel of the First Congregational Church, on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 26, Miss Gladys M. Fifield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Fifield of Woodside road, became the bride of Jack Edward Andrew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Andrew of Church street, Watertown. The pastor, Rev. Howard J. Hadley, performed the five o'clock ceremony, and the bridal music was played by Mrs. G. Lendrow Witham of Winchester.

Miss Fifield was given in marriage by her father, and had for her two honor attendants her sisters, Mrs. Eugene Bancroft Haynes of Baltimore, Md., and Miss Muriel Fifield of this town. Miss Betty Andrew, yeoman, 1c, Wave, of Watertown, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Margaret Carlson of New Haven, Conn., cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids.

The bride wore a gown of white brocade, styled with a sweetheart neckline, long sleeves, a peplum and a court train. Her tulle veil was caught to a lace coronet and she carried a white camelia muff with a white orchid.

Warren Waite of Watertown was Mr. Andrew's best man, and the ushers were John Forsdick of Waltham, and Robert Scribner, Seth Young and William Fallon, all of Watertown.

A reception was held at the church after the ceremony, the parents of both the bride and bridegroom assisting in receiving.

After a wedding trip through Northern New England for skiing and winter sports Mr. Andrew and his bride will make their home in Cambridge, where the bridegroom is associated with the General Latex Corporation as a research chemist.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School. She took the pre-medical course at Boston University and is a graduate of the New England Baptist Hospital. Mr. Andrew is a graduate of Watertown High School and of Boston University.

DOUBLEDAY—MOLINARO

Miss Theresa Ann Molinaro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Molinaro of Harvard street, and William Aldis Doubleday, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doubleday of Holton street, Woburn, were married Sunday afternoon, Jan. 27, at St. Mary's Church. Altar decorations of white gladiolas and carnations made an attractive setting for the ceremony, which was performed at 4 o'clock by Rev. Fr. Cornelius Hegan. Mrs. D. Irving Reardon, church organist, played the bridal music and the "Ave Maria" was sung by Miss Ann Turquince of this town.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Molinaro was attended by Miss Angela Laongo of Winchester as maid of honor and by Miss Lou Molinaro, sister of the bride, as junior bridesmaid.

The bride wore a gown of white chiffon velvet with a fingertip veil caught to a coronet of pearls. Her bouquet was of bride's roses, centered with an orchid.

The honor maid wore a dress of pale pink net and lace with a matching coronet of flowers and short tulle veil. Her flowers were American Beauty roses. The junior brides maid wore a blue taffeta frock with matching headpiece and carried an old fashioned bouquet of assorted flowers.

James McCleod of Woburn was Mr. Doubleday's best man and the ushers were Dominic Jacobellis of Winchester and Malcolm McIntire of Woburn.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Molinaro, mother of the bride, assisting in receiving. At the conclusion of the reception Mr. and Mrs. Doubleday left for New York by plane.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School. Mr. Doubleday, a graduate of Woburn High School, will continue his studies in engineering.

ROTARY NOTES

Mr. Robert F. Lybeck, former member of the School Committee, and a member of the Boston Rotary Club, was the weekly guest speaker. He presented a vivid discussion of "Aviation and the Flying Age", contrasting the phenomenal war-time development of the aviation industry with that of the automobile industry during the pre-war period. From a purely local aspect, one of the most interesting points of his talk was the possibility and feasibility of the location of an airport in Winchester. At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Lybeck was warmly complimented on the very able manner in which he told an interesting and timely story.

Chief of Police, "Bill" Rogers, was given an enthusiastic welcome upon his return to active status as a club member, following his war emergency leave of absence.

"Chubby" Howe reported on our visit with the Boston Rotary Club at their regular weekly meeting on Wednesday, and Forbes Norris delighted the large meeting with two of his newest stories which he tells with a fine sense of humor.

Aram Mouradian and "Bob" Shaw were in exceptional form in leading the club singing and received several rounds of applause.

President "Vin" Ambrose finally won the Victory Bond after many months of patient waiting, so there is still hope for those who have not yet been winners.

COL. GRINDLE WELCOMED AT HIGH SCHOOL

Col. Wade L. Grindle, principal of Winchester High School, was welcomed back to his duties at the school at an assembly this morning. He had been on active army duty since March 1942, being recently discharged.

Acting Principal Samuel M. Graves, who now becomes assistant principal and counsellor, welcomed Col. Grindle, and Supt. Forbes Norris also extended words of welcome. The high school band furnished music.

Acting Principal Graves, at a faculty meeting this week was presented with a handsome Waterman gold mounted pen as an expression of the teachers' appreciation of his services as head of the school during the past four years.

GRETCHEN STONE WED

On Friday evening, Jan. 25th, Miss Gretchen Elizabeth Stone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Edwin Stone of Winchester, became the bride of Mr. Cheney Edwin Cook, of Brookline and Swampscott. The ceremony performed by the Rev. Paul Harmon Chapman, pastor of the Winchester Unitarian Church was attended by only the immediate family.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook have left for their winter home in Palm Beach, Florida, where they will remain until April, when they will return to Brookline.

GEORGE SOLOV

George Solov of 125 Forest street, a resident of Winchester for the past 30 years, died Friday, Jan. 25, at the Winchester Hospital.

A native of Russia, Mr. Solov came to this country as a young man, living in or around Boston for some years before coming to Winchester. He was a tailor by trade and for many years was a member of the former Solov Hinds Company of Boylston street, Boston, makers of women's fine custom and ready-to-wear clothing. He organized this company and was associated with it until his retirement five years ago, being well known in Boston clothing circles. After his retirement he spent some time with the Winchester Red Cross at the town hall, helping to cut cloth for garments. He spoke often of the fine spirit displayed by local Red Cross workers.

Mr. Solov leaves his wife, the former Agnes Hinds, whom he married in 1914; two daughters, Mrs. Henry Ochberg of Newton and Mrs. Harold Schaller of Pelham, N. Y.; and two grandchildren, Robert and Susan Schaller.

Funeral services were held in Roxbury on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 27. Interment was in East Woburn.

MUNDI FILIPPONE

Mundi Filippone, veteran of World War II and former private, first class, in the 182nd Infantry of the American Division, died Monday, Jan. 28, at the Veterans' Hospital in Bedford, after a long illness. Flags on the common and public buildings were displayed at half-staff in his honor.

Mr. Filippone was the son of Antonio and Concetta Filippone. He was born in Winchester 29 years ago, educated in the Winchester schools and served 18 months overseas in the Pacific Theatre. He become ill while overseas and was returned to this country where he was subsequently discharged for physical disability. He had been in the hospital for some time.

Besides his parents, Mr. Filippone leaves a brother, Giddeo Filippone of Winchester; and three sisters, Mrs. Herbert Bailey of this town, Mrs. Salvatore Cucurillo of Wakefield and Miss Grace Filippone, a Navy WAVE, stationed in New York.

The funeral was held this Friday morning from the late residence with solemn requiem high mass celebrated at St. Mary's Church. Military honors were accorded by a firing squad of discharged 182nd Infantry veterans under Capt. Lloyd Stoney of Stoneham. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

LECTURE BY PROF. BUSH AT ART ASSOCIATION

With the precedent-breaking loan of some twelve priceless paintings by the Old Masters and a lecture on "Painting: Retrospect and Reconversion" by Prof. Lyle K. Bush of Simmons College, Fine Arts Department, the Winchester Art Association will hold its February meeting on Tuesday evening, Feb. 5, at the Winchester Public Library. Mr. G. Russell Mann will preside, and Mr. Alfred Lowe will be in charge of the paintings.

The Old Masters have been loaned to Winchester by the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston and the Fogg Museum in Cambridge, the first time that such treasures have been allowed to leave their respective museums. The exhibition will be open to the public on and after Wednesday from 10 a. m. to 9 in the evening.

Professor Bush, teacher of Dutch and Asiatic art at Simmons, was a member of the Association's Board in 1941, and President from 1942-43. Mr. Lowe is on the staff of the Museum of Fine Arts, and has done the restoration on many old and priceless art treasures. Many of the paintings in the exhibition reveal his handiwork.

Hostesses for the evening include Mrs. Gerald Curtis and Mrs. Robinson Whitten; pourers will be Mrs. Fred Oliver and Mrs. Ejnar Bratt.

WINCHESTER COLLEGE CLUB

The Winchester College Club's Evening Study Groups, under the able leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M Graves, have started with great enthusiasm this winter. Over one hundred and fifty men and women enjoyed a delicious dinner served by the ladies of the Methodist Church on Monday evening, Jan. 7. After dinner Mr. Graves welcomed the large membership and introduced the leaders of the five Groups, who gave outlines of the plans of study for the year. Following that, the various group members met separately in different corners of the hall and made their plans for the season.

The first Group Meetings were held during this last week. On Thursday evening, Jan. 24, the fifteen members of the Play-Reading Group met at the home of its chairmen, Mr. and Mrs. S. Frederick Calhoun. A review was given of the life of Eugene O'Neill and then the Group spent a very enjoyable evening reading the play, "All Wilderness", each member taking one of the parts in the play. A social hour followed with coffee and sandwiches.

The first meeting of the Group on "Preserving Peace in the Atomic World" was held on Monday evening, Jan. 28, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Watson, with Mr. and Mrs. James S. Allen, chairmen. Coffee and mints were served. The panel for the evening, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Stephenson, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton E. Farnham, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. McCracken reviewed the Charters and the Conferences leading to the formation of the United Nations Organization. This was follower by an interesting discussion by the Group.

The Biography Group met on Monday evening at the home of its chairmen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Metcalf. The leader of the meeting was Mr. Austin T. Bunker, who gave a report on "A Man from Kansas," the Life of William Allen White by David Hinshaw. Reports were also given by Mr. Lester H. Armstrong on "Al Smith, American" by Frank Graham an by Mrs. Lester H. Armstrong on "The Shelley Legend" by Robert Metcalf Smith. The reports were followed by refreshments.

Another very interesting Group met on Monday evening at Dr. Howard J. Chidley gave the first of his Talks on the Prophets of Israel.

The Music Group had a large attendance on Monday evening at its regular meeting place in the beautiful music room of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Kirkwood. Mrs. Kirkwood, the chairman of Music Appreciation played records while Mrs. John P. Carr explained about the musical instruments in a Symphony Orchestra. After a brief social hour with refreshments, Mr. Robert A. Drake, who is co-chairman of singing with Mr. William E. Spaulding, led a group of the members in singing songs from many lands.

With such beginnings in every Study Group, the year promises to be of interest and profit to all members.

What!
No Electric Range?

Women have endured a lot of kitchen inconveniences in the past but the smart homemaker of 1946 who wants the most convenient method of cooking is now planning on a modern ELECTRIC range. Here's why:

ELECTRIC COOKING IS CLEAN: because it's sootless. Pans stay bright. Walls, windows and curtains stay clean.

AUTOMATIC: Many electric ranges have automatic timing devices so that meals can be perfectly cooked in your absence.

There's an electrical future ahead... and BOSTON EDISON wants to help you make the most of it

BRITISH MANDATED TERRITORIES

The three mandated parcels of tropical Africa which Great Britain plans to turn over to the United Nations' growing "real estate department" total eight times the area of England itself, notes a National Geographic Society bulletin. The British announcement closely followed New Zealand's offer to transfer its mandate over Western Samoa to UNO.

All three African areas — Tanganyika on the east coast and British Cameroons and Togoland on the west (Gulf of Guinea) coast — were German colonial possessions prior to World War I. They have been administered by Great Britain for the past quarter century under League of Nations mandates.

Source of Rubber and Sisal

Tanganyika, the largest, covers 360,000 square miles — as much as Texas plus Oregon. It lies south of the Equator, bordered on the north by Britain's Kenya Colony and Uganda Protectorate and by Lake Victoria; on the west by Belgium's mandated Territory of Ruanda — Urundi and Lake Tanganyika; and on the southwest and south by Northern Rhodesia, Nyasaland, Lake Nyasa and Portuguese East Africa (Mozambique). Dar es Salaam, midway on its 500-mile Indian Ocean coast, is its port-capital of 30,000 people.

The big game for which Africa is famous abounds in western Tanganyika. Vast forests yield mahoganies and other hardwoods. Sisal and rubber cultivation was accelerated during World War II to relieve Allied shortages. Coffee, cotton, grains and copra are important in normal export trade.

Steppe country between mountain ranges supports five million cattle and nearly as many sheep and goats. Hide exports are large. Some 6,500 whites care for the labor and welfare of more than five million native Negroes.

Western Areas Shared With France

British Cameroons, slightly larger than Maine, forms a finger of land ranging from lush coastal plantations to mountain jungles. It reaches from the Gulf of Guinea northeastward toward Lake Chad. Under the League mandate, Britain has administered it as part of Nigeria, lying to the west.

Umbrellas with holes in them are no good in the rain. Such protection as they afford is inadequate. Neither does an insurance program which leaves loopholes for possible losses give the policyholder adequate protection.

Modern insurance is capable of doing a very complete job of protection, but only if the various policies are properly integrated to the needs of the individual. This usually requires a detailed survey by a competent insurance advisor. Our agency has the men and the facilities to adjust your insurance to your particular needs. BERMUDA

A legislative decision to open Bermuda's highways to the automobile extends to the pleasure car a privilege which for years was granted only to public service and approved commercial vehicles.

The much publicized motor law of this British Colony, lying in the Atlantic Ocean about 640 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, the nearest American mainland, fixed the operation of cars by the nature of the roads, explains the National Geographic Society.

Possession of an automobile was not forbidden. The law simply banned its use on public roads. As most of the roads are public, and private roads are few and short, the law in effect prohibited the general use of automobiles.

Usefulness of power-driven vehicles was recognized in the motorized fire department, automotive ambulances, and sanitation and highway maintenance trucks. Freight trucks are available for hauling loads too heavy for horse-drawn wagons. A railroad has been in operation since 1931.

Three R's Offered by Nature

Back of the ban on pleasure cars was the concern of many residents to assure continuance of the traditional peace and quiet and the slow tempo of life that, along with the climate, constitutes the distinctive appeal to tourists. Bermuda early recognized the worth of the three R's freely offered by Nature—rest, relaxation and recreation.

Bermuda's good fortune is in its mild temperatures — the year round average is about 70 degrees Fahrenheit — its blue skies, its characteristic sunshine, the green of hills softly toned by a mantle of cedars, and a wealth of flowering plants — oleanders, bougainvilleas, poinsettias, lilies, and roses. Framing all this beauty and washing the pink-and-white bathing beaches, the iridescent coral-bottomed sea provides its own attraction in color effects and marine gardens.

Included in the colony are some 360 islands. About 20 are inhabited, but only half a dozen or so are important. These main islands lie on a general northeast-southwest axis in the form of a fish-hook, the hook end enclosing Great Sound and Little Sound. Bridges and causeways knit the main group so closely that a person cycling or driving over the roads gets the impression that there is only one island. Bermuda figures its area at a little more than 19 square miles. Less than half its population of 33,000 is white. The largest town is Hamilton, the capital, with a prewar population of about 3,000.

Vegetables are grown in considerable quantities, but home folk and visitors must look to imports to fill local larders. Chief suppliers are the United States and Canada. Water for drinking and household use is a problem. Rain is caught in a cistern and tanks; during droughts water is brought from New York as ship ballast.

OIL EXECUTIVE RETIRES AFTER 35 YEARS

Gulf Boston Sales Division Manager John A. Maddocks, who is retiring after more than 35 years of active service, was honored last week, Thursday night with a dinner at the Algonquin Club tendered by the executive group of the Massachusetts Petroleum Committee. The division managers of all major oil companies were present. He was presented with a valuable pen and pencil set as a token of the esteem in which he is held by his fellows of the oil industry. The presentation speech was made by W. S. Whelen.

Earlier in the week, Mr. Maddocks was honored guest at a luncheon in the Hotel Statler attended by his Boston Division office associates. At this time he was presented with a ship's clock and barometer. He was also presented with a honorary life membership in the Gulf Club.

Mr. Maddocks entered the oil industry in October, 1907, when he became associated with the New England Oil Co., which for some time was the exclusive distributor of Gulf Products in Greater Boston. Late in that year he became manager of the New England Oil Co., which business was absorbed by Gulf in 1910. At that time Mr. Maddocks became assistant district sales manager for Gulf, and in January, 1929, became district sales manager, which title was changed on Feb. 1, 1936, to division manager for Boston Division comprising the six New England states with the exception of Western Connecticut.

During World War II Mr. Maddocks was a member of the Advisory Committee Zone 1, Supply and Distribution Committee and Distribution and Marketing Committee of the Petroleum Industry Committee. He also was chairman of the War Manpower sub-committee of the Petroleum Industry Committee for the state of Massachusetts.

Mr. Maddocks has made his home for some years in Winchester, living at 3 Woodside road. He has been active in the civic and social life of the town, having been a member of the School Committee and a former president of the old Calumet Club.

LOCAL RED CROSS HOME SERVICE

Under the chairmanship of Miss Natalie Jewett, the Home Service of the Red Cross is carrying on many quiet aids to the men and women of Winchester in the armed forces, to their dependents, and to the dependents of deceased veterans. It is a service that doesn't always get the fanfare of other activities, but one which fills a definite community need. Even the women who work on this service don't say much, eager to protect the identity and the stories of the people they help.

With the end of the war, the Home Service ladies still have emergency services to perform, and they help with pension claims and family problems—of which there are many, for the war has disrupted many families. Home Service gives financial aid to these families and supplies information on the benefits which the veteran is entitled to receive. The task of helping men and women who served in the armed forces to return to civilian life, to enable them and their families to have peace of mind and security, is faced almost daily by the Home Service workers. It is one of the vital services carried on today by the Red Cross, one which lies closest to people here at home, who are behind the Red Cross and its work through 1946.

ADDISON PIKE HONORED

Given Testimonial Dinner Upon Completing 25 Years as Town Counsel

More than 100 men, a great majority past or present town officers and members of the Finance Committee, gathered Tuesday evening at the Winchester Country Club for a testimonial dinner honoring Addison R. Pike, who on Jan. 1 completed 25 years as town counsel. The group constituted an excellent cross section of Winchester's civic life, and was a distinct tribute to the esteem in which Mr. Pike is held by his associates, past and present and his host of friends. Most of those at the dinner, through close association in town office or on committees, enjoyed an intimacy which was evidenced in the easily apparent atmosphere of good fellowship and mutual respect.

A delicious roast beef dinner was served by the club staff, following a pleasant social hour. When Mr. Pike was escorted to his place of honor at the head table by Chairman Ralph H. Bonnell of the Board of Selectmen the entire gathering rose and led by Editor T. Price Wilson of the Star, joined in three rousing cheers.

Mr. Pike was the guest of honor at the head table were Chairman Bonnell, former Chairman of Selectmen Elliott F. Cameron, Selectman Robert W. MacArthur, former Selectman and Clerk of Selectmen Donald R. Waugh and the present Selectmen's Clerk George W. Franklin, who attended to the multitudinous little details in connection with the dinner.

Chairman Bonnell ably filled the toastmaster's post and paid high tribute to Mr. Pike, to whom he referred affectionately as "the King". He felt that such a representative turnout was a well deserved tribute to the guest of honor and stated that one of the great compensations he found serving as a town officer is associating with men such as he. He felt his Board, signally honored at being in office when Mr. Pike completed his 25 years of service.

Mr. Bonnell called first on Town Moderator Joseph W. Worthen, who told of his own association with Mr. Pike, recounted some of the municipal experiences they had shared and laid his own meed of praise at the honor guest's door.

Chairman William L. Parsons of the Planning Board, followed, announcing his personal pleasure at having been a member of the Board of Selectmen who chose Mr. Pike as town counsel 25 years ago, the other members being the late Arthur A. Kidder and the late Arthur W. Dolben, James W. Blackham and George M. Bryne. He said that he liked to think that he personally was the one to propose Mr. Pike's name for town counsel and read a fanciful citation which he would use if he were a college president conferring upon the guest of honor the LL. D. degree.

Handley, assistant zone manager of the Boston office of the Chevrolet Division of General Motors Corporation, ably assisted by Mr. Paul O'Brien at the projector, presented an interesting and enlightening portrayal of vital and timely subject.

It was a pleasure to have "Phil" Gallagher back with us, following his leave of absence due to the pressure of his particular business.

The "west" table, with the superb aveal assistance of Ralph Bonnell, as dealer, the winner in the song dual with the "east" table. It is rumored that the "head" table has been rehearsing secretly before entering the choral contests.

OIL TRUCK ON FIRE

What might well have been a serious fire was nipped in the bud Tuesday afternoon when the Fire Department arrived on Washington street in time to squelch a blaze which threatened to burn a big oil truck.

The men smothered the flames, but had to drain one compartment of the truck, flushing down over 100 gallons of oil. The Highway Department then sanded the street. Police re-routed traffic over Chester and Harvard streets while the firemen were at work.

O. Everett Webber of 40 Conn street, Wakefield, driver of the truck, owned by the Metropolitan Fuel Company of 19 Broadway, Everett, said he heard the motor backfire as he was driving the truck north on Washington street at Governor's avenue. Looking in the mirror, he saw flames licking up the side of the truck, the backfire having ignited a small leak in the truck body.

HUGE CABARET SUCCESS

Winton Club Anniversary Show Acclaimed

The Winton Club Cabaret, given for the benefit of the linen supply of the Winchester Hospital took place in the Town Hall on the evenings of Feb. 1, and 2 and was voted by all those who attended, one of the outstanding successes in the twenty five years of its annual presentation. Tickets were in actual demand as the Cabaret was again back to its pre-war program, using entirely amateur talent. Peace had brought back to the footlights many recently absent performers and the evening reflected the welcome release from the strain of war time living.

The tremendous effort put in by all the committies, headed by Mrs. Lyndon B. Burnham and her equally capable husband, deserve all the praise they have received. Their efforts, extending over many months, was a triumph over numerous difficult situations and they may be justly proud of the results attained. The show was speedy, the costumes were fresh, the choice of numbers excellent and th cast one of the largest ever assembled in the Town Hall. At the end of his three weeks in town, the director, Mr. Robert S. Bancroft was voted the most popular coach the Winton Club has ever had. The cast spontaneously presented him with a gift as evidence of the affection they had enjoyed while working under his direction.

Fortunately the blizzard that coincided with last year's preformance was not repeated. Both nights were clear and cold.

Cocktail parties all over Winchester could be early spotted by the streams of cars waiting out in the darkened streets. The Country Club served a capacity number for dinner on both nights and when the audience arrived at the Show snuffled in warm furcoats and scarves, they were eager to enter the warmth of the Town Hall where Karle Rhode and his orchestra were setting the mood of the evening.

The decorations, done by a committee under Mrs. George Pierce and Mrs. Fulton Brown, carried out the idea of the Show, "Now and Then", in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Cabaret. Tall candles flanked the stage and across the proscenium were huge posters pointed against a soft rose background. The posters were masterpieces and demanded attention in their interpretation of sport wear, party and night accessories, household gadgets, and traveling gear as we know it today and knew it, yesterday.

FRED A. PRESTON

Fred A. Preston, a long time and widely known resident of Winchester, died Tuesday morning, Feb. 5, at his home, 12 Madison avenue, after a short illness. His death followed that of his wife by only 16 days.

Mr. Preston was born Jan. 29, 1861, in Reading, the son of Fletcher B., and Eliza Preston. He came to Winchester 60 years ago, at that time making his home on Washington street near the site of the present high school building.

On Nov. 13, 1895, he married Vienna Goddu, daughter of Louis and Rosanna (Roy) Goddu, in the old Goddu homestead at 13 Madison avenue. Upon their return from their honeymoon they entered the newly completed house across the street where they lived their entire married life.

As a young man Mr. Preston traveled for the Boston dry goods house of Brown Durrell Company. Later he entered the neckware manufacturing business for himself in Boston, continuing in that line until his retirement 20 years ago.

Always interested in instrumental music, Mr. Preston was a cornetist and years ago organized, and led, the old Winchester Brass Band. He was also a great lover of baseball, playing as a young man in Winchester and in the old Boston Dry Goods League, and following the game closely throughout his lifetime.

After his retirement he visited the center daily, his friendliness and genial personality winning him many friends. He was 50 years a Mason, having been a life member of William Parkman Lodge.

Mr. Preston is survived by his son, Burnham G. Preston of Winchester and by six grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at the late residence with Rev. Paul Harmon Chapman, minister of the Unitarian Church officiating. A Masonic service was conducted by W. Allan Wilde, past Master of William Parkman Lodge, with Rev. Mr. Chpaman acting as associate chaplain. Interment was in the family lot in Wildwood Cemetery.

MR. QUINN APPRAISES SCHOOL SURVEY

Former Superintendent Critical of Fowlkes Findings

James J. Quinn, superintendent of Winchester schools from 1923 until his resignation in 1945, has published a 55 page pamphlet in which he analyzes the survey of the town's school system made by Dr. John Guy Fowlkes, acting dean of the School of Education at the University of Wisconsin, and his staff, in the fall of 1944.

Mr. Quinn finds little in the Fowlkes survey about which to enthuse. Many of the inferences drawn from the survey he finds confusing in view of the factual evidence as supplied in the testing of the surveyors, while he also makes much of the fact that the testing, "blitz-testing" as he terms it, was done in the fall of the conclusion of the long summer recess, during which the memory of scholars for academic subjects can be materially dulled.

First of all, Mr. Quinn seems to feel that the survey was how-ever, under the auspices of the School Committee, responsible to Mr. Quinn, and that these two forced their choice upon the majority of the Committee. He quotes the Director of the Survey as saying to him in a semi-inquiring tone, "You did not want me to direct the Survey." In this spirit he finds the schools were "in a certain sense pre-judged before the survey was made."

The body of the pamphlet is devoted to a detailed examination of the findings of the survey. In his analysis Mr. Quinn seems to feel that many of the findings support the statement that Winchester's school were doing a good job and that in most instances the pupils tested rather above the educational norms than below them. Although he admits improvement can be made in spots, he generally seems of the opinion that practically all of the critical inferences drawn as a result of the survey either lack the support of facts as established by the surveyors' tests or are inconclusive as applied to school conditions in Winchester. He is pleased to note that the survey recognizes the competency of the professional school staff, and points out that his "indefatigable endeavor" to build such a staff and a professional spirit with his colleagues attest the strength of his leadership.

Mr. Quinn's concluding statements and summary open with the following, which we quote: "This Survey, the report of which the Superintendent has been appras

LECTURE ON HISTORIC CHARLESTOWN

At Winchester Historical Society

The regular Winter meeting of the Winchester Historical Society was held on Sat. Feb. 2 at 2:30 p. m. at the Library. The president Miss Clara Russell presided and after a short business meeting, during which she expressed regret that there were not more present, introduced the speaker Rev Wolcott Cutler who gave a most interesting illustrated lecture on Historic Charlestown.

Mr. Cutler's pictures showed the development of Charlestown from the coming of white people to these shores, with old maps and artists' picture of the harbor in the vicinity of Charlestown and Boston, and historians' conception of Beacon Hill which was made up of three hills.

These were followed with view of cuts showing the early ships coming here. The early artists pictures of Bunker Hill, cuts of the battle of Bunker Hill and later the construction of Bunker Hil monument, and early artists conception of the monument.

The pictures of the early bridges from Charlestown to Boston were very interesting, also the early ferries which appeared to be only small boats.

The pictures also showed the houses that followed this period and some of the doorways and interiors of these houses and churches. It was some eight years after the battle of Bunker Hill before people went back there to live.

Mr. Cutler's final pictures showed some colored garden scenes and the familiar fountain at Sullivan Square.

The Society was pleased to acknowledge a cut and program of the laying of the corner stone of Bunker Hill monument in 1825, received from Miss Louise Mitchell, which was of considerable interest at this time and of value.

The meeting adjourned from the hall upstairs to the new rooms of the Historical Society on the lower floor of the Library which offer much more floor space and better opportunity for the articles in the cases, which has been made possible by the Library Trustee.

The Police received a complaint from a resident of Cross street over the past week-end, the report being that a large window in his home had been broken during the night. It was found that the glass had been broken by an onion, which had been used as a missile and which was found inside the house by the owner. It was something new in the way of breaking glass even for the Police.

WINCHESTER ENTERS STATE INDOOR MEET

Coach John Downes of the Winchester High School track team has selected eight members of the squad to participate in the State Indoor Meet at the Boston Garden on Saturday afternoon.

Heading the local entrants will be tall Tom Kirwan who won the 1000 at the recent Northeastern meet at the YMCA. Not a few who saw the Winchester runner spread-eagle his field on that occasion have tabbed him as the boy to beat for State honors tomorrow. Tom is a strong runner, having been unbeaten in cross country competition this past fall when he climaxed his season by handily winning the State harrier crown. He was approximately two seconds under the runner-up in the Northeastern meet and will face about the same field tomorrow. According to Coach Downes the boy who beats him at the Garden will do a lot of running.

Supporting Kirwan at the Garden will be Pete Dillingham and Don McFarlane in the 50 yard dash and Jack Chisholm in the 300. Ben Coe and Tom Thornton are entered in the 600 and two husky footballers, big John West and Bill Nichols, in the shot. West was just outside the points in the Northeastern meet, with very little practice, and he may well improve his performance tomorrow.

Representing Winchester in the relay raing will be Dillingham, McFarlane, Chisholm and Coe.

Lt. Col. Dillingham was one of five officers so decorated at ceremonies held in Rome. Crown Prince Umberto, Lt. General of the Italian Realm, presented the decoration, the third which the Winchester officer has received, others being the Legion of Merit and the War Medal of Brazil.

Lt. Col. Dillingham has been overseas for nearly three years, at present being attached to Headquarters, PBS., Southern section, at Naples. After the exercises in Rome he gave his wife and three children, Paul W., Jr., Ann and Deborah, a big thrill by talking with them by telephone from the Italian capitol city.

HIGH SHCOOL PUPILS X-X-RAYED

Assistant Principal Samuel M. Graves and School Nurse, Ethel R. Savage, R. N., assisted Technician J. Herbert Blunn and Miss Mildred Given, R. N., by arranging student groups and preparing necessary paper work.

The x-ray plates will be interpreted by Dr. David Zackes of the Mass. Department of Public Health.

LYBECK AT HIGHLANDS MEN'S CLUB

Robert F. Lybeck was the guest speaker last evening at the monthly meeting of the Highlands Men's Club. His topic was aviation of the future.

"Aviation has truly captured the imagination of the American people. In modern warfare the airplane has demonstrated its power as a weapon. Its potentialities in a world at peace are as yet unrealized.

"It may occupy the same place in our domestic economy as did the automobile in 1919. The extent to which individuals will fly personal planes are but one of the questions which challenge us in future air development.

A well-known local resident, Mr. Lybeck has for the past twenty-four years been associated with the Colonial Beacon Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, and for those companies, more recently he has specialized in the application of petroleum products to the development of aircraft. He holds academic degrees of B. S. and M. S. from Tufts College, and is a member of the National Aeronautical Association and Society of Automotive Engineers."

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT NOTES

At their regular meeting on Monday evening the Winchester School Committee accepted the resignation of Miss Mary Good, teacher of Grade 4 at the George Washington School. Miss Good, who began as a building assistant at the Wyman School, has been at the Washington School for the past two and one-half years. Her resignation, effective Feb. 21, will enable her to assume teaching duties in Newton.

Mr. Felmet reports that 135 elementary school pupils have instruments and are eager for band instruction and rehearsals.

Supt. Norris reports that several items recommended by the Survery Staff have been accomplished among them the adoption of a salary schedule, the inauguration of principals' conferences at regular intervals, the appointment of a Supervisor of Buildings and Grounds and review of the Social Studies and Arithmetic curricula. Special committees are at work on the programs for social studies and arithmetic.

The first lecture of a semester course entitled "Art in Elementary Education" was delivered by Mrs. Mildred M. Landis of Harvard University in Room 32 at Winchester High School on Wednesday, Jan. 30. This course is designed for elementary teachers, principals and supervisors, and aims to give a basic understanding of the philosophy and techniques of art instruction.

Specifically, this course discusses ways and means of fostering creative art activity that gives the child a maximum amount of freedom, but at the same time takes into account the purpose for which this freedom is used.

Books on the philosophy of art will be studied in search of underlying principles supporting the newer practices. Study will also be made of the relation of the teacher practices in the art field to the general aims of education, graduate credit is granted by Boston University for this course. Teachers from other towns are also enrolled here.

Lt. Charles S. Eaton, USNR, of 3 Foxcroft road, was released from duty in the U. S. Navy at the Separation Center in San Francisco Jan. 17.

The CIO, we read, is staging a "demonstration" strike for two hours next Tuesday. It intends to wag its tail and blow its smoke in our eyes to show us just what it can do. In other words it will play its usual game of intimidation. Like everything CIO, this "demonstration" will be of real benefit to the public at large. Great attention is to be made, we read, of allowing the doctors freedom to visit their patients. Our water will not be cut off. No objection is to be made to anyone driving his automobile during the two hour period. In fact the benefits and allowances made by the CIO are so generous that it is difficult for the outsider to understand how this organization can do it. This "demonstration" is to show the CIO power in influencing our State legislators in casting their vote for better social security. The CIO is demanding that all strikers be paid unemployment benefits while on strike! Of course the CIO has nothing to do with this social security except to take the money. It's the little suckers like us who are being milked to build up this million dollar fund. We pay a per cent of all money spent in wages to employees; no one else pays anything. They are the boys and girls who get it and spend it. Why, they ask, should not anyone on strike receive social security benefits? They get everything else; always more pay of course, and if a non-union man needs to be discharged they have it done. So—next Tuesday we will see just what they can do. Then we are expected to run to our Representatives and beseech and implore them to aid the poor strikers. Well—the Star Office will not be closed. That is, unless the CIO pickets us and refuses to allow anyone to go in or out of our building. In this great era of Democracy and under our New Deal Constitution, we admit that can easily be done. But if we find any Representative of our choosing voting for the measure, he will never be any choice of ours again. In the first place we are actually fined because we hire anyone and in the second place besides being compelled to hire bookkeepers and accountants to help collect their taxes, we are pouring the milk into the New Deal pail to give unwilling aid to this new form of government our late departed Ruler devised.

Yesterday, according to report, the two-hour strike was called off. We follow the above comment, written previously, to date, since its subject matter portrays the usual CIO threat; now keeping this country in an uproar. In announcing the cancellation of the strike, the remarks of Mr. Joseph Salerno, State CIO president, as published follow in part: "Due to the hysteria created by some newspapers, and the advice of Phil Murray . . . we will call off the mass meeting and voluntary work stoppage for next Tuesday, Feb. 12. We will dedicate our efforts to collect funds for the needy strikers so that greedy corporations will not use hunger as a weapon against labor."

Issued and distributed this week is a 55-page pamphlet compiled by our former Superintendent of Schools criticising our School Survey made a year ago, and not by any means complimentary to our School Committee. It is to be regretted that the superintendent has felt it necessary at this late hour to attempt to open another school controversy. Winchester changed superintendents nearly a year ago. It seems to have got off to a good start even though the Survey was good, bad or indifferent. What can be obtained by starting, or attempting to start, dissension in school matters is difficult to understand. Surely Mr. Quinn does not seek to return again to his former position, and Superintendent Norris has given no indication that he is slavishly following the Survey findings. Winchester residents are generally credited with common-sense. Common-sense should have led Mr. Quinn to drop the matter last year. That not predominating, commonsense throughout the Town will probably not support any attempt to change or over-ride our present educational program.

That was a nice party and a well deserved tribute to Addison Pike, Winchester's town counsel for the past 25 years, at the Country Club Tuesday evening. A particularly representative group was present and all the fine things said about Addison came straight from the heart. There was a friendliness and simple sincerity about the whole thing that got down a lot deeper than any more elaborate program could have hoped to go. Friendliness and respect need no dressing up, and no sales talks were needed at this testimonial to a town servant who has been wise in counsel, faithful in the performance of his duty, loyal to his associates, honest, tolerant, and above all, friendly, courteous and kind. The Star is pleased to add its personal appreciation of Addison through the years. Always we have found him helpful, mindful of the difficulties of reporting municipal affairs and very understanding of the inaccuracies which invariably occur in lay writing of legal matters. We, too, think Winchester was fortunate in the Selectmen's choice of a town counsel 25 years ago.

Mr. Waugh, called on next, is now director of industrial relations for the Electric Boat Company of Groton, Conn. He came to Winchester to pay his own tribute to Mr. Pike and to inform the gathering that one needs to leave Winchester to get a true appreciation of the town's worth.

Continuing, he referred to the late Selectman Henry J. Maguire, whom he characterized as one of the most able business men to fill the office during his connection with town affairs. Mr. Maguire he said, often stated that it would be impossible for the town adequately to compensate Mr. Pike for his advice and counsel.

Mr. Fisher, past president of the Massachusetts Town Counselors and Solicitors Association, was the last of the speakers called upon. He prefaced his remarks with the statement that members of his organization look to Winchester as a model of municipal efficiency, and added that Counsellors and Solicitors throughout the state have looked up to Mr. Pike as the last word on political law. Mr. Pike, said Mr. Fisher, represents an epoch, or era, which is fast passing out of existence, an era in which public servants stand on principal rather than expediency. The speaker closed by stating that Mr. Pike has been an inspiration to solicitors throughout the State.

Spontaneous remarks were contributed by Joseph L. S. Barton of the Board of Cemetery Commissioners, Danforth Comins, former town officer now living in Concord and Frank E. Rowe, secretary of the Planning Board, the latter getting a laugh when he announced he was not rising to move adjournment.

Mr. Bonnell presented the meeting's gift to Mr. Pike, two handsome pieces of matched leather luggage.

Deeply affected by the gift and tributes paid him, Mr. Pike admitted he was overcome and completely bewildered. He had expected nothing like the honors shown him, and although he was human enough to admit he liked it he couldn't, for the depth of his emotion, say what he wanted to about it all. Perhaps he could not anyhow, he said, for he pretends to no skill at making speeches.

Giving the lie to this statement, he most effectively thanked the Board of Selectmen and all others who in any way had aided in making the party so pleasant.

Continuing, he touched briefly upon some of the highlights in municipal affairs during the past 25 years and closed with a tribute to Winchester's town officers and the civic-mindedness of the inhabitants of the town.

The civic-mindedness he characterized as the "Winchester Tradition," a fine intelligent civic spirit manifesting itself in unselfish service to the community's behalf, a service which has made and will make for prudent and efficient town government.

Calling upon all to carry on this tradition, he spoke of his own pleasure in having had a part in Winchester affairs for the past 40 years, 25 of them as town counsel. He could think of no post he could have filled that would have given him more pleasure and satisfaction than being town counsel in Winchester for the past 25 years.

In closing, Mr. Pike, with deep feeling, spoke of the great reward which has come to him through his public service in the splendid friendships he has formed with the fine public spirited men who have served the town during his incumbency, men who have invariably shown him the utmost in courtesy, respect and consideration.

SCHOOL SURVEY

ing, cost over $10,000. It was a survey of a public school system with a pupil enrollment of about 2500. The Town was entitled to something much better for this expenditure than it received. The blighting spirit which has characterized the direction and much of the Survey, has withered our hopes and impaired our morale. The inconsistencies and contradictions so characteristic of the typewritten report (given early to School Committee members only) were not wholly eliminated from the printed report; . . . The haste with which the Survey was made is reflected in the poorly organized and poorly written report. The basing of conclusions on incorrect assumption, especially in the field of subject testing, has vitiated much of a large section of the Survey Report . . . Enough money was appropriated to include a survey of school building needs. Any one of a half dozen educators in the East would have given a more accurate, more constructive, more complete and fairer survey than we have received. Any one of these also would have given a survey permeated with an understanding spirit. All this could have been had at less cost. The Survey Report is a distinct disappointment to the Superintendent and to many educators who have had the persistence to read all of it. As one competent educator said, who is interested in the appraisal of school systems: "It is a new low in surveys."

"The Superintendent deplores this exceedingly. He had expectations that a survey costing in excess of $10,000 would appraise adequately the many good things in our schools so that these might be capitalized for encouragement and advancement. This would have given a lift and buoyancy to our staff and to our citizens. He had expectations also that matters needing correction would be fairly pointed out and that many more helpful, detailed, constructive suggestions would follow.

"The Superintendent had expected furthermore that the Survey Report would be of such quality that it would be helpful in other school systems; this it will not be. One Superintendent, after reading it, asked for several copies to show his teachers "what a survey should not be."

With reference to members of the School Committee Mr. Quinn feels that they are laymen and should not be expected to know the professional aspects of an educational system. In this connection he writes:

"There has been too much secret dealing with criticism on the part of the present School Committee. The Superintendent and Staff should know more specifically and openly from whom the criticism comes.

In another section of his appraisal Mr. Quinn finds that the present School Committee has frequently digressed from the appropriate field of school committee department. He says: "Special committees have been appointed too frequently, to be sure not standing committees, which have voted very much as standing committees. They have usurped the Superintendent's functions, dealt directly with members of the staff, ignored him in considering several questions on which he at least should be heard, and have by-passed over his head, weakened his position of leadership."

Mr. Quinn found no justice done this in the School Survey, and says further: "The committee should not be ashamed to acknowledge that they are lay people. They should not be expected to know the professional aspects of an educational system; to pretend or think they know has been one of the weaknesses of the present committee."

Mr. Quinn's appraisal is quite outspoken. Some of its characterizing words and phrases are "Two pages not worth discussing"—"Inadequate and unfair appraisal"—"more irritating than magnetizing"—"fallacy" "erroneous appraisal"—"usual disparaging statement"—"contradictions" — "high-handed school committee actions"—"undemocratic procedure of the school committee, a lay group, must be condemned severely"—"Survey Report, in conformity with much of its blighted spirit"—"trivia in parts of the report"—"so many statements in the Survey Report which are not true and which are most unfair to the Superintendent that the Superintendent does not intend to waste his time and money in wringing many of them out of the Survey Report"—"long-winded chapter on School Committee Structure . . ."

While names are studiously avoided Mr. Quinn does make specific reference to a "lawyer" and "pediatrician" on the School Committee, and since there is only one of each on the committee their identity is not too difficult to deduce.

WINTON CLUB

The programs sold easily as there was a lucky number attached to each one, Mrs. Herman Pike drew a Wedgewood pitcher Friday night and Mrs. Henry Reeves received an aluminum bowl on Saturday night. The refreshment booth was actually sold out, the waxen white gardenias offered by a group of attractive young Winchester daughters were soon to be seen on every evening gown in the ball and the cigarettes sold by a second group of young people were shortly going up in smoke as the audience settled down into their seats and the curtain rose for the opening number.

The Minstrel Show, with its very smooth interlocutor, Mr. Woodford Wilcox, operated from the stage and the singing of the old favorites brought an instant response from the audience which joined in lustily on all the choruses, "Shine on Harvest Moon" and "The Atchinson, Topeka and the Santa Fe" were two of the numbers sung and when the dancing girls tapped out on to the floor in their railroad costumes of dungarees, white shirts and little blue workman's caps, the audience greeted them with a tremendous applause. Incidentally, the greeting constantly used by one of the minstrel singers, "Hi-Ya Burlap" promises to become a universal Winchester salutation!

The Flodora girls with their parasols, feathers and ruffles were a marked contrast to the Samba number with their long close fitting evening gowns. The men in dress suits soon had the audience stamping with them as the rhythm was irresistible! The Bathing Beauty number or Now and Then brought gasps of envy from the audience as the coming beach fashions paraded across the stage. The girls of yesterday were likewise given a tremendous hand for the hilarity and humor they put into a dance that proved to be extremely demanding of their breath and vigor. In fact, there was a marked affinity between the stage and audience all through the evening as the villians were hissed and the heroes applauded in the skits.

The Musical Comedy number with the Alpine boys in velvet pants and jaunty feathered hats and their partners in colorful peasant costumes with flowers in their hair were a feast to watch and a sharp contrast in costume and dancing with the well matched group of girls doing a smart comedy routine. The waltzes of Now and Then were equally lovely, especially the Merry Widows who literally glided out on the floor with no visible method of locomotion under their hooped skirts. The following number, the devils, brought back a touch of the military and was a delight to watch in the precision of its execution.

The singing of Dana Kelly, Harry Lawless and Sherman Russell was excellent and the group of seven men with "41 years ago were in a Broadway Show," brought down the house, who can ever forget "Annie, Fannie, Bessie, Tessie, Polly, Molly and Flo!"

The anniversary finale with twenty-five of the performers in creamy white satin dresses was a beautiful ending to the Cabaret. The sedate parade ended in a grouping on the steps leading from the floor to the stage, the lights were dimmed and the panels on these steps became twenty five candles glowing in the dark. The Cabaret had again achieved its climax and dancing was resumed with an audience well satisfied with the evening's entertainment.

The Hospital is now assured of its linen for the immediate future, new friendships have been formed to last for many years to come, old friendships strengthened and revived. The Cabaret is an institution in Winchester we cannot do without. May it prosper for many years to come as it has in the twenty five years since its inception.

BETHANY MEETING

The monthly meeting of the Bethany Society was held at the Second Congregational Church last Tuesday. There were 120 served at the luncheon, which was followed by a progressive meeting.

Among the innovations decided upon at the meeting was a monthly, all day session. The morning to be set aside for sewing, then there would be a box luncheon with hot coffee and dessert and then a devotional service and speaker.

The first such meeting has been scheduled for Tuesday, March 26, the speaker has yet to be arranged for. It was felt that such a meeting would fill in a vital part of the groups activity which has been lacking for the past few years.

A silver tea has been planned for Feb. 15 and will be at the home of Mrs. Manahan, 5 Central street. All the ladies of the congregation have been invited and it is hoped that many will bring their friends to what promises to be a most enjoyable afternoon.

The date for the roll call supper also has been set and various committees have been set up to plan for this annual event.

The chairman for the luncheon committee was Mrs. Baker, who was ably assisted by Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Carlson, Mrs. Crockford, Mrs. Eddy, Mrs. Farnum, Mrs. Richford, Mrs. Morrow, Mrs. A. Foster and Mrs. Manahan.

Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, held another of its popular social nights last evening at the Post Headquarters on Washington street. Games, cards and refreshments made up the program and refreshments were served.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The speaker at the meeting of the Winchester Women's Republican Club last Wednesday was Hon. Edwin O. Childs, ex-Mayor of Newton, who gave a very inspiring talk on "A Good Citizen in the Home Town."

Mrs. Marshall R. Pihl, president made some appropriate remarks in honor of Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday will be celebrated next week. She then called upon Mrs. Kingman P. Cass and Mrs. B. Chamberlin, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, for reports on the dessert bridge party held last month. This party proved to be very successful, many generous donations having been received in addition to the large number of tickets sold. The table prizes were brightly-painted flower pots filled with gay cocktail napkins in a nosegay effect.

The door prize, a set of playing cards donated by Mrs. Chamberlin, was won by Mrs. Osman F. Giddy.

Mrs. Arthur Haines was holder of the lucky number which won a beautiful azalea plant, to the branches of which were attched 10 new $1 bills.

The club wishes to thank all those who bought tickets and otherwise contributed so generously to the success of this affair. The party was under the capable management of Mrs. Fred B. Chamberlin and the following committee: Mrs. James M. Beale, Mrs. Evander French, Mrs. Thomas S. Knight, Mrs. W. Allan Wilde, Mrs. Theodore Elliott, Mrs. H. T. Wadsworth, Mrs. Victor Wolff, Mrs. Stanley D. Howe, Mrs. Kingman P. Cass and Mrs. Marshall R. Pihl, ex-officio.

Following the report of the bridge party, Mrs. Cass, chairman of registration, pointed out to club members that the next dates for registration of voters will be Feb. 18 and 19 from 2 to 5 and from 7 to 9.30 p. m. and on Feb. 20 from 12 to 10 p. m. Registration is open to those who have been residents of the state for one year and of Winchester for six months.

At the close of the meeting, tea was served by the Social Committee, Mrs. Alfred W. Drew, chairmann. The pourers were Mrs. Theodore Elliott and Mrs. Wellington L. Caldwell.

MISS BROWN, MR. YARDLEY ENGAGED

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Brown of Cambridge road, Woburn are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Elsie Brown to Mr. Richard Yardley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Yardley of Oneida road, Winchester.

Miss Brown graduated from Woburn High School and attended Boston University. Mr. Yardley attended Bates and Tuft Colleges and is completing his education at Suffolk Law School. He is a member of the Theta Delta Chi Fraternity. An April wedding is planned.

EPIPHANY ANNUAL PARISH MEETING

The parish of the Epiphany held its annual dinner, business meeting and election Tuesday, Jan. 29. At 6 o'clock the Hospitality Committee, headed by the co-chairmen Mrs. Maxwell McCreery and Mrs. Hugh Webster, served fruit juice in the library.

Dinner was served at 6.30 in the parish hall. The parish Ways and Means Committee which had it in charge, represented four active parish groups: Mrs. Ralph Swanson, chairman, Symmes Corner group; Mrs. Frank Ebers, Jordan Group; Mrs. Earl D. Owen, Tuesday Luncheon Group; and Mrs. John Hanlon, the Evening Branch. The dinner guests were enthusiastic in their thanks to the dinner committee for their skill in planning a delicious menu in spite of scarcities and carrying the plan through triumphantly. Members of the four groups that furnished the leaders assisted in the kitchen and in serving.

In parish reports the president of the Young People's Fellowship, William Shoemaker, reported the successful working of this year's program planned in advance, and thanked the adviser, Mr. John D. Stevens, for indispensable help in planning and in securing guest speakers. June Moffette, the first of Epiphany young people to enjoy the new South Shore center for summer activities, "Briarwood," gave a sprightly account of her days there last summer.

The Rector, Mr. Hadley, the parish treasurer, Mr. Maxwell Fish and the Senior Warden, Mr. Clarence Perkins, gave cheering reports of parish progress in 1945, and Mr. Perkins commended to our best thought and most generous individual decisions the approaching Sunday of offerings to the fund for world-wide Reconstruction and Advance.

For the Men's Club Mr. Maxwell McCreery reported. For women's activities, Mrs. Harold H. Blanchard, elected read of all parish women, bound into a sheaf the year's work of many; Mrs. Harvard Mann reported for the Altar Guild, Mrs. Richard Frazier for the Tuesday Luncheon Group and Mrs. Alfred Denley for the Evening Branch.

Miss Ethel Bradford Davis, director of religious education, reported on the church school, its enrollment, the new plan for high school freshmen, and the gifts which the school makes for the church beyond the parish horizon.

Warden, 2 years, Gerald Y. Hills

Enthusiasm is mounting as elaborate plans progress for the Wednesday Night Club birthday dinner to be held Friday evening, Feb. 15 at 6.45 in parish hall of the First Congregational Church.

The dinner committee headed by Mrs William Rodgers as chairman and Mrs. R. J. Dickman assistant chairman promises (to use their own words) "a real bang-up home cooked birthday dinner with all the trimmings." Others on the committee assisting the chairmen will be: Mrs. James Robertson, Mrs. F. Milne Blanchard, Mrs. Harold Jones, Mrs. Benjamin Coe, Mrs. Kimball Archibald, Mrs. Henry N. Wheeler, Mrs. Paul Nason, Mrs. Frank Carrolly, Mrs. J. W. S. Hammond, Mrs Ralph Swan, Mrs. Foster Cleaves, Mrs. George Colin, Mrs. George Traut and Mrs. F. Meredith Cooper.

Since each one is celebrating his own birthday the committee do not wish to divulge all the plans but pleasant birthday surprises will make it an evening to be long remembered.

Bringing in the "Groceries"
An all-year-round activity of the New Haven Railroad . . . bringing in thousands of carloads of fresh meats, fruits, vegetables, and many other items that add freshness and variety to New England menus.

Bringing in the Guests
Another big task of the New Haven Railroad is to bring in its share of New England's 2,500,000 winter and summer visitors. Because the New Haven Railroad bears so much of this freight and passenger carrying responsibility, we are interested in all parts of New England. This year, with thousands more people planning long-deferred vacations, we are readying our modern equipment to provide them with the gracious comforts that they associate with train travel into New England. Air conditioned equipment now on order will embody the newest trends in passenger train design . . . including stainless steel exterior coaches . . . luxurious new parlor cars . . . smartly appointed Diners and Grill cars. All are planned to make our guests more comfortable . . . to offer them more conveniences, more room to move about, more space for relaxation.

We're in this Recreational Business together . . .
We bring in the guests on the same gleaming rails over which flow the "groceries" for New England and its five thousand hotels, inns, and other friendly little places-to-stay. The more we bring in, the better business it means for you. Our prosperity depends upon your success, and the continuing prosperity of New England.

WINCHESTER ART ASSOCIATION

An enthusiastic membership attended the February meeting of the Winchester Art Association Tuesday evening in the Public Library to hear Prof. Lyle K. Bush speak on, "Painting: Retrospect and Reconversion," and to see the unusual exhibit of Old Masters, loaned by the Museum of Fine Arts and the Fogg Museum.

One of the features of the exhibition, open to the public at the Library each week day, 10 a. m. to 9 p. m., is a head painted after Rubens by Mr. Alfred Lowe whose brilliant work in the restoration of paintings has given students and art lovers much valuable knowledge regarding the techniques of the masters, and who has rescued many significant works of art from discard. Another feature of the exhibit is a copy by Dr. Denman Ross of Valasquez' portrait of the Duke of Olivares. Due to the careful selection of Mr. John Constable, Curator of Paintings at the Museum of Fine Arts, Mr. Alfred Lowe of the Restoration Department, and Mr. Arthur Pope, acting director of the Fogg Museum, the Winchester exhibit is admirably representative of the major schools of the 17th century.

"Some of the greatest masters, in particular Michelangelo and Leonardo, had dealt with ideas of sufficient social and scientific interest to remain applicable today, Professor Bush stated, illustrating his excellent lecture with his own slides. Many painters are now toying with the implications of the fourth dimension, just as Renaissance painters quickly came to grips with three dimensions when such concepts attained significance at the end of the Middle Ages. Among these painters are such men in the general Expressionist movement as Vasily Kandinski and John Marin." Professor Bush is a noted authority on Dutch and Asiatic art, and is head of the Fine Arts Department at Simmons College.

G. Russell Mann presided and introduced the speaker, and refreshments were served with Mrs. Gerald Curtis and Mrs. Robinson Whitten, hostesses; Mrs. Fred Oliver and Mrs. Elnar Bratt, pourers.

FALSE ALARM

Fire Headquarters received a telephone call at 10:43 Tuesday night, reporting a fire at the home of Mr. Charles Haggerty, 1034 Main street. Box 45 was put on and apparatus dispatched to the house which is near the Woburn line.

Upon arrival the men found that the alarm had been false. A check on the telephone call disclosed that it had been made from a pay station in Woburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Erastus B. Badger, Mr. and Mrs. Norman L. Cushman, Mrs. Cutler B. Downer, Mrs. Arthur A. Kidder, Judge Raymond S. Wilkins and Lt. Col. Nathan Thumim are Winchester people among the guarantors for the Metropolitan Opera Company's Boston season this spring.

BOY SCOUT WEEK FEB. 8-14

The week Feb. 8 to 14 is Boy Scout Week and is being widely observed throughout the country.

There will be a special church service on Feb. 10 to which all Winchester Boy Scouts and their friends are cordially invited. It will be held at the Winchester Baptist Church. Reverend Mr. Bailey officiating. All groups will assemble by 10:15 a. m. in the recreational hall in the basement of the church. Cubs, Scouts and Leaders should all be in uniform. Unit leaders should report to Skipper Louis Goddu, or Commissioner Weld. Church service begins at 10:30.

In a message to the Boy Scouts of America on their 36th anniversary, being observed nationally during Boy Scout Week, Feb. 8 to 14, Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Chief of Naval Operations, commends "the program established by the Boy Scouts which he said, "tends to promote better relations and enlightenment between the youth and therefore the peoples, of all nations."

The theme of Boy Scout Week this year is "Scouts of the World-Building Together", and throughout the year the nearly two million members of the Boy Scouts of America will help Scout Associations overseas rebuild their organizations. Financial aid and the shipment of Scout literature and other equipment is made possible by the Scout's own World Friendship Fund of voluntary contributions from its members. In addition, during Boy Scout Week and throughout February, Boy Scouts through their "Shirts-Off-Our-Backs" campaign are collecting serviceable Scout uniforms and camping gear from active members and former Scouts for shipment overseas.

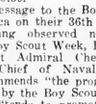

Admiral Nimitz's message is as follows:

"It is a pleasure to greet you, the Boy Scouts of America, on the occasion of your 36th anniversary. Since 1910, your organization has contributed significantly to the welfare and well-being of the young men of this country. The preservation of America and its way of life through four difficult years of World War II was due in part to men who received benefit in youth from the Boy Scouts.

"today throughout the world we are faced with the problem of peace. Cooperation and understanding between the peoples of all nations are necessary to insure an enduring peace and the program established by the Boy Scouts tends to promote better relations and enlightenment between the youth, and therefore the peoples, of all nations.

"You of today will be the leaders of tomorrow. The outdoor activities, the opportunities for community service, and the participation in world friendship movements offered by the Scouts provide a scout basis for training and developing the youth of America to be individually of sound body and mind, and to be collectively the leaders of this country and the world in the future.

"For the future we must build together, and I am sure that every Boy Scout will be a builder for his country and for the peace and happiness of the world."

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Last week Troop 10 was entertained by Mrs. Stuart K. Harris, whose husband is Professor of Ornithology at B. U. Mrs. Harris showed us 90 pictures from the book "Birds of Massachusetts." Many of the birds have been seen around here. It was very interesting and we enjoyed it greatly.

Some of the girls of Troop 10 are working on the Foods Badge some on the Child Care, some on Photography, some on the Bird Badge. In February we are starting Folk Dancing and will enjoy a Valentine party. One group has already completed the Hostess Badge.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

On Friday, Feb. 1st, the seven members of the Fortnightly Press and Radio Committee enjoyed a thoroughly professional outing in Boston. They went first to the W. B. Z. Studios at the Hotel Bradford where they attended Marjorie Mills' broadcast at 12:30. Her charming welcome to them all, the gay nonsense with "Carl" about vivid hats, chopped or unchopped clams, the right kinds of coffee and bread, and many other helpful hints to housewives, all combined to make the broadcast an exceptionally delightful occasion.

After luncheon at a reserved table in a nearby restaurant, they went on to the office of the Boston Herald. Miss Margaret Ford, the Women's Club Editor, welcomed them cordially, and assigned her assistant, Miss Louisa Sommers, to personally conduct them through the building. After visiting the composing room, watching the engraving of pictures, catching glimpses of Marjorie Mills and Alice Dixon Bond at their special desks, and even digging into the "graveyard", they were finally allowed to see the paper being printed, folded and bundled for delivery. The headlines were the same ones they had watched being set up a short time before!

The day was such a great success - and the seven members were such a perfect fit in one automobile - that they are already planning another trip.

Next Meeting Feb. 11

The illustrated lecture on South America, to be given in the Parish House of the First Congregational Church, will be by Mr. Donald J. Moore. He is the son of one of our own Fortnightly members, Mrs. Harry E. Moore of 9 Winthrop street. Mr. Moore is an authority on Latin America, and his pictures are exceptionally fine.

Literature Group

The Literature Committee, in their course in the Development of Literature in Massachusetts, greatly enjoyed the papers by Mrs. Ruth Gunby and Mrs. Blanche Barnard, at their meeting last Monday.

Mrs. Gunby traced the history of Massachusetts newspapers from the Boston News Letter of 1704, first newspaper published in the Colonies, and the Boston Gazette, begun in 1710, right up to and including the Winchester Star. She invited the group, and all Fortnightly members who are interested, to visit the Boston Globe on Monday, Feb. 18, to see a paper printed. Further details later.

Mrs. Barnard spoke about Massachusetts magazines and periodicals from earliest days, paying particular attention to the North American Review, which was originally a Boston publication; the Youth's Companion, about which fond memories still linger; and the Atlantic Monthly.

The next meeting of the Literature Group will be held in the Public Library on Monday, March 4, when the development of the novel in Massachusetts will be discussed by Mrs. Vera Morton and Mrs. Gertrude Kimball. These meetings are among the choicest offerings of the Fortnightly, and all club members are reminded that they are cordially welcome to attend, whether they take part in the study or just sit back and enjoy entertaining and stimulating afternoon.

Regular Meeting Feb. 25

The American Home program, originally sheduled for an earlier date, is to be given on Monday, Feb. 25, in the Parish House of the First Congregational Church. Mrs. Ainsworth and Mrs. Ambler are preparing a program of hilarious entertainment combined with invaluable information about colors and styles. No woman can afford to miss it. More details later.

Philanthropy Luncheon March 1

On Friday, March 1, at the Parish Hall of the Church of the Epiphany, a delicious home-cooked luncheon is being planned by the Philanthropy Committee. Mrs. Elizabeth Hall is in charge. Tel. Win. 0687.

Mrs. Robert B. Blackler will be in charge of admissions and ushers for the afternoon will be Mrs. Albert A. Haskell and Mrs. Charles B. Watson.

INADEQUATE PROTECTION

Umbrellas with holes in them are no good in the rain. Such protection as they afford is inadequate. Neither does an insurance program which leaves loopholes for possible losses give the policyholder adequate protection.

Modern insurance is capable of doing a very complete job of protection, but only if the various policies are properly integrated to the needs of the individual. This usually requires a detailed survey by a competent insurance advisor. Our agency has the men and the facilities to adjust your insurance to your particular needs. May we review your present policies and prepare a chart showing the extent and the limitations of your present insurance program? Call this agency today for a free insurance survey!

OBSERVED SILVER WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Gibbons, Jr., of Wendell street observed their 25 wedding anniversary last Saturday evening, Feb. 9, at Knights of Columbus Hall where they were hosts to more than 100 relatives and friends from Winchester and surrounding cities and towns. Among the guests were Mr. Gibbons' parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Gibbons of Woburn, who had observed their Golden Wedding anniversary last August.

Last Saturday evening's observance included an informal reception, followed by a social hour and buffet luncheon. Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons received many gifts and expressions of esteem, among them being a substantial purse of silver from Winchester Council, 2103, Knights of Columbus, with which Mr. Gibbons has long been identified.

Mr. Gibbons, known to many in town as custodian at the Junior High School, married Julia G. Langford of Winchester Feb. 6, 1921, the ceremony being performed at St. Mary's Rectory by Fr. Corbett, then a curate at St. Mary's Church.

They have four children, Mrs. John Gonsalves of Woburn; and Julia C., William H., 3rd, and James Matthew Gibbons, all of Winchester.

BOYS PICKED UP AFTER BREAKING INTO GINN HOUSE

Two Winchester boys, one 13 and residing on the west side, the other 14 and living in the highlands, were picked up by Officer William E. Callahan early Sunday afternoon after they had forced an entrance into the unoccupied house at the Ginn estate on Bacon street.

Headquarters was notified by phone that two boys had been seen around the house and Officer Callahan was sent to investigate. He picked up the boys and took them to Headquarters where they were questioned by Sgt. Thomas F. Cassidy.

Police say they got into the house by forcing a small door underneath a piazza on the northerly side of the house, then breaking a window in an inner cellar door, reaching through the broken panel with a stick and pushing up a window on the northerly side of the house.

This done they went out and got in through the window they had opened. They told the Police they had taken some keys from the house and thrown them into the snow outside.

The matter was reported to the trustees of the Ginn estate for whatever action they may care to take.

JOSEPH GODSOE

Winchester Man Assisted in Early X-Ray Experiments

Joseph Godsoe of 89 Main street retired Massachusetts General Hospital pharmacist who assisted in early experiments with X-Ray, died Feb. 8 at that hospital following an illness of 73. He had lived in Winchester for the past 10 years, coming here from Somerville. He was a member of Soley Lodge, A. F. and A. M., in that city.

Mr. Godsoe was born Aug. 4, 1871, at St. John, N. B. He attended grammar school in St. John and lived there until a boy of 11 when he came to Boston to live with a relative on Beacon Hill.

For a time he worked at the old Houghton and Dutton Department store in Boston, but on May 4, 1894, he went to work at the Massachusetts General Hospital as a porter in the Apotheecary Department.

There he met Walter Dodd, then assistant apothecary and photographer, who after taking a medical degree became one of the famous pioneer radiologists, not only of Boston but of the United States.

Forced to forego his own ambition to become a doctor, Mr. Godsoe secured a leave of absence from the hospital and studied at the Hinds Electrical Company in Lowell, mastering the technicalities of induction coils and other apparatus then used for the production of X-Rays.

Returning to the Massachusetts General, he worked with Dr. Dodd in experiments in the X-Ray field, playing himself an important part in the development of the Radiology Department of the hospital.

Before the dangers of exposure were understood both Dr. Dodd and Mr. Godsoe suffered extensive X-ray burns. The latter in later life had none of the original skin remaining on his hands and had only the thumb and little finger remaining whole on his left hand.

During absences of Dr. Dodd from the hospital Mr. Godsoe arranged systematically the thousands of plates that had accumulated in their work, realizing that without such cataloguing, in the event that anything happened to his chief, the usefulness of the recorded work of years would be seriously impaired. Mr. Godsoe's devotion to Dr. Dodd went far beyond their official relations and was of incalculable assistance to the latter in carrying through his work in medical school.

After 14 years with Dr. Dodd Mr. Godsoe entered the hospital apothecary, where by working days and studying nights he became a registered pharmacist. He was appointed apothecary in 1909 and held that post until Dec. 1, 1943, when ill health forced his retirement.

During his nearly 50 years at the hospital he saw the institution grow from 250 to 900 beds with the addition of extensive chemical and research laboratories. Technically he saw and played his part in the development of X-rays, the electrocardiogram, and the electro-encephalogram; in the use of the arsenicals and bismuth, the sulfonamides; the multitude of synthetic sedatives; insulin and liver extracts; vitamin preparations; the packaging of drugs in ampules, sterile and ready for parenteral use; and many other changes.

While working in the hospital apothecary Mr. Godsoe met Ella May Moore of Steurgeon, P. E. I., who was employed in the secretary's office. Later Miss Moore was transferred to the apothecary as book-keeper, working with Mr. Godsoe for 15 years. They were married Feb. 17, 1932.

Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at the First Baptist Church with the pastor, Rev. Walter Lee Bailey, officiating. Honorary ushers were Frederick Emery and Lewis Foster. Interment was in Oak Grove Cemetery, Medford.

John (Jack) Hodson, Jr., of 26 Pond street, Stoneham for over 30 years the "Original Hood man" in Winchester and for the past 25 years foreman of the Hood service in Winchester, has retired from the company. Hodson has served his entire years of service in Winchester as well as being foreman in many surrounding towns and cities. Jack as he is known to most young and old is a member of the Hood Veterans Club and was presented a solid gold service pin by Mr. H. P. Hood on his ending of 30 years of service.

Jack has three sons, two of whom were in the service. Frank Jr. in the Navy, served to be a discharged; John a Bronze Star holder who is now out of the service, and Donald; two daughters, Mrs. George Matheson and Ruby, all of whom attended Winchester schools.

Mr. Hodson was presented a sum of money by the company upon retiring and now plans with his three sons in going into business of landscape gardening and the general care of property. He has the best wisher of his fellow workers in his new calling.

JUST ASK...

On March 10, Winchester will open its Red Cross Fund campaign, to raise among its townpeople the money necessary to carry on the local as well as the far-reaching work of the American Red Cross.

The Red Cross — that smybol stands for a mighty organization that belongs to every man, woman and child, to the rich and the poor and to the people of every race and creed and profession. It is a mighty organization that reaches out to lands where famine and disease are rampant, and to the little tenement around the corner where some neighbors' children are in need. It does all these services, and many more, for the Red Cross is as big as humanity itself.

If you have forgotten the times when the Red Cross represented You in the war, you might ask some of the Winchester boys who have just come from the service. You might ask Philip Miller of the Coast Guard, and he'll tell you "I saw the prisoners of war coming home from Japan, and I tell you that if it hadn't been for the Red Cross and their packages to these men, they wouldn't have gotten home at all. They would have died in the prisons of starvation. I saw these men, and I saw the work of the Red Cross did for them."

And Joseph Tansey, former High School and Norwich University athlete, will tell you proudly of the work he saw the Red Cross carry on in the Caribbean and in the South Pacific. And he knows!

The boys in the veterans hospitals today have nothing but praise and affection for the Red Cross, and they are receiving this help which you, through the Red Cross, can offer them.

Winchester's share in the drive on March 10 needs everyone. It needs contributions and the pledges, and it needs the volunteer precinct workers to make the drive a success.

A MESSAGE OF INTEREST TO BOSTON EDISON CUSTOMERS

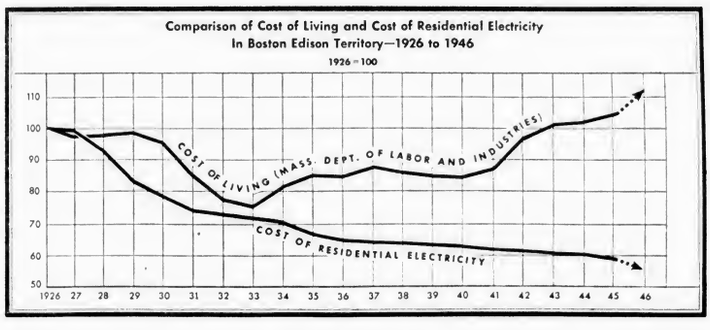

At a time when prices of most commodities are showing an UPWARD trend

Boston Edison Company announces

(Effective, March 1, 1946)

a DOWNWARD revision of electrical rates for 395,000 residential and commercial customers

It is always good news to receive word of a reduction in the price of an essential commodity. During a period in which commodity prices show a general upward curve and the cost of doing business is increasing, it is noteworthy when an organization announces lower prices for the product it sells.

Such an organization is Boston Edison Company. On and after March 1, 1946, Boston Edison residential and commercial customers will benefit from the new rate schedules which have been filed with the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities. The total number of customers affected is approximately 395,000 and the aggregate yearly saving to them will be $1,200,000.

SUMMARY of New Reduced Rates

1. First step of residential and small commercial rates reduced from 6½ to 6 cents.
2. "Area" feature in residential rate entirely eliminated.
3. Rates affecting large commercial customers modified and reduced to promote modern installations for both light and power.

In making these rate reductions, the Company is giving its customers immediate benefits of lower Federal taxes, but at a time when all other operating expenses such as fuel, payrolls and materials are rising. This action further demonstrates Boston Edison's confidence in the future of Boston and the 39 cities and towns directly served by our lines. It should encourage a broadened use of electricity as a household servant and the hand-maid of commerce.

It is true today . . and beginning March first it will be more than ever true . . . that

Electricity is the smallest item in the family budget

MELROSE EDGED WINCHESTER

Winchester High School's embattled basketball team gave the high riding Melrose quintet the devil of a ball game Tuesday afternoon at Melrose, finally losing by a single basket, 40-38, after leading at the half, 22-18.

The local boys carried the game right to Melrose and outscored the winners from scrimmage, 17-14. At the foul line, however, Melrose had a big edge, getting 23 free tries to only six for Winchester. The local boys made four of their six four shots good, but that wasn't enough. Melrose, cashing in on 12 of their 23 gift shots, had just enough to win.

In the preliminary game the Melrose seconds gave the fighting Winchester jay-vees their second reverse of the season by a point, winning 31-20, after leading at the end of the third quarter, 28-20. Switzer's scoring spree of eight points during the final quarter gave him individual scoring honors with 18 points. Merriman's foul basket gave the Melrose jay-vees their game.

Winchester citizens are urged to attend the hearing next Tuesday evening, Feb. 19, at the Town Hall. The matter of so-called Rapid-Transit will be presented (and advocated undoubtedly). Winchester's opinion of the matter will be important. For the past 25 years various schemes have been advanced to tie this town in with the city of Boston. If this is a continuance of the effort it is something which would come out into the open in the future, provided the scheme goes through. It looks at this time as though it at least is an opening wedge. Winchester should remember that the town will have four tracks through its center instead of two—grade crossing elimination or not, and three or seven car trains tearing through each way will not add to the Town's attractiveness. The Star can see no advantage in the idea whatsoever. We now have good train service and good bus service. There seems to be no need for us to tie ourselves up with the City of Boston. Our politics are clean. Boston can help us little either in politics or transportation or their attending costs. The advantage is all her's. If you have this opinion you should attend this hearing, realize that all is not gold that glitters and that politics are never idle, and voice your views. As we have already said, we can see little of advantage to Winchester in the idea although there appears to be a dubious outlook for the future independence of the Town.

PLAN TWENTY-THREE

To the Eitor of the Star:

If you who read this agree, that a dyke or wall 25 feet high and 40 feet thick, with trains thundering above on top, would ruin the town of Winchester, then it is up to you to do something.

At Town Meeting you may be asked to vote money for such a plan. It will be a large amount and even so the "Extras" will double it by the time the job is finished. It might easily cost as much as the ideal solution, namely, depressing the tracks. Expert's are not all agreed that to be impossible.

A compromise solution is found in the so-called Plan 23. This plan leaves the tracks right where they are but guards them, hides them partially and deadens their noise. One vehicular overpass may prove to be ample for now but a secondary bridge is shown south of the Lyceum.

This Plan 23 is an unofficial study as to the grade-crossing and traffic problem at Winchester, Mass. It is given as evidence that raising the tracks and thus cutting the town in two, is not the one and only way to eliminate this hazard.

The various objectives include the following:

1. To eliminate all foot and vehicular crossing of the B. and M. tracks at grade.

2. To help the flow of traffic through the fast-growing new shopping area.

3. To reduce the noise and dust from fast and heavy trains by guarding the tracks with low "Usher-Walls" of brick or concrete and with attractive planting and other decorative treatment.

4. To help children and shoppers to pass from one section to another by providing one or more subways after the style of those found at the juncture Cambridge and Charles streets in Boston.

5. To expedite the get-a-way of fire trucks from the Central Fire House.

6. To accomplish all the above with the least disturbance to the everyday life of the town and the smallest property damage. Possibly as low as $50,000—a very low figure for such a project.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Preparations are gong ahead rapidly for the Fourteenth Annual High School Vaudeville Show to be held on Friday and Saturday evenings, April 5 and 6. This is a week later than originally announced in the high school calendar. Originally planned as an activity solely valuable for its aid to the Athletic Association treasury, the annual Vaudeville, under the able direction of Faculty Manager Ray Hayward, has come to be an all-school production which increases in popularity with the years.

The program will again present original skits, specialty numbers, and the popular choruses. Details of this year's show are not yet ready for publication, but Vaudeville never fails to be "The Best Show Ever."

The history classes of Mrs. Ella Stacy observed Lincoln's Birthday with student-selected programs, consisting of readings by the pupils of the famous Lincoln speeches, news stories written during Lincoln's time and after his assassination, and other items which have been collected over the years in many a family scrapbook.

Colonel Wade L. Grindle, Principal of Winchester High School, met with the department heads early this week to discuss the most pressing issues in curriculum revision. Plans for revising courses previously offered and suggestions for new courses to meet the needs of a modern school were discussed in anticipation of the publication of the Course of Study which is extremely valuable to the student as he selects his course and electives for the next year or years.

'TWANT SO'

Last Saturday night a man quite a bit the worse for wear was seen at Police headquarters, trying to be locked up. He was refused admittance, however, and immediately after which he started that he had a gun and killed a man on upper Main street near Lake street.

The authorities were far too deeply impressed with the story, but it was one of those things that have to be checked, and as a consequence a thorough search of the vicinity was made. No corpus delicti was found, nor was any one come upon who looked as if he had been involved in mortal combat.

Upon their return to Headquarters and subsequent report, the self-confessed homicide was interviewed again, this time disclaiming any knowledge of killing any one or saying he had.

In court Monday morning his case was filed.

Mr. Granville Flagg of Wyman court and his son, Parker, guard on last fall's football team at high school, are both at the Winchester Hospital recovering from operations. Mr. Flagg was operated on for hernia. Parker for a "trick" knee. Both are recovering nicely.

"TEN MINUTE ALIBI"

A play by Anthony Armstrong. Produced by the Parish Players under the direction of John N. Hall in the Little Theatre Beneath a Spire, First Congregational Church, Friday and Saturday evenings, Feb. 8 and 9 with the following cast:

Butler	Boardman O'Connor
Philip Sevilla	Lt. Edmund Freidricks
Betty Linden	Joanne Worthen
Colin Derwent	Dr. Eugene M. Pollard
Sir Miles Standing	J. Waldo Bond
Inspector Pember	Robert P. Blake
Sergeant Rose	David Abbott

"Gene" Pollard, home from the wars, signalized his return to the Little Theatre stage with a first rate performance of the leading role in Mr. Armstrong's gripping show and his supporting cast was for the most part excellent. The single set got a round of applause in its own right and large audiences both nights continued their enthusiasm throughout the play. It was a good show well done and those watching it responded nicely.

Dr. Pollard didn't do the sort of thing Little Theatre audiences have come to associate with him since his debut with the Parish Players in "Outward Bound" in 1936. High comedy, on the dry, or vapid side, has been Gene's forte, but none could quarrel with his interpretation of the role of Colin Derwent, a sober figure, deadly serious and motivated by an inflexible purpose. To be sure his interpretation was lightened in spots with the inevitable Pollard touch, witness his return for his hat when every one was in a "tizzy" over his carelessness, but for the most part he played his part properly straight and he had his audience with him all the way.

The plot had Dr. Pollard steamed up over the fact that the girl he loves is going to run away with a Latin Don Juan, one Philip Sevilla, whose reputation with women is far from savoury. When the infatuated Betty won't listen to reason and Sevilla refuses to forvigo what is for him admittedly a mere "affaire." Derwent kills him, using a method which comes to him in a dream while he lies drugged in Sevilla's apartment.

The play has an English locale and we have indicated that Dr. Pollard's performance was "a little bit of all right". So too was Lt. Freidrick's handling of the villain's role. Sevilla, a distasteful part, strongly played with a nice sense of proportion. You sensed that Sevilla was a "wrong one" from the very start, yet Lt. Freidricks was very succesful in playing him so one could understand Betty's infatuation for this suave man of the world, polished and engaging, yet, a rat beneath the velvet and withal deadly ruthless. Joanne Worthen's playing of the foolishly infatuated and headstrong Betty Finden was very noteworthy. Called upon to display deep emotion, she was convincing without exaggeration, playing her love scenes with Lt. Freidricks without obvious embarrassment, displaying a wholly natural resentment over the supposed interference of Colin and Sir Miles in her affairs and reaching a real high in her expression of the overwhelming grief she felt when she discovered Sevilla's body. Her deportment during the police investigation was equally exemplary and her final lines and exit, particularly impressive. Lt. Freidricks warm and vibrant, enabled her to color her lines in a way to add greatly to their effectiveness.

Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Bond played their parts competently at production level, but the representatives of Scotland Yard were unfortunate. Mr. Blake, convincing enough in appearance, had difficulty with his lines, and Mr. Abbott, letter perfect in his role when he started that he had a gun and killed a man on upper Main street near Lake street, was poorly cast as the sergeant. One wonders why the makeup man couldn't have been a bit kinder to him.

WINCHESTER PLACED 10TH IN STATE MEET

Winchester High School's indoor track team placed tenth in Class B Division of the State Championship meet at the Boston Garden last Saturday afternoon, Tom Kirwan taking 2nd in the 1000 yard run and Johnny West, 3rd in the shotput to rack up five points.

Bill Nichols competed with West in the shot, Pete Dillingham and Don McFarlane ran the sprints, Jack Chisholm, the 300; and Ben Coe and Tom Thornton, the 600. None of these boys placed, but all picked up some valuable experience, as did the relay team, Dillingham, McFarlane, Chisholm and Coe, who finished behind East Boston and South Boston in their heat.

Kirwan lost to Arthur Morse of Worcester South by a tenth of a second in a faster 1000 by two-tenths of a second than the Class A boys ran. Long Tom ran a magnificent race for a boy competing at the distance for the second time, and as yet not used to indoor running. Add to that the fact that Kirwan has been ill since the Northeastern meet and has done little of any practicing since then, and you wonder what he would have done had he been right.

Morse ran a pretty race himself and evidently has a lot more running savvy than Kirwan, at least as far as indoor running is concerned. At that Tom might have beaten him had he come off the last bank running, instead of waiting until he straightened up to start his sprint.

Kirwan was five yards back off the last bank and had probably less than 50 yards in which to catch Morse. The latter had plenty left too, but Kirwan really turned on the heat in the gallop to the tape and drew up on the flying Worcester boy.

Another yard or two and he would have passed him, but as the two lunged into the tape, virtually together, the judges still saw Morse a bit in front. It was a great race for the Worcester boy to win and a tough one for Kirwan to lose. Tom led for a couple of laps or so, and refused to be pulled off his pace when Morse passed him.

Staying in second place thereafter, Kirwan bided his time, counting on his stiff "kick" to get him to the wire first. He had enough to have won, despite his poor condition, but he didn't open up quite quick enough.

At that Kirwan did 2 min. 28. 1s, almost five seconds faster than his winning time at Northeastern, swell running for a boy not anywhere near the peak physically and running his second 1000 indoors.

Big John West got the ball out 39 ft. 6½ in without any apparent effort, Migliozzi of Worcester put 42 ft. 6½ in to win a performance that John ought to better with ease.

WINCHESTER TRAILED READING

Reading High beat Winchester High in a Middlesex League basketball game at Reading last Friday evening, 47-31. The fast travelling Winchester seconds won the preliminary game, 25-19.

The game was a lot closer than the score would indicate, Winchester making only two less goals from the floor than Reading. The locals's game however failed to make much of a hit with the officials, however, who gave Reading 21 free tries for Winchester rules infractions while giving Winchester but eight.

The locals cashed in on only three of their free tries while Reading added 15 points to its total at the foul line. Many of Winchester's fouls were due to the slippery Reading floor which the home team is used to and plays much better than the visiors. Also several of the fouls called on players aattempting to guard Reading's Roberson could better have gone to the Reading boy, who has a habit of faking into his guard before turning on pivot shots.

Robertson and Quinlan tied with 14 points for scoring honors, but Winchester's "Spider" Latham outshot both from the floor, tallying six floor goals to four for the Reading players. The "Spider" played an outstanding game, one of his best of the year. The summary:

Four members read a story about the life of Abraham Lincoln. The president, Richard Wylie, reminded the pupils of the fine deeds done by Washington and Lincoln, their services for others and kindnesses, and asked Junior Red Cross members to follow their example. The meeting closed with "America the Beautiful" sung by all.

Lower Grade Assembly

On Wednesday morning at 11, Miss Curran's second grade presented a Health assembly. All the class participated. Some children gave health rhymes, short stories about good health habits, and health songs. YOU CAN'T WASH BEHIND THE EARS UNTIL YOU CATCH 'EM!

No mother riding Saturday-night herd on a brood of slippery, hard-to-catch youngsters ever had a harder job striving to keep the family clean than we've had with our passenger coaches in the last two years.

Since war-time tossed us the job of carrying far more people than all our available coaches could seat (and no railroad was allowed to build new coaches during the war) we've been literally running the wheels off everything we had safe to carry folks. War was bad enough for everyone, but surrender made things worse, instead of better, for many railroad passengers, including ours. The O.D.T. decreed last Fall that 40 of our best steel coaches had to go to the west coast to join the pool of cars bringing home the fighting men.

Our passengers aren't used to riding in dirty coaches, and believe us, we've heard plenty about dirty windows and not-so-clean conditions in the "behind-the-ears" places. Some folks who don't know us as well as our regular commuters and other passengers even said we weren't trying too hard to improve cleanliness. Boston and Maine men are New Englanders, and New Englanders are clean people.

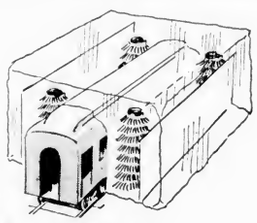

"War's Over — What's the Matter?"

The principal "matter" has been we couldn't "catch" our coaches long enough to clean 'em properly, and a lot of them not long enough to clean 'em at all. It's an actual fact that during last Christmastime and around New Year's there were times when we had to wait for cars to come in from a run before we could make up trains to carry out waiting passengers. Those 40 steel coaches the O.D.T. sent to the coast represent 7,000 passenger seats a day—and, that's a lot of seats. So, it's pretty easy for anyone to figure how often car cleaners saw the coaches that were left, and when they did, how long they had to work on them before it was time for them to go out again. Even today the average Boston and Maine coach is still traveling 100% more miles a month than in 1941.

The Older They Are —The Harder to Keep Clean!

Any housewife knows an old house is harder to keep clean than a modern one. That's true also of railroad coaches. Quite frankly, we've been ashamed of the appearance of some of our coaches, and we don't blame you for complaining. But, don't think we're just letting things go to pot. Far from it! Right now 200 more men than in 1941 are working on passenger-car renovation in our Concord, N. H., shops, and 150 more in our Boston car shops. Since the holiday rush ended January 2nd, 204 of our passenger coaches have been cleaned; chemically washed inside and out; renovated where necessary, and returned to service. Twenty of the coaches that went west are back. They've all got to go into the shop, and 10 of them must be completely renovated with new upholstery, etc. We intend to really clean every car long before you get to your household Spring cleaning.

We're Gonna Sparkle Soon!

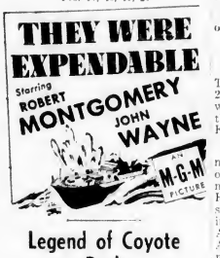

Ever try to wash your windows, or outside paint, with temperature below freezing? Well, it's the same story with railroad cars. But don't worry, we don't intend to let those windows stay dirty until the robins arrive, either. And, brother, wait until weather permits us to operate on full-time schedule our new $60,000 car-exterior washer. Plan then to get out your sun glasses! We've been able, in the few mid-day mild spells there have been, to get some cars through it, and boy do they sparkle. We intend they all shall. Incidentally, our station agents, with their war-time extra duties and rush-every-minute conditions abating, will have more time to whistle their clean-up theme of "Come On Broom, It's Waltz Time"

P.S. Mother whispers to us that her housemaid is cleaning better now that jobs are a bit scarcer.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Lecture on South America

On Monday, Feb. 11, the Fortnightly listened to a most interesting talk on South America by Mr. Donald J. Moore. His subject was "The Adventures of a New England Business Man in Latin America" and the picture he painted was [illegible] and encouraging. He feels that New England business has a definite opportunity, in these times to enlarge its sphere of operations, to start on a real program of export trade with our neighbors in the far south, and that such an enterprise would be sure of a cordial reception and abundant co-operation on the part of the Latin Americans.

There was a question period, and then a very delightful and interesting film of South American views was shown. This had been furnished by the Pan-American Union from the Visual Education Service in Boston, and showed the trip, mostly by airplane, of an expedition seeking material for Walt Disney cartoons. There were thrilling pictures of the Andes seen from above, and most unusual shots of the odd animals used as subjects for Walt Disney's work. There were pictures of the artists sketching armadillos and many other strange animals and birds. The sound track accompanying the film was most entertaining, and the audience was enthusiastic about the whole program.

Resolutions Adopted

At the business meeting preceding the program, an outline of some of the most important legislation now pending, was given by the president, in the absence of the chairman of legislation. The following resolution, which has already been adopted by the Committee on Legislation of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, and is being presented to the individual clubs in the state, was formally adopted by the Fortnightly:

Resolutions

Whereas: This organization believes that many Unions have deprived their members of the right to live like other free citizens in obedience to and under the protection of the Law, and have instituted a feudal system of economic and political serfdom and

Whereas: the irresponsibility of these Unions has resulted in strikes in violation of contracts entered into freely by them and

Whereas: strikes result in paralization of industry and widespread want and suffering to the general public:

We, "The Fortnightly," of Winchester, Mass., resolve: that proper legislation be enacted by the Congress of the United States requiring labor unions to be organized, like any other business, subject to the same laws, rules, and regulations, and further

Resolved: that a copy of these regulations be sent to the Resolutions Committees of the Mass. State Federation of Women's Clubs and the General Federation of Woman's Clubs and our Representative and Senators in the Congress.

Midwinter Meeting

The midwinter meeting of the State Federation will be held this year on Wed. and Thurs. Feb. 27 and 28. The Wednesday meeting will be at the Hotel Statler, and luncheon tickets for those who desire them are in the hands of our Federation Secretary, Mrs. Clifton S. Hall. There are only a few left. The Thursday meeting will be a World Affairs Forum and will be held at the Shubert Theatre. All club members are urged to attend all these meetings. Further information from Mrs. Hall.

"Us Girls"

On Monday, Feb. 25th, at the next regular meeting of the Fortnightly there will be a lecture entitled "Us Girls" by Mrs. Harriet Ainsworth, assisted by Mrs. Lillian Ambler. Several club members have been selected to act as models to illustrate the points of the lecture, and they are graciously and gallantly allowing the speaker to use them as examples. It should be an instructive and possibly a hilarious meeting.

Philanthropy Luncheon

Club members and their friends are urged to keep in mind the luncheon to be given by the Philanthropy Committee on March 1st at one o'clock, at the Parish House of the Church of the Epiphany. Ruth C. (Gates) Smith

To the voters of Winchester:

I am a candidate for membership on the Winchester School Committee. I believe that I have a background, training and experience which should qualify me for the office. I attended grade five through twelve of the Webster Public Schools, graduating from Winchester High School in 1932, and from Radcliffe College in 1936. In college I majored in the field of [illegible] and Economics. Since then I have taken active interest in civic affairs, participating in Study Groups in History and Education.

I have had experience as follows in other town organizations which should be helpful in School Committee work:

Served in the Winchester Mothers' Association as President of the George Washington-Highland Chapter, as President of the Junior High Associates, on the Board of the Lincoln School Chapter, and Chairman of the Scholarship Committee of the Executive Board.

Served in the Girls' Scouts as Organization Committee Chairman for three years, now on the Membership Committee, and leader of a Noonan School Troop.

Member of the Planning Committee of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation.

Member of the Executive Board of the Winchester College Club.

Member of the Winchester League of Women Voters.

These experiences have given me a broader knowledge and understanding of the town and its needs.

My three children are in the Winchester Public Schools. The two older attended the Highland, George Washington, and Junior High Schools, and are now in High School, one, a junior and the other, a freshman. My youngest child is in the second grade of the Lincoln School. Thus my interest in the Winchester Schools has been continuous for many years and will be for many years to come. If elected, I will give the present excellent administration my support in its program for the improvement of our schools.

WINCHESTER BOY BEATEN BY SERVICE MEN

Daniel McNally, son of Mrs. Gertrude A. McNally of 214 Washington street and himself only recently discharged from the service, was badly beaten by two men in soldier's uniforms while on his way home from work in Boston Monday evening.

Mr. McNally is employed at the Second National Bank. As he was walking along Washington street toward the North Station to get the 5:50 train for Winchester two men in soldier's uniforms approached him at Adams Square near Leopold Morse Company's store.

The men asked for money. Mr. McNally said he had none and walked past them. As he did the men called "just a minute, Joe." McNally turned back at this soldier's hail, and as he did so, both men attacked him, beating him badly about the face. So far as could be learned there was no attempt at robbery.

After the attack Mr. McNally managed to make his way to Haymarket Square where he found a policeman. The latter had him removed to the Boston City Hospital where it was believed he had sustained a fractured jaw among other injuries. His mother was notified and arranged to have her son brought to the Winchester Hospital by the [illegible] made by the Police in their ambulance Tuesday afternoon. X-rays were taken on Wednesday in an effort to determine the full extent of the injuries.

Mr. McNally evidently took quite a beating as his face and clothing were covered with blood and several teeth were knocked out.

He volunteered for induction in the Army and served for three years, 22 years of which were with the 176th Infantry in the European Theatre. He was discharged before Christmas with the rank of sergeant.

WINCHESTER OPPOSES RAPID TRANSIT SCHEME

Winchester has scant interest in the rapid transit scheme proposed by the Legislature's Rapid Transit Commission if one is to judge from the expressions of opinion at the hearing held Tuesday evening at the town hall.

About 500 were present at the hearing which was presided over by State Senate President, Arthur W. Coolidge.

President Coolidge gave something of the background which has prompted the proposed rapid transit scheme, telling of the failing of the Old Colony and Narrow Gauge Railroads and of the need of providing adequate transportation for commuters formerly served by those roads.

President Coolidge premised his argument for the establishment of a rapid transit system upon the fact that steam railroads are soon to go out of the passenger business because of poor revenues. Consequently the Legislature is attempting to work out a feasible rapid transit plan which the Legislative Rapid Transit Commission is asking Winchester to consider both from the standpoint of its general usefulness and as it will affect the town specifically. He was emphatic in his belief that the new system will be an opening wedge in the often proposed plan for a Greater Boston.

Carol Meins, chairman of the commission established by the Legislature to consider the Rapid Transit plan and to hold hearings in the communities affected, was the first speaker. The commission, after the hearings, is to report back to the Legislature, asking, in the event the plan is adopted, that authority be granted and appropriations made to establish the system, commencing where transportation is most needed.

Chairman Meins explained that the system will operate electric trains of several cars with overhead trolleys and that its service will affect Winchester will be located to the right of the present Boston and Maine tracks on the railroad right-of-way. The present railroad stations will be utilized and the rapid transit system will go through Winchester from Woburn. The steam railroads, in the opinion of the Rapid Transit Commission, will handle freight only, giving up passenger service.

Winchester's State Senator and Representative, respectively Harris S. Richardson and William E. Ramsdell, both spoke, Senator Richardson reminding the hearing that the town still has the grade crossing to consider, and that with the proposed electric trains carrying less passengers than steam drawn coaches, during the rush hour morning and night the gates on the center would be down practically incessantly if the electric service approach that now is used by the railroads. Rep. Ramsdell he was at the meeting to listen to learn what the citizens' reaction in connection with the Rapid Transit proposal would be and to make notes of the comments made. He said he doesn't feel so much in need of transportation facilities as others less fortunate places.

That was the tenor of the town's opinion in general. The local citizens, it was said, did not agree President Coolidge's opinion that the rapid transit will not prove a long step toward a Greater Boston consolidation, a move bitterly opposed by the town. They also were unwilling to accept the positive statement that the railroads are going to discontinue their service. It seemed the opinion of some who spoke that it would be best to and far cheaper to give the railroads some assistance in the event they are operating at a loss than to commit the town to enter a project involving a $15,000,000 capital outlay which if operated at a loss, Winchester would be asked to support. Such a wall, admittedly give the town poorer service than it now enjoys.

Chairman Meins asked those present to state whether they would favor the Rapid Transit scheme in the event the railroads do fold up. The best answer he could get to that was, however, that if the railroads suspend passenger service, the town will be willing to consider alternate systems of transportation.

Chairman Meins asked the town through its Selectman or other authoritative agency to study the question of what the town will need in the way of intra-town transportation to the two stations in the event the Rapid Transit System is adopted.

GEORGE PENNA

George Penna, 34, of 21 Malvern street, Melrose, a native of Winchester and resident here until his marriage, died Friday at the New England Deaconness Hospital after several months illness.

Mr. Penna was educated in the Winchester schools and at Winchester High School. He was for some years in the employ of the International Paper Company in Boston. His parents, Sebastiano and Pasquelina (Penna) Penna, live in Winchester at 26 Irving street.

Eight years ago Mr. Penna married Virginia Cefalo of Melrose and they had made their home in Melrose since their marriage.

Besides his wife and parents, he leaves a 5-year-old daughter, Arlene; a sister, Mary, of this town; and two brothers, Major Achilles C. Penna, recently returned from Army service; and William J. Penna, both of Winchester.

Many from Winchester attended the funeral which was held Tuesday morning from the late residence with solemn requiem high mass celebrated at St. Mary's Church in Melrose at 10 o'clock.

Burial was in Calvary Cemetery and the funeral cortege as it passed through Winchester was one of the longest seen here for some time, there being more than 100 funeral cars and four cars of flowers. The committal prayers at the cemetery were read by Rev. Fr. George F. Wiseman of St. Mary's Church, Winchester.

BLUE CROSS PLANS

The Massachusetts Blue Cross is one of the 86 Blue Cross Plans re-approved for operation during 1946 by the Board of Trustees of the American Hospital Association, on recommendation of its Blue Cross Commission, it was announced today by K. F. Cahalane, executive director. Such approval constitutes recognition that the Massachusetts Plan meets all standards with regard to sound administrative policies and procedures, reasonable growth during 1945, a financial position which protects the general public and member hospitals, and non-profit operation.

Cahalane stated that during 1945 the Massachusetts Blue Cross moved into second place among the 86 Plans, in point of size. This was accomplished, he said, by adding nearly 600,000 names to the membership rolls, a record unequaled in a single year by any other Blue Cross Plan.

National Blue Cross enrollment at the end of 1945 totalled 20,000,000, an increase of 4,000,000 during the year, according to C. Rufus Rorem, national director of the Commission. Medical-surgical service plans now operate in conjunction with 44 Blue Cross Plans. Forty-three States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and seven Canadian Provinces are now covered by Blue Cross, and it is expected that by the end of 1946 Blue Cross will have been made available to the population of those five States where it does not now exist. "The fact that one out of every seven Americans has already been enrolled in Blue Cross in a few short years, shows that Blue Cross has proved its worth as a community service and that a large segment of our people approve the voluntary method of health protection," Rorem said.

BOYS TO MAKE RESTITUTION

The two Winchester boys who were picked up by the Police on Sunday, Feb. 10, after they had broken into the house on the Ginn estate on Bacon street, reported at Police Headquarters last Saturday afternoon to meet with former Judge Franklin Hammond, of the Ginn Estate trustees.

Judge Hammond informed the fathers of the boys that restitution for the damage done the house must be made as soon as he can get a complete estimate. The fathers agreed to make restitution, after which Judge Hammond suggested that the boys work out the amount to be paid and reimburse their parents. He talked to the boys at some length, giving them some good advice from his long experience with youthful delinquents while on the bench.

TRIP INTERRUPTED

Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock Police Headquarters received a call from Mrs. Everett Kimball of Westley street reporting that her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Merenda of Nelson street had left at 11 o'clock that morning for New York by automobile, accompanied by their son, Robert. Their older son, Charles, a member of the U. S. Coast Guard, had in their absence arrived home on furlough from Newfoundland and Mrs. Kimball wondered if the Police could reach the Merendas and inform them of this fact.

The Police put a message on the teletype and not too long afterward received a return message from the Connecticut Police, reporting one of their units had stopped the Merenda's and told them of their son's homecoming. The Merendas in turn postponed their trip to New York and turned around, heading for Winchester once more and a happy family reunion.

LINCOLN NOTE IN TUESDAYS LUNCHEON GROUP TEA

Mrs. Richard Frazier and her committee planning the program for the February meeting of the Tuesday Luncheon Group took advantage of the fact that their regular date fell on Lincoln's Birthday, and brought into the afternoon's program a story of Lincoln, "The Perfect Tribute," which the Rev. Dwight W. Hadley read.

Mrs. Frazier presided at the business meeting.

The tea was in charge of Mrs. Charles Barnham, and she was assisted by Mrs. Frank d'Elseaux, Mrs. Maxwell Fish, Mrs. Paul Forester, Mrs. E. Craig Gremer, Mrs. Robert Johnston and Mrs. Paul J. Recray. Mrs. Herbert W. Kelley poured. Mrs. Robert Thomason was hostess to the Tuesday Group at her home, 19 Sheffield road.

AUTO OVER WALL ON IRWIN'S FARM

Police Headquarters was notified Sunday morning shortly after 9:30 that a Ford sedan had been discovered by the Arlington Police hanging over a wall on Irwin's Farm on Ridge street.

Officers John Murray and William Cassidy went to investigate and found a registration in the machine made out to Daniel A. Rossano, 30 Bradley road, Arlington. The Arlington Police were notified and learned that Mr. Rossano's wife had been driving the car and had fallen asleep at the wheel, losing control. No injuries had resulted.

WOMEN'S WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Next Regular Meeting

On Monday, Feb. 25th, the regular Fortnightly meeting will be in the Parish House of the First Congregational Church. There will be a lecture and demonstration of the appropriate colors and styles for different individuals. A number of club members have bravely consented to serve as awful examples when they do it wrong, and models of perfect beauty and taste when they do it right. It will be good entertainment and instructive besides. The lecturer will be Miss Harriet Ainsworth assisted by Mrs. Lillian Ambler. The afternoon is being arranged by the American Home Committee. Mrs. Conrad S. Rosander, Chairman. Coffee will be served at one o'clock, with Miss Louise Bancroft as hostess.

Philanthropy Luncheon, March 1st.

Club members and their friends are urged to keep in mind the date of the luncheon to be given in the Parish House of the Church of the Epiphany. Arrangements are in the hands of Mrs. Clifton S. Hall.

Federation Meeting

The annual Midwinter Meeting of the Mass. Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in Boston on Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 27th and 28th. For full information consult our Federation Secretary, Mrs. Clifton S. Hall. All club members are welcome.

Literature Group

On Monday, Feb. 18th, a group of Fortnightly members and interested friends, about a dozen in all, visited the publishing house of the Boston Globe. Mrs. Ruth Gunby arranged the expedition, and she, Miss Adelaide Hawes and Miss Alice Brannan were the representatives from the Literature Group.

They were conducted through the building, where they caught glimpses of the intricacies of the printing of a modern newspaper, from the reporter busily writing at his desk, to the finished papers coming off the press into their hands! It was a most interesting trip with both information and entertainment in plenty.

O'NEILL—McCARTHY

On Saturady, Feb. 16, Miss Betty McCarthy, formerly of Winchester, became the bride of Francis W. O'Neill of Winchester.

The Nuptial High Mass was celebrated in St. Peters Church in Dorchester.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, wore a white satin gown with a long train and a finger tip veil. She carried a white prayerbook on which lay a white orchid. Miss Catherine McCarthy who was her bridesmaid wore a blue taffeta gown and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The best man was Mr. Edward Taylor of Reading.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Turner in Belmont.

The couple are now honeymooning in New York and upon their return will reside in Ashmont.

WYMAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

In keeping with the present trend towards reconversion is the announcement by Mrs. George Marks, chairman of Ways and Means for the Wyman School Mothers' Association, that Wyman will once more be the scene of a fashion show, to be held April 3.

Last year the money-raising project was a trading post where outgrown clothing and equipment was exchanged, an undertaking which seemed more suited to the times.

Now, however, after several years of being extremely practical, people are ready for at least a partial return to social events, particularly when sociability is combined with a functional affair like a style show. Dessert and coffee will be served and those who wish to bring guests and stay for an afternoon of bridge will find it an easy way to entertain. The clothes, exhibited by Filene's, will be modeled by young people of Winchester.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Although the attendance and tardiness reports for the month of January still show the high school in first place in attendance and improving in the matter of tardiness, a concerted movement is afoot to curb the number of cases of unexcused tardiness. In commenting on the situation before an assembly last Friday morning, Col. Grindle pointed out that the Army mock slogan of "Hurry up and wait" could well be accepted, rather than the prevalent custom of "Wait and then hurry" which has found too many young people unable to scurry into their seats before the bell.

A complete table of the attendance and tardiness records of the town's seven schools follows:

WINCHESTER CURLERS AT SCHENECTADY

Winchester Country Club had a rink in the Gordon and Emmett curling competitions at Schenectady, N. Y., last week-end, the competition starting Friday and continuing through Sunday. Eleven different rinks participated with Winchester and the Country Club at Chestnut Hill carrying the Massachusetts banner.

John P. "Shorty" Carr skipped the Winchester rink with Ralph Bonnell at No. 3, Frank Irine, 2, and Ralph Wilde, 1. Though by no means the strongest combination the local club can put on the ice, the Winchester rink gave an excellent account of itself in both competitions, winning its first round matches and giving the crack Utica ring a helluva battle before succumbing in the semi-finals of the Emmett Competition.

Winchester beat Hartford Friday in the first round of the Gordon curling, 16-5. Its first round opponent in the Emmett curling was The Country Club and the local men got a lot of satisfaction out of eliminating their neighbors and friends in this match, 14-11, with Jim Spring skipping the "The" boys.

Saturday afternoon saw Winchester's elimination from the Emmett competition at the hands of Utica, but the local curlers got more satisfaction out of this defeat than in either of their victories.

Utica, ultimate winner of the Emmett competition, is one of the outstanding rinks in the game, its No. 3, Ward Murray, being generally considered the second best curler in the country. As a consequence, when Utica's chances for victory were at stake, Ward Murray was relied upon to come through. They finally won out in the last two ends, 11-11, Jim Spring's rock was sunk.

In the consolation round Gordon competition Winchester tossed via Mahopac, N. Y., Rick Tice and it on at 9 o'clock Saturday night and the dead locks with 15 ends under their belt that day were too tired to do themselves justice, losing 16-6. Caledonians, with their famous "Willie" Cuthbertson, skipping, won the Gordon competition. Incidentally the Mayor of Schenectady is quite a curling devotee, participating in the competition and generally having quite a time for himself.

The local curlers report a fine week-end. They stopped at the Van Curler Hotel where the big curling dinner was held Friday evening.

SEEKS VETERANS' PREFERENCE FOR TEDDY

"Teddy" is an Army dog who has just been returned to his owner, Police Lt. Edward W. O'Connell after 34 months service overseas, probably in the Pacific Theatre, for big "Ed" says the animal almost freezes every time he goes outdoors. He's part collie and part setter and altogether a good dog, according to his owner.

Now Lt. O'Connell believes that "Teddy's" 34 months service to his own, state and nation should entitle him to some special consideration, Veteran's Preference, if you will. Being the only dog, or one of a very few to go into service from among Winchester's 1100 odd dogs, should bring some special compensation, at least in the Lieutenant's opinion, and as a consequence he sought license Tag No. 1 from Town Clerk Mabel W. Stinson for his returned pet.

Miss Stinson was properly sympathetic. She had heard of Veteran's Preference, and unlike most of us, had some little working knowledge of the G. I. Bill of Rights. The snag in the string or fly in the ointment turned out to be the fact that License Tag No. 1 isn't available for "Teddy" or any other dog whose master may want it for him, being at the present time very much in use.

Just how far Lt. O'Connell can, or is prepared to go in invoking Veteran's Preference and the G. I. Bill for "Teddy" the Star confesses it does not know. "Ed" was figuring it would be nice for every dog owner to drop back a number, so No. 1 would be available for Teddy. It's an idea, as George Frankl would say, but then again, will it work? That's another idea, too!

PARENTS CRITICISED

A scathing attack on modern parents was voiced through the schools of Winchester when the annual Parent-Teacher banquet was held at a candle address by Rev. William B. Rice, rector of the Congregational church, before an enthusiastic audience of members of the Unitarian Men's Club on Monday evening, Feb. 18.

Mr. Rice advocated the raising of the pay of members of parole boards to render their important positions self-sustaining, and the raising of salaries among educators and school teachers to a point which will command men and women of the needed calibre to cope with problems which Mr. Rice pointed out, with dynamic and convincing realism, will cost us less in dollars and cents than allowing matters to continue as they are.

Today's parents came in for the sharpest and most constructive criticism, supported by statistics from the office of Edgar L. Hoover, showing that a high percentage of crime and its cost to the town and the nation can be traced directly to laxity and the absence of constructive substitutes for agents of subversive influence in crime literature, radio broadcast which subtly encourages juvenile unrest, and parental co-operation in the home which encourages disrespect for the law.

Rev. Rice, who was a member of the Committee on Army and Navy Chaplains during the war, was held by his audience for more than an hour in answer to questions.

Pfc. William Mead, USAAF, of 8 Park road has been released from duty in the Army Air Forces at the San Antonio, Tex., District AAF Personnel Distribution Command.

NIGRO OUT OF AIR FORCE

Ernest L. Nigro has been discharged from the Army Air Forces at Greensboro, N. C., after almost four years of active duty.

Mr. Nigro entered the service at Fort Devens in July of 1942 and rose from the ranks to the position of administration specialist for the Army Air Forces ORD.

The young lawyer is not new in Winchester. Some three years ago he married the former Josephine Scaturro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scaturro of 58 Oak st.

Because the Nigros hope to make their home in Winchester they have joined the many in search of a home in this town.

Mr. Nigro will resume in full his law practice after a brief period of rest and relaxation with his family.

COMDR. MIDTLYNG RECEIVES BRONZE STAR

The Bronze Star has been awarded to Comdr. Carl R. Midtlyng, USN, whose home address is 107 Forest street, it was announced today by the Commandant, First Naval District. The medal was presented to Comdr. Midtlyng by Rear Admiral Wilder D. Baker, USN, Commandant, Boston Naval Shipyard.

Comdr. Midtlyng served as officer in charge of the Service Force Ship Section in the Pacific from December 1943 to August 1945. During this period he aided in the solution of maintenance problems and enabled the service force ships to operate for extensive periods in the forward areas.

In the citation accompanying the award, Comdr. Midtlyng was commended as follows: "His planning, foresight, and sound judgment in the arranging of availability periods for the vessels under his cognizance contributed immeasurably to the efficiency with which logistic support was furnished to the fleet during a most critical period. His services were at all times of the highest order, and his conduct throughout was in keeping with the highest traditions of the U. S. Naval service.

PFC. NORMAN E. LUNDIN ILLUSTRATES ARMY NEWSPAPER

Enclosed in a recent letter to Mrs. Ella Stacy, Head of the Social Studies department at Winchester High School, was a copy of The Free Press, printed in Niigata, Japan, and illustrated by Pfc Norman E. Lundin, graduate of Winchester High School in 1943. In addition to his daily stint as illustrator, Pfc. Lundin writes a daily column, Stateside Entertainment Scoops, for The Free Press.

He writes that he has found the Japanese people most polite and helpful and willing to place the blame for their war on their stupid adherence to the dictates of the war lords. Of the modern Japan, he says it is only a facade and likens the modernity of the Japanese philosophy to the modern masonry of their buildings, rich in modern architecture, but wholly built in the "Japanese style of flimsy material—wood with only a thin, ultra-modern layer of masonry surface."

Norman Lundin will be remembered as the able illustrator for school publications during his tenure there. Although he feels that he is doing the sort of thing that he likes to do and can do, he looks forward to being able to sit in the audience when his sister Irene graduates in June.

"RICHIE" McCORMACK HOME

"Richie", former star football lineman at Winchester High School, was last stationed on the USS Mobile, CL63. Before entering the Navy he was a clerk in McCormack's Apothecary, owned by his older brother, Henry J. McCormack.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

At a meeting of the Girl Scout Council of Winchester Mrs. Clarence Roberts, commissioner, and Mrs. Alfred Nelson, leader representative, were chosen to represent the Council at the National Convention of the Girl Scout organization in March at the Ambassador Hotel, Atlantic City, N. J.

This convention will be in session for three days beginning March 20, and will be attended by accredited delegates from the nation's 1422 Girl Scout Councils.

The convention's guest of honor and speaker at an international banquet will be Lady Baden-Powell, wife of the late Lord Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the Scouting movement for both boys and girls. She is World Chief Guide and is active in the affairs of the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts, as well as in the work of rehabilitating Scout and Guide groups in Europe.

These went underground during the war as any such group would have been drafted for a Nazi youth organization, Miss Catherine Hammett explained at a Girl Scout leaders' luncheon attended in Boston recently by Mrs. Hollis Dyer, Mrs. Allan Farquhar and Mrs. Alfred Nelson, all membrs of the Winchester Council.

Miss Hammett, a Girl Scout executive loaned to UNRAA, told also of a two week camp rally held in Athens, Greece, as a first step toward reorganizing the Scouts there.

This meeting, at which representatives from 27 communities came together, was made possible by the Juliette Low Fund, raised by contributions chiefly made by girls on their birthdays. A brief extract from the report of one of the scribes will illustrat this custom.

"We 18Scouts of Troop 5) had a surprise fo them which w had almost forgotten about. O.e brought in a tray. There was a cupcake for each of us with a little red birthday candle in the middle of each cake. We sang happy birthday to them. One half the birthday cup went to the other dropped her 10 pennies, one by one, into the cup. We had been told that the pennies were a way in honor of Juliette Low and were used to help supply equip and train like her for Girl Scout activities overseas. We th n are Girl Scout pennies and went home."

The next week's report continues: "The birthday girl that we had had the party for the week before brought her ten pennies and it was also Mrs. Hersey's birthday, so the birthday cup was quite full when all the pennies were dropped in."

At the Father-Daughter Scout dinner being planned for March 12, at the Congregational Church, the pennies collected will be turned over to Scouts in costume to be subsequently given to the various countries their garb represents. At the banquet, also, the "Friendship bags" made by many of the troops will be presented to a citizen of Poland for despatch to that country.

The Girl Scout Band will make its first public appearance at that time, giving people the first hint of what to expect at the High School auditorium on May 17 when the Boy Scout and Girl Scout Bands will unite for a concert to raise funds for a "Treasure Chest" of books to be sent to the young people of Europe, started for recreational and intellectual advantages as well as for food.

Thanks to the generosity of the Winchester Country Club and good fortune with the weath r, the Girl Scouts of the seventh and eighth grades spent an invigorating and happy afternoon last Monday skating at the club rink. About 50 girls joined in the sport and enjoyed the hot chocolate and cra kers on hand at the hut.

Miss Mary Travers, Voter Registrar at the town hall, is r ported as confined to her home with a severe cold. Water Superintendent Harry Dotten returned to his duties Wednesday after being ill at his home for a week.

WINCHESTER EDGED WOBURN

Winchester High came from behind to beat Woburn High in an exciting basketball game in the local gymnasium Tuesday afternoon, 42-39. The Winchester seconds won the preliminary game, 23-11.

Woburn looked like a winner the first half. The Tanners led at the quarter, 12-4 and at the half, 23-16. Winchester was setting up plenty of shots, but the locals were missing and also throwing the ball away too much.

After the half Winchester came to life, Latham, Patterson and Olivier sinking floor goals to practically wipe out Woburn's lead, after which the locals went on to tally 17 points while holding the Tanners to 2.

Winchester continued to carry the game to Woburn until midway through the final stanza it had a 40-30 lead. From then on the locals coasted, and though Woburn cut down their lead appreciably, no one figured the Tanners could really catch up. The summary:

BASIC STATION—AMERICAN BROADCASTING COMPANY

IT'S A LONG WAY from 1886 TO 1946

THIS new year of 1946 marks an important milestone for Boston Edison Company and its customers -- the completion of 60 years of Boston Edison service.

From the moment the switch was closed at the Company's first generating plant, February 20, 1886, Boston Edison has been supplying ample electrical energy to meet the community's ever-growing needs for light and power, both during times of normal progress and during times of war.

The Company's anniversary takes place at a time when the world stands on the threshold of peace. Behind lie many gruelling months, indelibly impressed upon men's minds. Ahead stretch the transition years, years that shall test this country's ability to maintain production and employment, to promote a sound national economy, and in cooperation with other nations to maintain peace.

Plans for the Immediate Future

Against this historic background, Boston Edison enters its seventh decade, with faith and confidence in the future, manned by an organization equipped to meet the expanding electrical needs of this great industrial, commercial and residential community. The Company has now embarked on a five-year program with expenditures totalling $40,000,000. This program embodies further increases in generating capacity, extension of transmission lines, substitution of alternating current for direct current in certain districts, and other modernization of facilities and service.

On the occasion of this 60th anniversary, Boston Edison Company customers will also be interested in the recently announced rate reduction beginning next month, which will effect a yearly saving of $1,200,000 to residential and commercial customers. In 1886 electricity was a luxury. In 1946 it is a low-priced commodity available to everyone.

The men and women of Boston Edison pledge their continued devotion to the welfare of the community and take this opportunity to thank the Company's customers for their cooperation in creating present cordial relations.

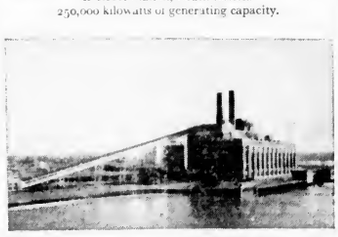

The first electric generating station in Boston was placed in service on February 20, 1886, in a stable at the corner of Haymarket Place and Bumstead Court.

The little station of 1886 generated sufficient capacity to light 800 lamps. These lamps were the hand-made, carbon-filament type... dim, short-lived and expensive compared to 1946 standards.

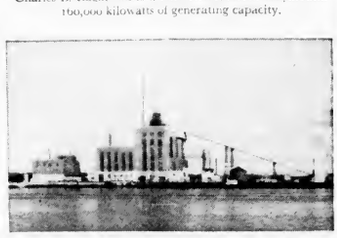

BOSTON EDISON COMPANY'S GENERATING STATIONS... 1946

Charles L. Edgar Station, Fore River, North Weymouth.
160,000 kilowatts of generating capacity.

100,000 kilowatts of generating capacity.

...a Grand Total of 510,000 kilowatts of generating capacity, providing ample electrical energy for all residential, commercial and industrial needs in the territory served by Boston Edison Company.

Electricity is the tireless, trustworthy servant of the modern home. It is instantly available. It costs little to use. Yet think of all the duties it performs!

It provides adequate light... cooks the meals (deliciously!)... protects food by refrigeration... mixes the batter... toasts the breakfast toast... makes the coffee... browns the waffles... does the family laundering... vacuum cleaning... dishwashing... sewing... water heating... air conditioning... entertains by radio (and in the not-too-distant future, by television as well)... runs the children's sun lamp... Susan's hairdryer... and all the other labor-saving electrical appliances that are available or soon will be.

Yes, for true home comfort, for life-long convenience, for leisure and for safety... in short, for better living now and in the years to come, you can depend on Boston Edison service.

Electricity does more and costs less than any other item in the family budget.

THOMAS WHITE

Thomas White, a former well known Winchester boy, was accidentally killed on Friday, Feb. 15, in Brooklyn, where he had been making his home for several years.

Son of Mrs. Maria, and the late Patrick White, formerly of Glenwood avenue, the deceased attended the Winchester schools and graduated from Winchester High School. Subsequently he graduated from the Bentley School of Accounting and Finance and passed the examination for certified public accountant. He had been working for the Rapid Transit Company in New York.

Mr. White leaves his wife and two children, his mother, living in Somerville; a sister, Margaret; and a brother, Francis, both of Somerville.

The funeral and interment took place in Brooklyn Tuesday morning.

ANOTHER STORM

Winchester had another fall of snow commencing Tuesday night about 10 o'clock and continuing until well into Wednesday afternoon. The snow was wet and heavy, and a high wind blew it into the faces of pedestrians, adding to their discomfort. About a foot of snow fell, according to Water Department estimates, and as fast as the streets were plowed in the early morning commuters had to break trail to the trains as best they could.

Trains were pretty much on time and after a short time in the early morning the buses were going through. It grew cold during the late afternoon and the glaze got down below 10 degrees Thursday morning with a sharp wind. Brrr!

Overheated stovepipe is the indicators of two cars caused fire that brought out the fire department Wednesday afternoon, at 3:27 a.m. in a shed and garage belonging to Phil C. Cuniff, Inc., Arthur Ave. Winchester Rock and Brick Company on East street in Woburn. At 3:50 a Dodge sedan owned by James Pizzano of Woburn went afire on Main st. opposite Hemingway street. The latter machine was badly damaged by the fire and had to be towed away.

WILLAMETTE VALLEY

Heavier than average seasonal floods in northwest Oregon, caused by rains and thawing, have served to stimulate interest in the war-retarded Willamette Valley Project for flood control and navigation, approved by Congress in 1938.

The Willamette (accent on the lam) Valley is Oregon's heartland of population and industry, notes a National Geographic Society bulletin. It is a clearly defined basin of rolling farmlands and forests enclosed by the Coast Range on the west, the Cascade Range on the east, the Calapooyan mountains on the south, and opening into the Columbia River Valley in the north.

Supports Two-Thirds of Stat's People

One glance at a highway map lends proof that this area is Oregon's chief attraction for newcomers, as it has been since the earliest days of the Old Oregon Trail. Good roads, which form a lighter network on other parts of the state map, thickly beribbon the Willamette Valley. Comprising less than one-eighth of Oregon's area from north to south and 60 miles wide - the Willamette watershed supports two-thirds of the state's population.

The Willamette River and its chief tributaries - the McKenzie the Santiam and the Clackamas - have their sources in the Cascade Range. They flow westward across the basin to form and expand the main stream, which, for most of its length, flows northward close to the Coast Range.

Passing Eugene, Corvallis, Albany and Salem, he state capital, the growing river reaches Newberg, where it angles eastward to the horseshoe-shaped rocky reef at Oregon City known to tourists as Willamette Falls. Continuing northward to Milwaukie it flows under Portland's many bridges and then joins the Columbia, 99 deep-channel miles from the Pacific Ocean.

Because of its lush, fertile valley, the direction of its flow, and its long mouth, the Willamette has been called Oregon's Nile. Although it drains an area no larger than that drained by the Hudson, it annually discharges twice as much water as New York State's river. But the region is hard hit by great climatic variations from season to season, and there are months when farm bottomlands are flooded and lands at higher levels need drainage conditions which the Willamette Valley Project is designed to relieve.

Two Storage Dams Built

The Congress-approved general plan, recently estimated to cost about $85,000,000, includes construction on Willamette tributaries of seven large dams capable of storing much of the flood season excess water. Thus they will control flood damage and release stored water for dry season use. The two smallest dams were the only ones near completion when non-war construction was limited.

The project provides for enlargement of the locks at Willamette Falls and deepening of the river channel to a six-foot minimum as far as Albany, 120 miles from the mouth. The enlarged waterway is planned to encourage industrial development upstream.

Walnuts and filberts, hops, flax for linen weaving, fruits and dairy products are leaders in the valley's varied agriculture. Farming thrives on both banks of the river in a belt five miles wide. Flood control can expand the land resources to accomodate an estimated 10,000 new farm families.

Lumber and plywood mills to process the region's superb stands of native timber were springing up in immediate prewar years. Textile mills, packing houses and preserving plants are found in the larger river towns. Shipbuilders led the influx of war workers to Portland's industries.

CARRIBBEAN COMMISSION

The Anglo-American Carribbean Commission, which meets at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, on Feb. 21, is helping to develop in the West Indies a colonial-administration laboratory for economic and social improvements.

The commission has been quietly studying the problems of the dependent areas for almost four years. Cuba, Haiti, and the Dominican Republic have not been included in its activities, but independent nations as well as colonies were vitally affected by its war work.

Particularly was this true of the Commission's "land-water highway" from Florida across the larger islands, designed to guard foodstuffs during the war, the Commission also had recommended the organization of a schooner pool which mobilized scores of Caribbean vessels to pick up where the "land-water highway" left off. The pool operated successfully between the Leeward Islands and British Guiana to the south.

From War to Peace Plans

The West Indies have a land area of 92,000 square miles, or roughly twice that of Pennsylvania, and their population is estimated at about nine million, according to the National Geographic Society. These tropical islands are devoted almost exclusively to agriculture with sugar the one dominant crop. They depend largely on outside sources for both food and manufactured products.

Great Britain and the United States created the Commission in 1942 to encourage and strengthen social and economic cooperation between the two governments and their Caribbean possessions. France and the Netherlands, which also have territory in the West Indies, have only recently affiliated themselves with the work. The Commission is purely advisory.

The Commission established a Caribbean Research Council of experts in various fields to survey the needs of the area, to determine what research already has been done, and to provide conferences and cooperation with other research workers. The work of the Council has revealed a growing number of problems calling for study and solution by the Commission.

To Catch Sharks and Tourists

One of the outstanding achievements of the Commission was the organization of the West Indian Conference which met in Barbados in 1944. In line with the Commission's program, the Conference considered such questions as raising the nutritional level, industrial development, and public works looking to the improvement of public health, education, housing and agriculture.

Only colonial possessions participated in the 1944 Conference, the delegates representing individual islands or such groups as the Bahamas, the Leeward, Windward, and Virgin Islands. The Conference showed particular interest in the development of industry and the expansion of trade within the Caribbean area.

A trans-Anglo-American fishery survey of Caribbean waters was inaugurated by the Commission to detrmine what areas could contribute most to the islands' food supply. A practical and comprehensive guide on shark fishing — catching, preserving, and marketing — was developed.

A servey of the Caribbean travel industry also was conducted, and recommendations for its expansion were formulated.

BIKINI

Bikini, lonely Pacific atoll chosen as the site for teh U. S. Navy's series of atom bomb tests on fighting ships, lies 4,750 air miles southwestward from San Francisco. That is twice the distance from San Francisco to Pearl Harbor, but in the same general direction.

Bikini is northermost of the Ralik ("sunset" or western) Chain of the Marshall Islands group, notes the National Geographic Society. It is thus part of the first prewar Jap territory to be seized by the United States combat teams. Kwajalein, known as the world's largest atoll, invaded by Yanks Feb. 1, 1944, is 170 air miles southeast. Eniwetok, invaded Feb. 17, is 190 air miles to the west.

ike Eniwetok, Bikini forms a nearly perfect oval atoll of barely submerged coral, with a score or more of pam-fringed islets of coral sand rising a few feet above the ocean's surface at varying intervals along its rim. The atoll's east-west length is about 25 statute miles and its maximum width is 15 miles. The length around the coral perimeter enclosing the lagoon is 65 miles.

At the northeast bulge of the crescent of palms called Bikini Island. It is the home of most of the atoll's 160 easy-going Polynesians who will be evacuated for the tests. Enyu Island, at the southeast bulge, is only slightly smaller. Enirikku, on the south, and Namu, northwest, complete the quartet of principal isletes.

Through the 40-foot depths of wide Enyu Channel, on the south and ran west of Enyu Island, the "guinea-pig" fleet will steam. Within the lagoon are typical cobalt-blue waters and numerous shoal reefs, but, in general, depths average more than 100 feet. The lagoon area is ample - about 200 square miles - three times as large as the District of Columbia and one-sixth the size of Rhode Island. For the first test, the ships will take positions in the lagoon not far off the Bikini Island shore, according to plans.

The Germans knew the atoll as Escholtz during the years of their tenure, prior to World War I. The Japs, holding it as part of the big Micronesian area mandated to them by the eague of Nations, called it Pikinni. Flies and mosquitoes were numerous until the arrival of Yanks with DDT.

Winchester cannot afford to postpone such a program until such time as it is possible to provide much-hoped-for recreation building for her citizens. The need is now. It is a challenge to a Board of Recreation Commissioners to institute such recreational activities as can be satisfactorily undertaken with present resources under trained leadership. If elected, I shall do what I can to help the development of an effective community program of recreation for Winchester.

My social work has given me the background for juvenile physical and mental education.

What would be your objectives if elected to this office? I should much prefer that my objectives may become the objectives of all town members. I believe that a people that can sacrifice in every way for the producing of an army to fight, can become interested sufficiently in promoting juvenile activities that will keep our children interested in clean, sociable endeavors and will instill in them the desire for sociability and understanding that will lead to a better town and eventually to a better nation.

WEDNESDAY NIGHTERS ENJOY BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

The Parish Hall of the First Congregational Church was the scene of a beautiful and festive birthday party celebration last Friday evening when Wednesday Nighters gathered to celebrate their own birthday. The tables were artistically designed to suit each month of the year and the decorating of the tree made festivities to correspond to the months. A delicious roast turkey dinner was served with hot home-made rolls. Then the hostesses who had baked birthday cakes brought them in, lighted and everyone joined in singing "Happy Birthday." Following the serving of the cakes and ice cream, the Master of Ceremonies, Henry Wheeler and Mrs. William Hungerford went around to each table and led the singing of songs which were chosen to suit each month. This was followed by a delightful half hour of entertainment furnished by George S. (Bo) Shafer who drew clever caricatures of various club members including Sam Graves, Doc Blanchard, Eugene Pollard, Deb Bellow, Brad Hersey and Irving Plitt.

The next hour was spent in taking a trip "Along the Trail of Monument Valley" with Dr. Charles H. Tozier who showed this color movie and told of his experience in taking it last summer. It was a masterpiece of photography as was the film showing the growth and development of many blooming flowers.

The closing of this party was due to the excellent planning of the chairmen and all committee members who helped. The dinner chairman was Mrs. William Bodman assisted by Mrs. Raymond Bateman and the chairman of the decorating committee was Mrs. Wallace Snow assisted by Mrs. Al Nelson and their committees. To the hostesses who provided an extra-special birthday cake were Mrs. Florence McDermott, Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mrs. George G. Collins, Mrs. Paul Nelson, Mrs. Allen O. Eaton, Mrs. George Gowdy, Mrs. Harry Simpson, Mrs. Wallace Snow, Mrs. Warren Beach, Mrs. Kezar Nichols, Mrs. Fred Ford and Mrs. Kimball Archibald.

TWO ALARMS SUNDAY

The Fire Department answered two alarms on Sunday, the first at 12:30 in the morning. At that time trouble with a heating system was reported in the Children's School on the old Russell estate below Symmes Corner on Main street. The men found the hot water system had frozen and a pipe elbow had broken on the second floor at the rear of the house.

The alarm from Box 44 late Sunday afternoon was for wood burning in the oven of a stove at the home of Margaret Shaughnessy, 50 Richardson street. The wood had been placed in the oven to dry and got overheated, causing considerable smoke. Miss Shaughnessy was unable to remain in the house after the fire, going to relatives in Woburn for the night.

ASSEMBLY PROGRAM WINCHESTER MEN'S CLUBS

Forum Discussion for March 7 on Management and Labor Relations

The Star has received from the committee in charge of the selection of the speakers for the Forum to be held on March 7, the following information concerning the men who will compose the discussion group.

Topic "Management-Labor Relations and What's Ahead"

Discussion Leader and Moderator

Prof. Charles A. Myers of M. I. T., professor of Industrial Management and widely recognized as an expert in the field of labor relations. He is often retained as counsellor on employment problems by some of the foremost industrial concerns and associations in the United States.

Panel Members

Ernest C. Johnson, Secretary of the Boston Building Trades Council of the American Federation of Labor who is known and highly respected both in labor circles and among employer groups for the skill with which he has piloted the building trades throughout many years. He was formerly a member of the New England Council on behalf of organized labor.

Francis E. Carmichael, the New England Regional Director of the Congress of Industrial Organizations than whom no other labor leader in Massachusetts is better able to present a clearer statement of the objectives and program of that exceedingly powerful organization in which he is a "top policy" man very close to C. I. O. president Philip Murray.

Clarence G. McDavitt, Sr., formerly Vice President of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company and until recently a member of the industry and also the chairman of the New England section of the War Labor Board. He has been actively prominent as one of the employer representatives in the International Labor Management Conference, a tripartite body of Government labor and management delegates that has met in many parts of the world to consider labor issues and inter-national policies.

Prof. Richard F. Doherty of the Department of Economics in the College of Business Administration at Boston University. Prof Doherty's acceptance is tentative at the present time owing to illness but will be confirmed in next week's Star. He is not only a well recognized expert in labor relations problems but also an able and interesting speaker who has participated in many Forum programs as a member of the Labor Relations Council of Boston being frequently heard over the radio.

The committee considers that it has been fortunate to be able to present to Winchester for the forthcoming Annual Assembly of the Men's Clubs a group of such exceptionally capable and well informed men.

Widespread interest is already being shown among the various affiliated clubs and tickets are reported as going rapidly. Winchester men not members of any of those clubs are going to be able to secure tickets provided the member clubs do not take up the entire allotment of about 200 which is the capacity of Metcalf Hall. The committee is arranging for this supply to be available at places that it hopes to announce next week through the columns of the Star although the number expected to be offered is likely to be small. Advance applications can be made if desired by calling at the secretary's office of the Congregational church in the meantime.

Miss Nancy Josselyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lee Josselyn of 19 Dix street, was hostess at a luncheon at The Lexington in Boston last Thursday. Her guests were Dorothy Byford, Mass.; Tanner, Jackie Geerts, Barbara Wallace, Jill Miller and Marjorie Johnston.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Bushell and son Paul of 56 Salisbury street are motoring to Coral Gables, Florida. They will return the middle of March.

SOCIAL SECURITY BOARD PAYMENTS

Under Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Program for 1945

Monthly old-age and survivors insurance benefits for 6714 persons were in force at the end of 1945 in the area served by the Cambridge office of the Social Security Board, representing an increase of approximately 27 per cent over the number in force on Dec. 31, 1944, James T. Phelan, manager, said in a statement of the activities of the office during the year.

In giving his estimates, which are subject to minor revision, Mr. Phelan said that the increase over the year in benefits in force amounted to approximately 30 per cent.

Approximately $1,525,000.00 in monthly benefits was awarded during the year to men, women and children of this area. This marked an increase of about $100,356.00 over the total sum paid out in 1944.

The service area of the Cambridge office includes Cambridge, Somerville, Arlington, Winchester, Woburn, Burlington, Lexington, Belmont, Watertown, Newton and Bedford.

The number in the different classes of beneficiaries and the monthly benefit amount received during the year were approximately as follows:

(Area) Monthly Benefit Amount

Retired workers aged 65 or over	$812,656.36
Wives, 65 or over, of retired workers	156,533.80
Widows with young children	165,734.11
Children of deceased or retired workers	232,773.57
Aged widows of workers	157,752.71

Town of Winchester Monthly Benefit Amount

Retired workers aged 65 or over	$ 32,468.61
Wives, 65 or over, of retired workers	6,265.36
Widows with young children	7,079.16
Children of deceased or retired workers	9,369.03
Aged widows of workers	6,977.50

Monthly benefits are paid also to aged dependent parents of fully insured workers who die without leaving a wife or child.

Mr. Phelan said "I should like to pass on a word of caution to those persons who are not forced by advancing age to retire, but who are beyond the age of 65 and are giving the question thoughtful consideration.

"Call at the local office of the Social Security Board. It may be advantageous for you to file your claim at once. The people at the office can help you. They will do it gladly."

Mr. Phelan added that all holders of social security account cards should guard them well.

"People who have earned considerable wage credits in covered employment during the war and who are now returning to household duties, to school, or to other pursuits, may feel that the card is no longer of value to them," he said. "In many cases that will not be true. Many of these persons may return to covered employment in the near future, whether they now contemplate that action or not. The social security card identifies the account to which all past wages earned by the workers in covered employment have been credited and to which future wages will be credited. It may represent an insurance policy to dependents of the wage earner in event of tragedy."

TROOP 3, BOY SCOUTS

The Scouts of Troop 3 witnessed a fine day of ice fishing at Forge Pond in Littleton on Saturday, Feb. 2. The fishing was fair and several fish were caught. The largest pickeral was caught by Elliott Hersey. A few Scouts were passed on their requirements. Later in the afternoon it began to snow but soon stopped. The trail to the pond was about a half a mile long. The Scouts that went on the expedition were: Phillip Nelson, Bradford Smith, David Hutchins, David Shiverick, Peter Browne, Robert Craig, William Elmer, Elliott Hersey, Gordon Bird, John Davis, James Loftus, Burton Bailey and Richard Simonds.

On Sunday, Feb. 10, National Scout Sunday, our Scouts and the Scouts of other troops of Winchester, attended the First Baptist Church and heard a very fine message delivered by Rev. Walter Lee Bailey, the pastor.

OLD MASTERS AT LIBRARY ART GALLERY

The Winchester Art Association is privileged to show currently at the Library Art Gallery paintings by old masters, loaned for the exhibition by the Fogg Museum at Harvard and the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

This is an unusual show in every way. Many will not care especially for the subjects, modernists may find the perfection of line, proportions and blending of colors unexciting, but no one can stand before these mellowed canvasses and not be profoundly conscious that here is painting which has endured and which today has a considerable market value. That "Still Life with Birds," for instance, has a $40,000.00 ticket on it.

You can look at this dusky canvas and actually feel impelled to reach out and touch the down of the breast feathers on the white bird and mix a color along the quill feathers of the wing. This study, black with age, is by Jan Weenix, an artist of the Dutch School, 1640 to 1719. It was loaned by the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

Especially outstanding is the "Vegetable Seller" by the Italian artist, Monsu Bernardo, 1624-1627, loaned by the Museum of Fine Arts. This study of an elderly peasant-type woman with two girls, one holding a large basket; and an old man peeping behind the trio is wholly natural, in flesh tones, facial expressions, and the pose of the figures. There is real depth, too. You can look right into the picture.

There are two huge portraits, one so heavy that Custodian Robert Eason was prompted to cleat the wall to guard against a possible fall. This study is of "Nicholas Tricste" and is attributed to Anton Van Dyck, the Flemish artist, 1599-1641. Loaned by the Museum of Fine Arts, it shows a tall patrician in blue cloak and stiff ruff, his face mustachioed and wearing a goatee. The long slim hands are especially fine.

The other large portarit is of a "Warrior," attributed to the Venetian School of the 16th century and also loaned by the Fine Arts Museum. It is of a bearded man with a long oval face, clad in armor of proof and standing with one strong hand on his helm, which is resting on a tome with his mail gauntlets.

See the detail, the naturalness, the perspective and the fine coloring in "Chanareggio", Venice, School of Michele Marieschi, the Venetian School, 1711-1743. This Fine Arts study is of a familiar canal scene with gondolas, peaked bridge and squarish, bulky stone buildings ranged on either side of the water.The individuality of the figures, the wash of the water, the warped piles and fine drawing show the master hand.

An Englishman, Richard Wilson, 1733-1782, painted the "Portrait of John Roberts" loaned by the Fogg Museum at Harvard. The single American artist's work is the painting of "Duke Olivares," a copy after Velasques, by Denman W. Ross, 1853-1935, an equestrian portrait showing a bulky figure in armor with plumed hat, astride a rearing horse, pointing with a baton.

There are two fine religious studies, one from the Fine Arts Musum, entitled "Marriage of St. Catherine" being a highly imaginative painting, such as might adorn the niche of a chapel, replete with churchmen, angels, cherubs and warriors. This picture is of the Flemish School of Peter Paul Rubens. The other "Feast in the House of Levi," mellowed with age, is a beautiful study, with its company gathered around a long table and the kneeling woman in blue-green cloak clasping the feet of Christ, seated at the end of the board. The subdued coloring, facial expressions, the napery and vessels on the table, a dog thrusting his nose from under one end, the glint of armor and the grouping of the figures make this painting one to reward close study. The artist was the Italian Guiseppe Bazzani, 1690-1701, and the canvas is from the Fogg Museum at Harvard.

"Scene at a Well," is also from the Fogg Museum and is by the French artist, Sebastian Bourdon, 1616-1671. The clarity of the coloring in this picture is remarkable. From the Spanish School, 1760-1780, is "Still Life with Melon and Pears" by Luis Menendez, natural in form and coloring, from the Museum of Fine Arts.

MISS AVERY DISCUSSES RUSSIA'S WANTS

"What Does Russia Want in Iran and Turkey" is the question Eunice Hartley Avery will discuss, speaking in Winchester, Wednesday Feb. 27th at 2:30 p. m. in the Wyman School Hall. What is brewing in the Middle East and the extent of our influence with the Arabs and adjacent Mediterranean countries prompts this subject for the 7th lecture in the series for the benefit of the Winchester Smith College Club Scholarship Fund.

INADEQUATE PROTECTION

Umbrellas with holes in them are no good in the rain. Such protection as they afford is inadequate. Neither does an insurance program which leaves loopholes for possible losses give the policyholder adequate protection.

Modern insurance is capable of doing a very complete job of protection, but only if the various policies are properly integrated to the needs of the individual. This usually requires a detailed survey by a competent insurance advisor. Our agency has the men and the facilities to adjust your insurance to your particular needs. May we review your present policies and prepare a chart showing the extent and the limitations of your present insurance program? Call this agency today for a free insurance survey!

Lorahane, a women's wear store on Main street at the site of the old Barnes store, put 50 dozen rayon stockings last Saturday morning, and a line of prospective customers stretched from the store down to the Converse dam during the height of the sale. Many were lined up before the store opened it having been announced in advance that the stockings would go on sale. Butter, sugar or bacon never attracted such a crowd of both sexes as those stockings did last Saturday, and if they had been white shirts, well, we dunno!

Quite a little excitement developed at the Esso filling station when a truck, being filled with gasolene drove out of the yard with the gas hose still in its tank. The gas pump was pulled from its foundation and the yard flooded with gas. The attendants flushed down the gasoline and repairs on the damaged pump were commenced within a short time.

MYSTIC MOTHERS' CHAPTER

One of the best programs of recent years was given to a large attendance of mothers at the winter meeting of the Mystic Chapter of the Mothers' Association on Tuesday of last week.

The president, Mrs. Abbott D. Sawzey, presided at the business meeting, then presented Mrs. Herbert Ross, program chairman, who had planned a varied program with different supervisors for the afternoon. The supervisors had gone to considerable trouble to prepare demonstrations which would best show the work of their departments.

The first and newest demonstration was by Mr. Fethuet, of the band of 27 pieces, whose performance of "Vechors Aweegh" and two other pieces without names delighted and amazed the audience, especially in view of less than three weeks of practice.

Miss Nardone of the music department brought in pupils from the fifth and sixth grades, each of whom sang a group of one and two part songs. Marjorie Morse announced for the fifth grade and Todd Wallis for the sixth.

Mr. Muerling had returned from the service too recently to have a group ready for tumbling acts without the risk of personal injury. He greeted the mothers and outlined the season's program of sports activities for the fifth and sixth grade boys.

Miss Neidringhaus presented a group of second graders who demonstrated different rhythm steps with the tom tom.

Miss French of the art department had many examples of each grades work on display about the room. She showed the various types of art and how a child progresses from the scribbling stage to his own drawing of pictures suggested to him by what he reads or has read to him. Activities and reading stimulate the child to creative work.

All the supervisors remained to talk with the mothers at the tea served by Mrs. Robert Tonon and her committee ,which followed the program. Greater interest and pleasure in these activities were indicated in the discussions.

MABEL W. STINSON,
Town Clerk

Winchester, Mass. f22-2t

Hazen H. Ayer

Feb. 25, 1946

To Winchester Voters:

Since I am a candidate for re-election to the School Committee, I am presenting briefly my ideas regarding public school and Winchester schools in particular.

First of all, I believe that the maintenance of a sound and effective public school system is not only an important responsibility, but perhaps the greatest single challenge confronting a community like ours. It is a recognized fact that good public schools are an integral part of the democratic ideal—the part on which our experiment in self-government must increasingly depend.

During recent years, Winchester schools like many others, public and private, have been severely criticized. Some of this criticism has been fully justified. Part of it, however, has been neither impartial or constructive and may, therefore, have done more harm than good.

In any event, the time has now come to look forward rather than back. The School Committee has already laid the groundwork for substantial improvements. The appointment of a new well-qualified superintendent, the adoption of an adequate salary schedule, and the development of a tentative building program, are all worthwhile accomplishments.

It is my belief that the present teaching staff, under its present leadership, is capable of giving Winchester the kind of school system which it desires and of which the community will be proud. It should be realized, however, that best results will not be obtained without the enthusiastic support of the committee, the parents and citizens at large. I think that we owe the schools this kind of support.

The committee in turn has, I believe, some important responsibilities to the town. It should assist in developing a sound educational program adapted to the needs of our particular community. It should do this with proper allowance made for requirements of other essential town departments and the over-all ability of the taxpayer to meet current costs of government. And it should be prepared to make an impartial and factual report on the progress, or lack of it, which is being made in the schools at any given time.

These objectives are not easy ones. If reelected, I shall, nevertheless, continue to work toward them as far as I am able. It is on this basis that I ask your support.

P. S.—As a matter of record, the summary of my teaching experience published in last week's Star should have included two years as principal of the high school at Maine.

COURT CONSIDERING GINN PETITION

Judge Cabot of the Superior Court in East Cambridge has taken under advisement the petition of the trustees of the Ginn Estate who seek to set aside a decision of the Winchester Board of Appeal denying the trustees permission to use the property as a dwelling place for more than four persons in opposition to the town's Zoning By-Laws.

The case opened in Superior Court last Friday and continued until Tuesday with Calvin P. Bartlett representing the petitioners and Town Counsel Addison R. Pike, the Board of Appeal.

Mr. Bartlett argued that the trustees were attempting to relieve the housing shortage for veterans, particularly veterans taking courses at school or college under the rehabilitation act. He contended the Superior Court has original jurisdiction on an appeal and can make any order or direct that justice and equity may require, in effect standing as a Board of Appeal.

Mr. Pike contended the Superior Court will not break down long established rules and substitute its judgment for that of a local administrative board unless there has been an abuse of discretion.

MISS SHARON, MR. NICHOLS ENGAGED

Mrs. Alfred N. Denley of Maxwell road announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Sally Sharon, to Andrew Nichols, Jr., son of Major and Mrs. Andrew Nichols of Danvers.

Miss Sharon is a graduate of Winchester High School. Mr. Nichols, a graduate of New Hampton Preparatory School, has recently been discharged from the Navy after three years' service.

S. S. NEWS

The following Winchester registrants were inducted into the U. S. Army on Feb. 14:

Warren F. Temple, Thomas C. Connolly, Thomas O'Doherty.

Richard T. Kleber has enlisted in the U. S. Marines.

CANDIDATE FOR SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Marion Dow Pierce

Voters of Winchester:

Married Dow Pierce, who seeks election to the School Committee next Monday, March 4, is well qualified to fill this important office.

Her formal education has been varied, extensive, along pure academic lines. She has worked, thereby having the valuable experience in getting on with people and getting things done which only the world of industry can provide. She has taught, thus knowing something of the teacher's viewpoint and problems; and finally, she has demonstrated a broad interest in community affairs through active participation in the Mothers' Association, Scouting, both boys' and girls'; being associated as a worker with every community drive, and taking an active and leading part in the important social service work done for the town by the Winton Club and En Ka.

Mrs. Pierce is an independent candidate. She has made no promises to any persons or groups, and is pledged only to consider such problems as may confront her as School Committee member on their merits, striving always to make her decisions on school matters for the best interests of the town as a whole.

Two children in the Winchester schools give Mrs. Pierce a very vital interest in the welfare of our school system. She is also deeply interested in the schools as they affect the children of others, whose educational needs may differ from her own.

Her aim is the approach to a school system which will best serve the educational, physical and social needs of all the children to whom it ministers.

She asks your support of her candidacy on this basis only.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Reverend Edwin Moss, Vicar of the Episcopal Church on Saturday, Feb. 9, at 4:30 in the afternoon, in the Church of the Angels, Pasadena, California.

After training and graduation at Houston and Sweetwater, Texas she was given special assignment with the AAF Target Squadrons at Camp Davis, North Carolina, and Liberty Field, Georgia, until the deactivation of the Wasps in December 1944. Since then she had been employed as Flight Instructor in Richmond, Virginia.

TOWN ELECTION MONDAY

You would never know it's a [illegible] activity be concerned, but the fact remains that the voting March 4, Mar. 1, town election day. Polls will be open at the usual hours for those who [illegible] to vote from 7 to the morning to 7 in the evening, and [illegible] political ken do not believe that many will turn out.

They may be surprised. There is a contest for school committee and there always results a certain amount of election day activity, but the lack of contest in the selectmen's bracket, plus the fact that there are but three places on the entire ballot where there is a choice, will undoubtedly keep the vote down.

Of the three contests only one for school committee arouses any interest. For the vacancy on the Board of Cemetery Commissioners Joseph L. S. Barron, outgoing member, is [illegible] opposed by Frederick LaTorella, world war veteran, and for the two-year term on the newly established Recreation Commission Mrs. Alice B. Browne and Stephen N. Hill are contesting candidates. Few if any can recall a case of anyone getting onto this Recreation Commission, which was established by a very close vote at last year's town meeting, by petitioning to do so, so money to speak of has been undoubtedly be used [illegible] campaign to elect [illegible].

The entire [illegible] committee has developed into a three cornered competition with Hazen H. Ayer, candidate for re-election; Marion Dow Pierce and Ruth Gates Smith as the candidates involved. Although not as heated as all three have been more or less busy in the contest has not aroused the interest manifest in other years, which makes prognostication evident by dangerous.

With a low vote anything is likely to happen, as the politically wise well know. There are keeping their fingers crossed with the hope that enough voters turn out to make results conclusive, and satisfactory.

Following is the complete ballot:

Moderator (For 1 year)

James W. Wilson of Wedgemere Rd.

Selectmen (For 3 years)

Vote for TWO

Michael Hanlon, Lloyd A. [illegible]
Kenneth P. Wolf, 2nd, 7 Wedgemere road

Selectman (For 2 years)

Vote for ONE

Percy F. Walker, 7 Wedgemere road

Board of Health (For 3 years)

[illegible] H. McGonagle, Cambridge road

Board of Public Welfare (For 3 years)

"STEAMER" HANLON HOME

Brig. Gen. Francis D. Col. John D. Hanlon, son of Winchester "Steamer" Hanlon, a great defensive fullback in high school days here and good enough to play regularly in the University of New Hampshire backfield during his undergraduate days at Durham.

"Steamer", son of Mr and Mrs John E. Hanlon of Bridge street, got back from the ETO on Feb 20 after more than two years in the thick of things with the 502nd Paratroop Infantry of the 101st Airborne Division. He went over as a captain in September 1943 and was twice promoted.

In the third invading plane over France on D-Day, he took part in the savage fighting on the Normandie Beach-head and later saw action at Arnheim in Holland and at Bastogne. He was twice wounded, being once hospitalized in England, and he wears among other decorations, the Purple Heart, Silver and Bronze Stars and the Presidential Citation.

Currently he is in Richmond, Va., for the wedding of his old football pal and co-captain, "Gerry" Gaffney, now a captain in the Army. "Gerry" is marrying Miss Jane Stewart on Saturday and "Steamer" is to be a member of the usher corps. With the latter having no interference for him, "Gaff" ought to get along all right and we can think of no finer emissaries to send south from Winchester to Richmond than "Steamer" Hanlon and "Gerry" Gaffney, gentlemen-scholar and captain them if you like!

POLICE AMBULANCE BURNED

Shortly after the fatally injured Vincent Gillotte of Tremont street was removed from the Police Ambulance at the Winchester Hospital Wednesday evening, the machine caught fire. The Fire Department was notified and upon arrival found a hot fire in progress around the motor of the machine.

Before it could be put out considerable damage had been done to wiring and the hood of the car, disabling it so that the Fire Department had to tow it to the Police Garage.

Fire Chief John J. Gorman believed that alcohol boiling over onto the hot motor following the ambulance's hard run up hill from Swanton street to the hospital may have caused the fire.

"UNITARIAN CHRISTIANITY"

In co-operation with other Unitarian Churches the local church will observe "Unitarian Christianity Sunday" at 11 o'clock on March 3. Mr. Chapman will preach. He will be assisted in the service by Mr. Theodore C. Browne, chairman for the Unitarian Christian Committee and recently nominated for director of the American Unitarian Association.

ON ACQUIREMENT OF THE GINN PROPERTY

School Committee Explains Need for New High School Building

To Winchester Citizens:

In the warrant for the coming Town Meeting, Article 20 raises the question of what action, if any, should be taken by the town, in acquiring the Ginn Estate for future school purposes. The following statement is issued by the School Committee, which inserted the article, in order that citizens may know the issues involved and the action to be proposed, namely, that a committee composed of members of the School Committee, Planning Board, Selectmen, and citizens at large be appointed to consider the proposal for purchase and report back at a special town meeting to be called early in June.

The Fowkes Survey recommended to the Town the abandonment of the Senior High School as inadequate and antiquated and the establishment of a six-year combined Junior and Senior High School on the present Junior High School site.

The enlargement of the Junior High School to take care of the ninth grade, which has been part of the High School but accommodated in the Wadleigh School, has been hindered by the war. The conducting of a separate ninth grade has resulted in increased administrative expense, has caused an undesirable break in the continuity of the school program, and has made a needless and dangerous traffic on the part of students from the Wadleigh School to the High School.

In the meantime the inadequacies of the Senior High School for the 10th, 11th, and 12th grades have become increasingly evident to the school administrators. The more glaring of these inadequacies are the following:

1. Inadequate room for an industrial arts program.
2. Lack of facilities for proper science instruction.
3. Lack of room for future increases of student body.
4. Lack of proper library facilities.
5. Inadequate cafeteria space.
6. Lack of adequate facilities for a complete athletic program.
7. Undesirable physical features of interior particularly of lighting, floors, and fixtures.
8. Bad location from students point of noise and traffic, being surrounded by three main arteries.
9. Inadequate play space with necessity of students crossing main arteries to reach physical education facilities.

In view of the need of enlarging the Junior High School and of solving the Senior High School building problem, the School Committee with funds supplied by the 1944 town meeting employed the architectural firm of Kilham, Hopkins and Greeley of Boston, specialists in school architecture, to study the present and future building needs for the Junior and Senior High Schools.

TO WINCHESTER PARENTS AND VOTERS

The election of two members of the School Committee next Monday is of vital importance to Winchester school children. We cannot afford to let this election go by default.

Real improvement is under way and school needs for the next three years will be [illegible] great. In these years [illegible] of the new Junior High School [illegible] of the Senior High School [illegible] of the Ginn property [illegible] The School Committee will be faced with many [illegible] difficult problems [illegible] decisions.

To handle these problems [illegible] a solid [illegible] the Committee will need a maximum of ability, business experience, and familiarity with the new school program. One of the three candidates is outstanding in these respects. (We say this with full admiration for the two other candidates.)

Mr. Hazen Ayer's record in business as a senior partner of a well known Boston firm and as president of a mutual fire insurance company is conclusive proof of his [illegible] ability and business judgment. He has had several years of actual teaching experience and is now completing a three-year term on the School Committee. As a result, he is intimately familiar with our school problems. Mr. Ayer has the added personal interest of three children in the elementary grades.

The undersigned are parents of Winchester school children. We shall vote for Mr. Ayer and hope that all other parents will make the effort to go to the polls and assure no repetition next Monday indifference on our part and a small turnout could result in disaster. Many of us have strong personal regard for each of the other candidates, but we must be realistic. The best interests of the schools and our children require Mr. Ayer on the School Committee during the next three years.

We would appreciate support for Mr. Ayer by other Winchester voters who realize the importance of broad business experience on a committee which will be responsible for [illegible] expenditure of 40% of the town's total budget and for a building program likely to [illegible] over $1,000,000.

Respectfully,

WINCHESTER LOST RETURN GAME TO WOBURN

Winchester faded in the final minutes of its basketball game with Woburn at Woburn on the holiday afternoon, finally losing to the Tanners, 41-37, after leading by a basket going into the final quarter. The fighting local seconds won the preliminary game by an eyelash, 16-15.

In the varsity game Woburn led at the quarter, 9-8, but with Jimmy Olivier scoring eight points to pace the local attack, Winchester pulled ahead at the half, 22-20. The locals still led going into the final stanza, 33-32, but only Olivier was able to do any scoring in the final quarter for Winchester, while Castiglione, McCarty and Dobbins counted for Woburn, their nine points being to much for Jimmy unassisted.

The local forwards weren't getting them at Woburn with the exception of Olivier. Jimmy picked up 16 points for second high score, but neither Capt. Patterson, not in too good shape after a bad cold, nor Bellino could get a basket, and Twiggy Nolan was out of uniform sick. Castiglione of Woburn led both teams with 19 points, getting five in that pay-off last quarter.

In the preliminary game both teams guarded closely with a result that only five points were scored after intermission, Bellino getting two for Winchester.

WINCHESTER EDGED GOV. ERNOR DUMMER

Winchester High played its best basketball of the season Tuesday afternoon to edge a good looking team from Governor Dummer Academy, 55-53. Jimmy Olivier, who has been going very well for the locals of late, shot the basket that finally put Winchester in front at the very end of the game, adding a foul basket for good measure and a two point advantage.

Governor Dummer had some fine scoring strength in the back court with its guards, Freeman and Oliver tallying 16 and 14 points respectively. The visitors were a nice bunch of boys and well drilled. The game between the two schools was one of the best in which Winchester has played this year.

Capt. Pat Patterson, after going scoreless in the Woburn game, broke out in a rash of baskets, tossing 12 for 24 points to lead both teams. Jimmy Olivier had 5 and a foul shot for 11. The summary:

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARD NOTED LECTURER

On the evening of Feb. 21st a large and enthusiastic audience attended a lecture at Winchester Town Hall sponsored by the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Church.

The speaker who is a noted author and lecturer was the Rev. James M. Gillis of the Congregation of Saint Paul whose subject was "The Generals and the Philosophers."

In his talk Father Gillis called attention to the dangers which are already affecting Western civilization caused by the modern trend toward the abandonment of the moral and natural law as a basis for all law. He further emphasized that the foundation of a real and lasting peace must be based on truth and the Brotherhood of man under God's law.

The lecture was open to the public and many notable persons including several of Father Gillis' contemporaries were present.

Only Newspaper Printed In Winchester

An illustration of what this country is undergoing through New Deal machination is given in this issue of the Star. Our way of government has sunk pretty low when the physicians, dentists and druggists of this Town, representative of our leading citizens, are obliged to resort to an advertisement in their local paper to combat bureaucratic schemes. It is hoped that Winchester people will stand solidly behind these professional and business men and send in their supporting coupons - as well as give their signatures to the petitions which are being circulated. After witnessing what is being done to business and food, let us keep medical and dental care out of their hands.

"When I grow up," said young George, "I want to take a Government course in its co-ordinating bureau and study wage stabilization, so that I can be a government mediator and conciliator and shutdown strikes. These fellows get good money and they are always in the win." A truly up-to-date stream-lined desire, young George!

It is hard to thump the old tub for a big vote at town election this year, in the face of the dearth of interest on the part of candidates seeking election. With only three places where voters can exercise a preference on the entire ballot it will be a wonder if more than a corporal's guard turns out to vote, since two of the contests seem to be getting scant attention from the voters. The other contest is for school committee with three candidates seeking the two vacancies, one a candidate for re-election and the others new candidates, both of whom seem to have considerable backing. Whether this contest, even for school committee, is enough to get out a respectable vote, remains to be seen. It will be too bad if the vote cast is so small as to be inconclusive. Important school matters will have to be settled in the immediate future and it surely behooves all those with the best interests of the schools at heart to get out and vote on Monday. Don't let "George" do it this time. He may not be half as interested in your school preferences as he is in his own!

CAN ANY ONE HELP?

83 Sagamore avenue
No. Quincy No. 71
Massachusetts

Editor of the Star:

I would greatly appreciate it if you could possibly obtain the present address of a service friend of mine and forward it on to me.

I knew this chap only as "Red" Clarke and that his home is in Winchester. I knew him as a Corporal in the 3rd Weather Squadron at Galveston, Texas during the Spring and early Summer of 1944. Since then he has attended a signal corps school at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey and at present is a second lieutenant in an Engineering outfit overseas. I saw him during the Christmas season in Boston and he told me at that time that he was leaving shortly for overseas duty. It may be that his last name is spelled "Clarke", if that could be any help.

I'm sorry I have such meager information but it is the best I can do.

Please accept my deepest thanks for your cooperation in this matter.

Sincerely,
R. J. O'Donnell, Jr.

VICTORY CLOTHING COLLECTION

To the Editor of the Star:

The people of the 37 communities included in the Greater Boston Victory Clothing Collection responded most generously to the appeal made to them for donations of clothes, to be sent to the war victims in foreign lands. I know that you will be interested in knowing that over 40 freight-car loads of clothing were collected.

The help and support which your newspaper gave to this worthy cause materially contributed to its success. It is impossible for me to overestimate the part the newspapers played in this great drive.

As chairman of the Greater Boston Committee for the Victory Clothing Collection, I wish to express my sincere appreciation and thanks for your splendid support.

Very truly yours,
Edward J. Hyland,
Chairman

WINCHESTER DOG WITH COAST GUARD IN CHINA

Mrs. Genevieve M. Elwell of 21 Maple road has received from Rear Admiral Charles A. Park, chief operation officer of the U. S. Coast Guard, a letter telling of the activities of her Sheperd dog, Cappy, now with the Chinese Army after valuable service with the Coast Guard in China during World War II.

Cappy was one of the dogs assigned to a crack detachment of men and dogs organized by the Coast Guard in 1942 to be assigned to a mission abroad. After training, in November of 1942 the detachment left for its new assignment arrived in India in February of 1944.

In March of that year it was flown over the Hump to Chungking, China, and there assigned to the Sino-American Cooperative Organization, Sako (pronounced Socko), which was composed of Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard Personnel, teamed with the Chinese.

It was then that the Chinese learned how to use War Dogs for sentry duty and patrol work, thus improving rapidly the Chinese security which was very essential as it helped prevent Japanese infiltration and sabotage.

Because of continuing military necessity this entire complement of dogs, including Cappy, was recently turned over to the Chinese Army.

In closing his letter Rear Admiral Park expressed the Coast Guard's deep appreciation of Cappy's service and the patriotic motive which prompted Mrs. Elwell to enroll her hand-some pet in the Armed Forces, enclosing a Certificate of Appreciation from the Coast Guard made out in Cappy's name and a photograph of his dog tag inscribed in China.

RUSSIAN FILM LAUNCHES BOOK DRIVE

The Superb Historical Film "Alexander Nevsky", was shown in the Winchester High School Auditorium yesterday afternoon to students in co-operation with the Winchester School Department and the Winchester Russian Relief Committee.

The picture was made in Russia, with fine musical accents, Prokofieff and directed by Eisenstein famous Russian director. The cast included several Moscow Art Theatre actors, and the details of scene fact and costuming of men and horses in armour are thrilling. It deals with the invasion of Russia by 13th Century Teuton Knights, and their downfall and final battle on the ice by the victorious Russian Knights and Peasants under Alexander Nevsky.

Many children including the five sixth grades, who have just completed their Medical History study and the Junior High and High School students, attended.

The students were asked to contribute English books by good English and American authors, and to tell parents and friends of the drive Russian Relief is having to help supply the great demand for English books in the Soviet school program, as English is now a required subject in the Russian High School curriculum.

Mrs. Guy Living-tone and Mrs. John Chipman are in charge of the book drive and books may be donated by anyone in the book bins in each school, and at the Winchester Public Library.

W. H. S. VAUDEVILLE PLANS NEW FEATURES

The Winchester High School Vaudeville Show, 14th annual all-school production, to be given on the evenings of Friday and Saturday, April 5 and 6, will this year show definite signs of growth and expansion.

For the first time the entire show will have a central theme and acts, dances, skits, and novelties will be blended into a more unified performance. Already, the stage crew under the leadership of Mark Strawbridge and the general direction of Faculty Manager Ray Hayward has planned a new stage setting which will more nearly conform to the purpose for which the show is given. Having worked for three years as stage designer and stage manager, and having had responsibility for the setting for "Junior Miss" as well as considerable experience with stage lighting, Mark Strawbridge is well qualified to assume the important role of stage manager.

ARE WE CONSERVATIVE?

To the Editor of the Star:

Is it not amusing that we are so conservative? Let anyone suggest a change and we view it with suspicion.

At the proposed rapid transit hearing, mere thoughts of something different ten or twenty years hence accumulated panegyrics for the dear old Boston and Maine. Forgotten were the cinders and soot, the overheated and underheated cars, the wooden coaches that are a fire hazard, the steel coaches cast off from the Erie and the Pennsylvania Railroads, the late trains, the frozen switches and blown gaskets, the milling crowds in the North Station.

I wonder if 25 years from now the next generation of Winchester citizens will not laugh at us and wonder why we ever showed such fondness for this equipment and service.

"I detest all change,
"And most a change in aught
I loved long since."

ON ACQUIREMENT OF THE GINN PROPERTY

This firm has studied the problem and has given to the School Committee their recommendations on five possible solutions to meet Winchester's current and future needs. These are listed:

1. Should a six-year high school be constructed on the present Junior High School site?

The firm has definitely recommended against this plan. The topography of the Junior High School site is such that a building adequate for six grades would result in an awkward, five-story structure, deemed highly undesirable for school purposes.

2. Should the High School be modernized and enlarged to meet present and future needs of a three year school?

The firm recommends that this plan be not adopted. While the plant could be modernized and enlarged, the result would be an unsatisfactory building for school purposes. Because of the placement of the present auditorium, and gymnasium, additional classrooms would have to be gained by building upward. A five-story high school building placed on such a small lot is highly undesirable. Moreover, to make alterations would require some 12 to 15 months, during which th building could not be used for school purposes. No other facilities are available to accomodate the student body during that time. In addition, the shortcomings of bad location for noise and traffic and recreation would persist indefinitely into the future.

3. Could the present High School and Junior High School be joined by constructing additional structures to be used in common?

In order to attain this objective, an attractive structural plan was laid out, but it involved closing off Main street. The School Committee looks upon this plan as impractical in view of the remoteness of the adoption of the Kelleway plan.

4. Should the Junior High School be enlarged and converted to a four-year school while the Senior High was made suitable for the seventh and eighth grades now accommodated in the Junior High Building?

While such a conversion is feasible at a cost lower than is involved in building a new high school, the architects have advised against this solution. In addition, the Superintendent feels that the proposal is highly undesirable for a long-run plan.

From the standpoint of school administration the Town would be saddled with a mongrel administrative setup. The unsuitability of having a 6-2-4 grade segregation has been long evident under the present arrangement. A two-year junior high will not fulfill the functions of a good Junior High School program. The proposal would continue this two-year unit indefinitely into the future. Moreover, the poor location of the Senior High building would then operate in the future against the seventh and eighth grade pupils.

5. Should a new three-year High School at some time in the future be built on the Ginn Estate?

The architects enthusiastically recommend this solution for the future High School needs of the Town. The site is ideally suited for this purpose. The following points are pertinent.

a. The site is practically at the geographic center of the Town.

b. Comprised of almost 15 acres, it is large enough to accommodate a full school program, including all outdoor athletics; a football field and stadium with adequate parking facilities; a girls' athletic field; tennis courts and other play areas. Access to the additional Ginn and Manchester Fields can be easily provided by a pass under the Boston and Maine Railroad tracks.

c. As part of the School an auditorium adequate for all town needs can be constructed.

d. Instead of a makeshift for the indefinite future, the Town would be provided with an ideal school plant and grounds with room for any expansion which the future may present.

While the building of a new High School will be more costly than the renovation and alteration of the old plant, the increased expenditures are well warranted in the opinion not only of the architects but of the entire School Committee and the Superintendent.

The Ginn estate is now available to the Town at a purchase price of $85,000, which is well below the assessed valuation. There is strong reason to believe that unless the Town acquires the property by June 1 it will lose the opportunity to buy the land later, for the Trustees have stated their determination to dispose of it in the present market and are giving the Town first opportunity to purchase.

Since an abandonment of the present High School sometime in the next decade would result in a radical replanning of the Civic Center and since a considerable outlay of money sometime in the next decade for a new High School would be involved, it has seemed desirable to the School Committee and the Planning Board to have the School Committee's proposal studied by a committee broadly representing the Town Boards and the public so that any plan presented will accord with long-range interests of the Town. Moreover, the citizens' desires can in the interim be better ascertained.

Accordingly, a motion to this effect will be presented at the Town Meeting.

Respectfully submitted,

Chairman

LABOR-MANAGEMENT FORUM

March 7

At a special meeting on Monday evening of the delegates comprising the Central Council of the Winchester Assembly of Men's Clubs, final plans were made in anticipation of the Annual Assembly which is to be held at Metcalf Hall next Thursday night, March 7. Reports made to the Council from the member Clubs point to the probability that as keen interest is being shown in the forum discussion of problems currently plaguing management and labor there will be a large attendance and tickets for the occasion may prove difficult to obtain by that date. The program committee reports that all the experts who are to make up the panel for the discussion have been greatly interested in the forthcoming meeting.

Included in the group will be Fred Bliss, Representative of Management. He is New England District Manager of Advertising and Sales Promotion for the General Electric Company.

Since the members of the panel include some of the best known leaders of organized labor in New England on behalf of the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. those fortunate enough to attend this Forum are promised an unusually interesting and informative evening. Tickets to the capacity of Metcalf Hall are to be had from the officers of the various Men's Clubs of the town or may be secured by telephoning Otis Leary, 1896R or Fred Dodge, secretary of the Council, 0121-R. They may also be obtained by calling at the vestry office of the Unitarian Church.

At its meeting on Monday, the Council delegates elected the following officers who will be inducted into office at the forthcoming Assembly to serve for the ensuing year: President, Edward G. Stacy; Vice-President, Charles Gallagher; Secretary, Fred A. Dodge; Treasurer, Leon Leavitt.

THORNTON—HENDERSON

Miss Ruth Oliver Henderson, daughter of Mrs. Edward H. Henderson of Jackson Heights, N. Y., and Lt. Norman Bates Thornton, USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Thornton of Indian Hill road, were married at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon Feb. 27 at the Monumental M. E. Methodist Church by the Rev. Asbury G. E. Stromberg.

Miss Henderson was attended by her sister, Mrs. James M. Hogan of New York, and by the latter's small daughter, Johanne, who was flower girl. Lt. John Hindes, USNR, was best man for his brother, and another brother, Lt. Robert Thornton, U. S. N. R., acted as usher with the bride's brother-in-law, Mr. Hogan.

Lt. and Mrs. Norman Thornton are now en route to Honolulu where they will reside until the bridegroom is released from the Navy.

Mrs. Thornton, a graduate of Rye Neck, N. Y., schools and a former teacher in the Rye Neck school system, is a graduate of New York State Normal School. She was formerly associated with the Pennsylvania Airlines in Washington, D. C.

Lt. Thornton graduated from Wesleyan University in 1941, from the Harvard School of Business Administration in 1943, and is a member of the Chi Psi fraternity. He recently returned from Hawaii following Pacific duty as transportation officer at an ammunition depot.

ROTARY NOTES

Mr. Frederick G. Tripp, representing the Community Enrollment Division of the Massachusetts Hospital Service, Inc., (Blue Cross) was the guest speaker at the regular Thursday noon meeting of the Winchester Rotary Club. Mr. Tripp's discussion of group and individual enrollment in the Blue Cross was enjoyed by a large attendance, together with visiting Rotarians from the Burlington, Vt., and Reading, Mass. Clubs.

"Nick" Fezzgerald was a popular first-time winner of the Victory Bond, and it will be remembered that "Church" Hindes was also a first time winner at the last meeting.

After a full debate relative to the newly founded Winchester Scholarship Foundation, it was voted, upon motion presented by "Dick" Sheehy, to participate in the Scholarship Foundation by donating a sum of money to the Foundation. This money is to be transferred from the present Scholarship Fund of the Rotary Club, and the Fund is to be stabilized by voluntary contributions of the Club members on their birthdays.

Chief of Police, "Bill" Rogers, amidst much applause, very generously made the first "Birthday" contribution, although he celebrates his natal day only once every four years, on Feb. 29. Other members, with February birthdays, contributed more than $45.00 to the Scholarship Fund.

LINCOLN SCHOOL MOTHERS MEETING

The Mothers' Association of the Lincoln School had a meeting on Tuesday, Feb 26 at 3.30 o'clock in the school auditorium.

After a short business meeting the mothers were entertained by the children of the school under the supervision of Miss Blanchard, the principal and the teachers. A very interesting feature of the program were selections by the newly formed band of the Lincoln School under the direction of Mr. Felmet.

A large group were in attendance and were very much impressed by the entertainment.

Refreshments were served by a committee in charge of Mrs. Geo. Johnson.

BLUE CROSS CAMPAIGN

Over 110 persons enrolled during the first two days of the special Blue Cross Community Enrollment Campaign sponsored by the Winchester Hospital through its Campaign Headquarters at the Arlington Gas Light Company, 4 Mt. Vernon street. The active interest shown by the many citizens who have visited our local headquarters, indicates that Blue Cross Community Enrollment in Winchester will equal that of any other community in Massachusetts, based on the percentage of the population.

The Community Group is designed to extend Blue Cross service to persons retired, unemployed, or who work where there are less than five employees. Such groups are open for membership a limited time only and must be sponsored by local member hospitals.

Blue Cross officials said that the tremendous acceptance of the Community Group idea demonstrates that the hospitals recognize the desire of persons retired, unemployed, or who work in small shops to get this protection and have the courage to do something about it.

The campaign here closes Saturday noon and the director hopes individuals will not wait until the last day before making application to join.

Winchester Chapter American Red Cross

Office, Third Floor, Town Hall
WIN. 2300-2191-1022-2516 2518

A good percentage of Red Cross activities make news headlines, and most of us know just what Our Red Cross is doing, in war, in disaster, and in peace. But there are many Red Cross activities carried on quietly, without any publicity or fanfare. Such is the Camp and Hospital Committee, right here in Winchester.

This Committee, Mrs. Clark Collins, chairman, is a "go-between or liaison" and Mrs. Collins makes it very emphatic that all credit for its work should go to local church and civic organizations. When Winchester groups or organizations want to do something for the boys in the hospitals, they approach the Red Cross (Mrs. Colins' Committee) because this committee know just what items are needed by what veterans' hospital, and can thus secure the items for the boys. The local organization furnishes either the money or the needed items - the local Red Cross committee is the clearing house, thanks to this liaison committee, veterans in nearby hospitals who need little luxuries such as victrola and records, games, easy chairs or draperies to brighten their rooms, are able to have them. And cheerful surroundings, materials for handicrafts, music, reading, all serve mean so much to boys in these hospitals, boys who must not be allowed to be forgotten by those of us at home.

"This is going to be a more vital work as months go on," Mrs. Collins points out. "Some of these boys are going to be in the hospitals a long, long time. It is up to us to keep them supplied with the luxuries, the things the Army and Navy and the Red Cross cannot, within their budgeted supply, but which local groups can give. Our Committee knows of the hospitals' needs, and can distribute the luxuries which the local organizations want to donate. For example, if a local club wants to set aside $50 for these veterans, and we know that there are ping pong balls needed at Cushing General, then we simply coordinate the need and the means of supply, and the boys get the games!

This work which is being carried on so quietly by Red Cross volunteers in Winchester is a story we thought you'd like to hear. You might like to remember it when March 10 comes, and Winchester shares in its Red Cross Campaign fund.

P. S. If there are any Winchester residents who would like to take on a little extra fun, there are still openings for more volunteer workers at the Red Cross Campaign headquarters, Police Station basement, 30 Mt. Vernon street. There are a few jobs open for volunteer solicitors, too, a good way to meet your neighbors on March 10, and a good way to do your share in making possible the Red Cross work for 1946. Speaking of the Police Station, Chief Rogers comes in and out of the Headquarters each day, giving a little help here and there, a word of advice and encouragement! The workers are having a good time, getting a lot done, and would be glad to have you join them.

FIRST BAPTIST LENTEN SERVICES

Internationally Known Clergyman To Be One of the Speakers Wednesday Evening

Beginning with Ash Wednesday, March 6, and continuing through the Lenten season, special Wednesday evening services are being held in the Sanctuary of the First Baptist Church. Outstanding speakers will bring timely messages during the series, including Dr. Raymond Calkins, Dr. Herbert Gezork, Rev. Alexander Henderson, Rev. Jack Matheson Baker, Rev. Finley Keech and Dr. Everett C. Herrick. Special appropriate music has been provided for these services.

Wednesday evening, March 6, at 7:45 o'clock, Rev. Alexander Henderson, Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Medford, will speak on "Great Accents of the Gospel." Winchester's Mystic Glee Club will provide the music with the following selections on their program "Ave Maria" by Archadelt, "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte, two spirituals "Were You There?" arranged by Burleigh and "Steal Away," David Downer, tenor soloist, will sing "Repent Ye" by Scott.

It is hoped that a large number of our townspeople will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear these prominent speakers and the fine musical programs prepared for these services. The public is cordially invited.

COUPLES' CLUB BOOKS COUPLE

The Annual Carnival and Dance of the Couples' Club on March 30 will be primarily a good dance with good music, and the number of tickets will be limited. The Committee feels that its members and their friends will enjoy an evening of dancing.

However to maintain the custom of having cabaret or floor show features, a few good acts are being booked though the club is keeping it on an amateur basis. Tentative arrangements have been made with a young Boston couple for exhibition ballroom dancing. The husband, on receiving his discharge from the armed forces went into a Broadway show in which he appeared for four months; but the young wife did not like the evenings alone, and they have come to Boston where he has accepted a business position. Before the war, they did exhibition dancing and instruction together.

Dress at the Couples' Club Dance will be optional. In past years many girls have worn long dresses, but many have not, and the men have preferred business clothes. Reservations for tables can be made when purchasing tickets at the Unitarian Church office, at the Hearthstone on Thompson street, or from any of the Committee.

Prepaid Sickness Insurance is Outlined by Fishbein as Offset to Truman Program

Organized medicine, through the Board of Trustees of the American Medical Association, announced today plans for the development of a country-wide system of voluntary sickness insurance protection to be operated on a non-profit basis by local medical groups.

Details of the program, including costs, benefits and standards, now are being worked out by a subsidiary federation known as Associated Medical Care Plans, Inc., and should be ready for release to the public within two weeks, Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the association's Journal, predicted.

While premium charges would vary in different parts of the country, the average cost to any individual policy holder enrolled under the coordinated voluntary system would be "considerably less" than the $144 annual payroll deduction suggested under President Truman's compulsory health insurance program. Dr. Fishbein said.

Standard Set for Plans

In setting up standards of acceptance for voluntary prepayment medical and hospital care plans now in operation, the Board of Trustees and A. M. A. Council on Medical Care have decreed all such plans must meet the following requirements before they may display the association's seal of approval on their policies and promotional material:

1. Have the approval of the State or county medical society in the area in which they operate.

2. The medical profession in the area must assume responsibility for the medical services included in the benefits.

3 Provide free choice of a qualified doctor of medicine and maintain the personal, confidential relationship between patient and physician.

4. Be organized and operated to provide the greatest possible benefits in medical care to the subscriber.

Benefits under any of the plans, it was stated, might be in terms of either cash indemnity or in units of medical service with a house call counting for so many units and a visit to the physician's office counting for a varying number of service points as provided by the policy.

Clearing House Proposed

The subsidiary medical-plans care group, which is engaged in coordinating the various prepayment programs now in operation, also will seek to establish a reciprocal relation among all plans to permit subscribers to transfer their memberships from one State to another through a central clearing house at A. M. A. headquarters in Chicago.

"Under this method," an announcement by the Board of Trustees said, "great industrial organizations with plants in various portions of the United States will be able to secure coverage for all of their employees. Moreover, it will be possible for the Veterans Administration, welfare and industrial groups, as well as Government agencies, to provide coverage for the people in any given area through a system of national enrollment."

Associated Medical Care Plans, Inc., made up of participating insurance groups, it was pointed out, also would undertake research and the compilation of statistics on medical care, provide consultation and information on existing plans and sponsor an educational campaign to bring the voluntary insurance program before the public.

New A. M. A. Group Set Up

To aid in carrying out unified features of the plan and extend its activities nationally, the trustees also announced establishment of a new division of Prepayment Medical Care Plans Section of its Council on Medical Service to administer the voluntary system under A. M. A. auspices.

Among association spokesmen attending the joint meeting here of the board of trustees and members of the A. M. A. Council on Medical Service were Dr. Roger I. Lee of Boston, president; Dr. Roscoe L. Sensenich of South Bend, Ind., chairman of the board of trustees, and Dr. Harrison H. Shoulders of Nashville, Tenn., A. M. A. president-elect.

At the end of this conference the trustees also issued what they termed a ten-point restatement of the association's previously announced fourteen-point health program emphasizing development of services in the fields of preventive medicine, maternal and child welfare, research, care of the veteran and the role to be assumed by voluntary health agencies.

SHALL THE GOVERNMENT CONTROL YOUR MEDICAL CARE?

The new Wagner, Murray, Dingell Bill now being proposed to the Congress would place in the hands of the Federal Government responsibility for providing Medical Care and Hospitalization for all Social Security beneficiaries and their dependents.

We don't think you will like it.

You would be forced to accept by law such medical care as could be provided by Govermentally appointed Bureaucrats.

This would be politically controlled, impersonal, inefficient, and more expensive than the plan we favor.

The plan we favor is voluntary, personal, efficient, less expensive, already in successful operation, and is endorsed by the American Medical Association.

THIS BILL MUST BE DEFEATED.

CORRECTION

The item which appeared in last week's Star about a truck leaving the Esso station in the square with a gas-hose still in its tank, thereby pulling the tank from its base and flooding the station with gas, proved not so accurate as we like to have our news.

The pump got pulled from its base all right and a truck and gas-hose entered into the accident, but, and this is important to the Station attendants, who have a reputation for carefulness to maintain, the truck wasn't being filled with gas at the station and did not leave the station with the pump in its tank.

According to reports of witnesses, the truck was cutting through the Esso station yard to beat the traffic lights, which is a common occurrance. When the driver reached Park street he decided not to turn right into the square again, but to go on up Park street.

As he backed up into the Esso yard to make the swing, the rear bumper of his truck picked up the gas-hose as it hung beside the pump and the hose caught in the bumper as the driver gave his truck the gun to go up the hill.

Those gas-pump hoses are wire reinforced and do not break. Apparently the bumper of the truck was also pretty well fastened to the machine. There wasn't much left to gave by the pump, although set in concrete, the latter went by the board.

Fortunately there was no fire, for it would have been a bad one had the gasoline that poured from the damaged pump become ignited. The trouble was quickly corrected and the station back in its usual condition in jig time.

Meanwhile we regret the inaccuracy of our original information which made out story read as if the truck was being serviced by Esso attendants. Such was not the case.

FIVE YEAR OLD ESCAPED DROWNING

Irving Hamilton, 5 year old son of Mrs. Helen Hamilton of 12 Westley street, while playing early last Saturday afternoon broke through the thin ice near the channel of the Aberjona River off Skillings Path near the Shore road field.

The child's predicament was seen by several who put in frantic telephone calls to the Police. In their excitement the informants placed the little boy on both sides of the water, adding to the confusion.

Police Chief William H. Rogers notified the Fire Department and Ladder 1 and the Chief's car made a hurried run down Skillings Path to the water.

Upon their arrival the men found a badly frightened boy who had managed to extricate himself from his icy bath and who was shivvering with the cold. He was immediately wrapped in a blanket and taken to his home in Chief Gorman's car. Later reports indicated that he took no harm from his immersion.

BAD CHIMNEY FIRE

The Fire Department had nearly a two hour fight with a bad chimney fire that developed at the home of Mr. Francis McCall at 8 Alden street Saturday evening shortly after 7:00.

Where the chimney went through the top story of the house it became so hot that some of the surrounding timbers had commenced to smoulder, and only the prompt arrival of the Fire Department provided a serious fire for a chimney fire considerable damage was done.

HEAVEN PROTECT THE WORKING GIRL

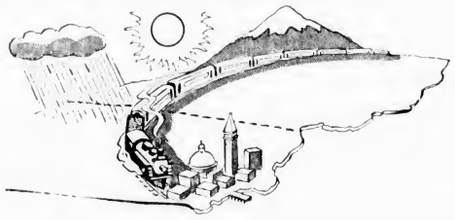

... her train was late again!

Back in the days when working gals needed protection; when only hussies smoked cigarettes and when the community called out the Salem Witch and Scarlet Letter Branding Committees if a female even poked her nose into a train smoking car, the boss got to work on time, come heck or highwater. Woe be to the female, in those depar ed days when her sex was the weaker, who wasn't on her stool or had the night draperies off her counter when the clock struck 8 in the morning. She was fired! For the bosses and the gals had no problems in common.

But these days, when boss and office girl ride in the same smoking car enroute to the daily toil, m'lady waltzes into office or store; tosses her fur coat on hook or hat tree; arches eyebrows at the office clock and assumes a surprised look because it's 13 minutes after 9 while she trills: "Sorry, boss, but the Boston and Maine was late again this morning."

RAILROAD, BOSS, and GAL SHOULD SHARE THE BLAME

At lots of suburban stations these mornings you'll find our commuters, both bosses and lesser-lights, elevating the wrist or flipping out a pocket watch, meanwhile rattling their newspapers and saying: "H-m-m-m-m, it's late this morning." There's no cheers (nor do we expect them) when the train crew brings the 8:21 in on time 5 mornings a week. There's plenty of hisses and the engineman and train crew are eyed like villains when they show up late. "What's the matter, stop to have a game of cards up the line?" "For heaven's sake, we have to get to work on time, even if you don't." "Somebody ought to get some decent officials who know how to run a railroad" — and other similar things they chant.

We know all our customers don't understand the war isn't over for us, quite yet. We're still hauling more passengers, by far, than in pre-war days and, therefore, trains must be longer. It necessarily means longer station stops to load more passengers. It takes longer to get more cars in a train rolling again after each station stop. AND, our customers are not polar bears nor Eskimos. They like their warmth and comfort — rightly so. They stay inside the stations, practically all of them, keeping nice and warm until the train rolls in — AND STOPS. Then, like the Indians, they march in single file through the door. So, it takes a minute and a half for that station stop, instead of the usual 45 seconds when passengers are out on the platform in good weather. Multiply the extra 45 seconds the train spent at your stop by the 10 other stops your train makes enroute and you are exactly 7½ minutes late into North Station. (Lots of our trains make more than 10 stops, too.)

WHAT ARE WE STOPPING FOR?

"You people can't even run on time this bright and sunny morning" an irate patron told us recently. He didn't stop to think that when it's bright and sunny in Greater Boston, very often it's snowing and blowing, or sleeting and freezing out in Greenfield or in New Hampshire, Vermont or Maine. He didn't realize that when the temperature is only 26 in Boston it often is sub-zero, freezing air brake systems and raising havoc with switches and steam hose lines, in Portland or North Conway or North Adams. "So what" you inquire.

A MOVE EVERY 30 SECONDS IN RUSH HOURS

Well, with our variable New England weather, which, "if you don't like it, wait 5 minutes and it will change," we have all sorts of difficulties every winter day over our 1764 miles of tracks in Northern New England and New York State. This often raises the merry Ned with the intricate, carefully-timed schedules which enable us to move a train every 30 seconds in on, or out of the 22 tracks in the North Station during the commuter rush in the morning and again at the close of every business day. Every move of these hundreds of trains is timed to the minute — often to seconds. Let a couple of trains get off schedule; let one or two of the long distance trains start coming in late and somebody's got to give way. Some branch-line train has to wait before it can get onto the main line. Some main-line train (or trains) must wait until another backs out of the North Station and frees a track to come in on. If any high school football team had as perfect a system of "timing" as does North Station in rush hours when things like weather and manpower are normal, that team could beat Notre Dame 60 to 0 with monotonous regularity.

I WANT TO GET HOME — I'M HUNGRY

You've fussed and diddled, packed like the proverbial sardine, in the concourse of the North Station while you've asked (and then growled) "Aren't they EVER going to get the trains backed in tonight?" You're temper has mounted — as does any hungry person's — while you've wondered if momma can keep the roast from being overdone, or the chops from burning to a frazzle before you get home. "They've had all day to get ready for this 5 o'clock rush, what's the matter with 'em?" you've asked.

The 16,000 men and women who are the Boston and Maine are glad to have you as a steady customer. We want you to keep riding with us, too, for only your patronage keeps on providing all of us with jobs we like very much. You can safely bet all the tea in China, and throw in a pair or two of nylons too, that we don't wishfully nor deliberately do anything to make you angry at us and so go to some other form of transportation. But, even as you, we're all humans — subject to all the misfortunes that happen to office workers; store clerks; hotel workers; delivery men; factory craftsmen and everybody else. Railroad workers have the same ailments as you. Take a squint some zero morning or snowy late afternoon at those railroadmen working in the yards outside the North Station, bundled up to (and above) their ears. You wouldn't (and couldn't) move at your usual speed in making up trains if you were half-frozen for 7 or 8 hours.

GOTTA HAVE HELP OR WILL BE DELAYS

How'd you like to be a yardmaster, or a train-crew dispatcher, or a superintendent, or a locomotive crew dispatcher some nice, snowy, blizzardy, lousy morning and have 58 wives call up and tell you "Sorry, Horace is ill this morning and can't come to work." More likely than not Horace is due to run the first train out of Haverhill for Boston and you've got less than an hour to find a substitute for Horace and get said substitute to Haverhill (or Reading or Rockport or Newburyport). Repeat that, with varied reasons for being absent from duty, a hundred times the same morning (and that often happens with the hundreds of men we have in train-operating and yard-operating service) and we're sure you'll understand further why we aren't always on time. And, we know you'll realize, too, that, in the railroad business, you just can't say "Well, we'll get along today wthout Horace and let it go at that." That just isn't safe. In the railroad business, we've got to find a substitute for Horace, or, if perchance we absolutely can't, train service is slowed down somewhere while one man does two men's jobs — SAFELY. Better an hour late on the track than on time in the ditch is a motto of our Operating Department.

WE'RE GETTING BETTER and WILL IMPROVE

A lot of you have kindly told us how well we're progressing towards cleaning our cars inside and out and getting away from war-time dirt and grime and back towards normaley in cleanliness. We promised you that, and we will keep that promise.

Now we are able to tell you that lots more of our more experienced employees who have been away at war are back on the trains. (You, no doubt, have noticed the increasing number of service buttons in conductors and trainmen's lapels.) We're on our way back to "on time" trains. With your valued patience and continued patronage, we'll get there — but soon.

It's Been A HARD Winter

. . . and no one knows it any better than those of us who are trying our best to provide you with good transportation.

This winter's heavy going has taken its toll of our bus fleet. At present 12% of our 804 buses are in the shops under repair. Some of these will be quickly returned to service. Others are laid up for lack of repair parts . . . which we cannot obtain because of work stoppages in manufacturers' plants. Delivery of the new buses we need so badly has been delayed for a similar reason. Frankly, we're working under difficulties even worse than we faced in wartime.

The company appreciates your patience and forbearance. We look forward to the day when new rolling stock and vital maintenance material begins to arrive . . . to help us give you more convenient and more comfortable riding.

The mansion was erected just previous to the Civil War and was a wedding present. Its cost with the landscaping about $100,000 and the trees which even now grow around it were largely imported from Europe.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

March 12, the date of the Father-Daughter dinner for Winchester Girl Scouts, will mark the 34th anniversary of the founding of the Girl Scout movement in the United States.

Besides the giving of money through the Juliette Low Fund, the Scouts have made and filled Friendship Bags, containing needles, thread, handkerchiefs, pins, pencils, buttons and other items practically unprocurable in the lands to which they are sent. The Winchester Girl Scouts have chosen Poland as the recipient of their bags, and their presentation to a native of that country will be a feature of the Father-Daughter dinner.

An exhibit showing an American girl talking to a Polish contemporary surrounded by many of her country's typical crafts will be on display in one of Filene's windows next week.

The Girl Scouts of Winchester are most grateful to both Filene's and the Children's Museum of Jamaica Plain for this timely and unusually colorful scene, and will have an even keener sense of intimacy with the girls who will receive their offerings.

Though Brownies on account of their age, are not included at the banquet, they, too, are busy with Friendship Bags and plan to send them to Holland.

On Feb. 13 Mrs. Cheever and Mrs. James Cullen came to our troop and taught folk dancing. They taught two folk dances, Mrs. Forbes Norris, our leader, made some announcements.

The girls that are taking the Bird Badge met at the Library last Thursday at 3:00. The girls in the Child Care Badge were to meet at Mrs. Dillingham's home Wednesday except it was cancelled because of the storm.

Monday there was a skating party at the Country Club from 1:00 to 4:00. After the folk dancing we sat down and had our valentine box and cookies and cocoa. It was a very nice party.

On Friday, Feb. 15, Troop 4 had an entertainment for the mothers. This was to pass one of the requirements for the Hostess Badge. The troop was divided up into four groups; the hostess, entertainment, decoration, and refreshment groups.

Each group had about four girls in it. The hostesses greeted the mothers and there was a piano selection by Susan Melanson for the opening. There was a contest in which each mother and her daughter would make a funny valentine out of a scrapbook. The prize was won by Mrs. Graves and Dorothy Elliott.

For refreshments there was punch and cookies. We wish to thank Miss Lowry who let us use the building even though there was no school. Also Troop 4 had a meeting on Feb. 22 which was during vacation. On this day the girls planned, bought, and prepared food for a luncheon which was also to pass a requirement for the Hostess Badge.

The girls met at the home of Mrs. Nelson and 7 at the home of Mrs. Padelford. After the luncheon the girls went to Winter Pond where Mr. Sherman Russell came to teach us about some of the steps of figure skating.

There was music to skate by and all we had a very nice time.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

Last Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 26 the Guild held a most enjoyable dessert bridge party in Lyceum Hall. A delicious dessert was served at 1:30 p. m. after which they had a guest speaker the Rev. Fr. J. McNamara of Boston. He gave a most interesting talk on his work amongst delinquent boys of all creeds. The new home is located in the Fenway, Boston, and at the present time there are 20 boys in his care. A tea will be held at the Copley Plaza Hotel on March 10 in aid of this worthy work. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend. At the conclusion of the talk bridge and contract was enjoyed. Many fine prizes were awarded winners of the high scores. Winners of the special awards were: Mrs. Hattie Carey, Nylon hose; Mrs. K. Bliss, Pillows; Mrs. Jane Robinson, Chicken Dinner.

Mrs. Milton Sinclair was the highest bidder on the box of Nylon hose and perfume. Mrs. Milton Sinclair was general chairman of the party, Mrs. Elmer Chisholm, assistant chairman, and they were assisted by the president, Mrs. Michael Hintlian. They are to be congratulated for their most successful party.

The next important event sponsored by the Guild members will be held on Friday evening, March 15 at Lyceum Hall at 8:15 p. m. It will be a "Trip to Ireland." Rev. Fr. Walter Flaherty will show moving pictures of Ireland and there will be entertainment and refreshments will be served.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Winchester Massachusetts Society Prevention of Cruelty to Animals

Show-horse fanciers throughout the Commonwealth are once again receiving premium to emphasize the law which now prohibits the showing or exhibiting of horses whose tails have been set or docked. These bills have been introduced - Senate No. 2, Senate No. 142 and House No. 409. All have the same goal - namely, the nullification of that part of the law which prohibits the exhibition of horses with set tails. The present law, which our Society was largely responsible for placing on the statute books, seek to discourage a practice which involves physical suffering caused by the cutting of the tendons of the horse's tail, and is solely one of fashion.

Will you, Reader, contact your Senator and Representative and voice your opposition to Bills House No. 409, and Senate No. and No. 142, and thus prevent a great deal of unnecessary suffering to horses in this Commonwealth?

Erwin Canham

EDITOR OF C. S. MONITOR TO SPEAK

Mr. Erwin Canham, editor-in-chief of the Christian Science Monitor, will speak under the auspices of the Wednesday Night Club of the First Congregational Church next Thursday evening, March 14 at 8 o'clock. His subject will be "Unfinished Business."

Mr. Canham is widely regarded as one of America's most capable newsmen. He joined the Monitor staff as a cub reporter in 1925, on graduation from Bates College. This early apprenticeship was followed by three years at Oxford as a Rhodes scholar. For several years he was foreign correspondent for the Monitor at Geneva. Service in Europe was followed by a term as chief of the Monitor's Washington bureau, from 1932 to 1939. In 1939 he was called to Boston to assume the then top editorial post of managing editor. Since January 1945 his title has been that of editor-in-chief. He merits consideration as one of this country's outstanding thinkers on post-war problems.

Because of the importance of Mr. Canham's address this meeting has been opened to the public. A most worthwhile evening is in store for all those who avail themselves of the opportunity to attend.

Winchester Chapter American Red Cross

Office, Third Floor, Town Hall
WIN. 2300-2191-1022-2516
2518

Our town has always gone over the top in every drive to raise money for a good cause. Its people respond, and the pride which they feel for their town comes to the fore. That is why Winchester has set aside only one day for its Red Cross Drive —Sunday, March 10 — because in that one day, its townspeople can subscribe the money for its quota. They have done it before, and they will do it this year.

There will be excitement in the town Sunday. Volunteer solicitors from each neighborhood will be out all day, call upon other neighbors, fill out the Red Cross Fund kits, and make their reports. From early morning until late at night, these workers will be busy, doing their part to put the drive over here in Winchester.

Each resident can help as his or her share by being at home on Sunday, welcoming the volunteer, making the work of filling out the cards and pledges as easy as possible.

It is a day when every resident is part of a great and splendid movement—the work of keeping the Red Cross going forward with its humanitarian tasks in 1946. There is no other organization that belongs more personally to the men and women of Winchester than their Red Cross. And Sunday is a day to prove it.

NAVY CROSS TO CRAIG

Winchester Officer Honored for Mine Counter Measures

By the award of the Navy Cross, said Citation to Capt. Edward C. Craig, USN, of 7 Grassmere avenue, the Navy today gave recognition to this local man for his work in the design and installation of magnetic mine countermeasures which, it is said in the citation, "was largely responsible for the preparedness of the United States to meet the menace of the magnetic mine upon our entry into the war."

Capt. Craig, whose wife, Helen, also resides here, served as head of the Equipment Design and later as head of Mine-sweeping and Minecraft Sections, Bureau of Ships, from September 1940 to December 1942.

When Capt. Craig entered this activity and personally organized it he found it a novel field of warfare about which little information could be gathered. His tasks called not only for him to meet the menace of the magnetic mine but also to effect counter-measures against new enemy mines as they appeared during the course of the war.

The award reads, in part, "his technical skill, leadership and devotion to duty in the face of tremendous difficulties were contributing factors in the successful prosecution of the war."

RED CROSS DRIVE SUNDAY

Sunday, March 10, is Red Cross Fund campaign day in Winchester, Raymond Strawbridge, chairman, announced today, and on that day volunteer solicitors will call upon residents of the town in a vast united effort to raise in a single day, the quota for the local Red Cross needs in 1946.

During the drive, solicitors have called upon the business houses of the town, and early returns indicate that these firms and stores have responded whole-heartedly to the appeal this year. Advance gifts from the local fund are also giving the drive here a good start. But Mr. Strawbridge points out that "the local drive can go over the top only if each one helps, if each home in Winchester gives. The important thing this year is that everyone give something — that each man and woman here back up the Red Cross in this tangible way.

"Not many of us can go into the veterans' hospitals and bring cheer and comforts to those boys. But we can do it through our Red Cross and in a personal way.

Very few of us can be present when fire and disaster hits our neighbors. But we can help the neighbors through the immediate presence of our Red Cross. And few of us can be present to listen to the problems of the returning veterans—but our Red Cross workers do that for us. Everyday, people are helped by us, through our Red Cross. There is no other organization that speaks for us so warmly, that carries on our good deeds for us." Mr. Strawbridge added the hope that "On Sunday, people would be at home to welcome the solicitors, and to make their donations and pledges so that Winchester would go over its quota this year."

ROTARY NOTES

Another full meeting, with several visiting Rotarians and guests in attendance, enjoyed a vivid and amusing story of "Army Life in the South Pacific" as told by Rev. Fr. Edmond Sliney, the newly appointed pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church, Winchester. His 27 years of life in the Army as a Chaplain, with the rank of Colonel, admirably qualified him to portray in words his experiences during two world wars. His remarks were highlighted by his description of General MacArthur, with whom he was intimately associated many times during the war. Father Sliney also paid high tribute to the missionaries of all faiths for the remarkable work they have done to promote the ideals of Christianity in the far away and lonely atolls of the Pacific.

Sanford Moses had the good fortune to pick the right number in the Victory Bond drawing, this being the second time he has been a winner.

District Governor, Fred Smith, of Malden was an interested visitor at today's meeting and although he was urged to make a few remarks, he was content to be a listening visitor.

All members are reminded of the 196th District Conference which will be held at the Hotel Statler, Boston, on April 17. Additional information will be announced about this conference in the immediate future.

MOTOR FILLED MARKET WITH SMOKE

Patrolman Clarence E. Dunbury of the Police Department, while on duty in the center Wednesday night at 10:14 discovered the rear of the Economy Market at the corner of Main and Thompson streets full of smoke.

The Fire Department was summoned and found the trouble to be caused by a faulty motor in the refrigeration system. The motor was burned out and quite a little smudge caused. Benjamin Brennan, the manager, was called from his home in Malden and with the assistance of the firemen blew out the store with fans to get rid of the smoke.

Mrs. Carl E. Burton of Baltimore, the former Isabel MacKenzie, has been in Winchester for a week visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander W. MacKenzie of Washington street. Her father, a veteran member of the Fire Department who has been seriously ill, is reported as much improved, having returned to his home from the Winchester Hospital.

MYSTIC GLEE CLUB FURNISHES LENTEN MUSIC

At First Baptist Church

Fittingly marking the opening of the series of Lenten services at the First Baptist Church, Winchester's own Mystic Glee Club rendered a fine program of sacred music Wednesday night.

Directed by the club's wartime director, Donald Leslie Marshall, who is minister of music at the church, the club sang two groups of numbers. The first consisted of Arcadelt's beautiful interpretation of "Ave Maria", which contrasted well with the simple, homely spirituality of Burleigh's "Were You There."

Then came the sermonic lesson, followed by a fine tenor solo by David R. Downer, who sang Liddle's "Come Ye Blessed," particularly appropriate to the spirit of Lent.

The second group opened with an excellent rendition of the appealing negro spiritual "Steal Away" with a chime accompaniment played by Mr. Marshall. And it was followed by the deeply moving sacred version of "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte. The entire program was another illustration of the versatility of Winchester's unique Men's Chorus, and demonstrated its capacity to excel also in spiritual, the expression of genuine religious fervor.

The sermon on "Great Accents of the Gospel" was preached by the able minister of the First Baptist Church of Medford, Rev. Alexander Henderson.

BOURINOT—DURAN

Miss Margaret Duran of 778 Main street, daughter of Mr. John Duran, became the bride of John Francis Bourinot, also of Winchester and son of Dr. and Mrs. Louis Bourinot, at a ceremony performed Saturday evening, March 2 at St. Mary's Church. Arnold Callahan, lyric tenor, sang the Ave Maria.

Miss Duran was given in marriage by her cousin, Michael J. Duran of Winchester, and attended by her cousin, Miss Mabel Foley of this town.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with a matching fingertip-length veil and carried a white missal with an orchid. The honor maid wore a dress of lime crepe with matching headdress and carried a bouquet of violets.

Edward J. Murphy of Winchester, brother-in-law of the bride was the best man. The bride's cousins, Jerome Duran and George Foley of Winchester, the bride's cousin. Two more cousins, Rennie Goodrow and James Young, served as altar-boys at the service.

PULLED DOG FROM POND

Wednesday afternoon at 12:15 Police Chief William H. Rogers notified Fire Headquarters that a dog had broken through the ice at Wedge Pond near Pike's Garage and was unable to get out of the water. Meanwhile several more telephone calls from witnesses of the day's plight were received by the firemen.

Lt. John J. O'Melia and Fireman Robert Haggerty went to the pond with the truck and found the dog about 25 feet from the south shore of the pond at the rear of Pike's Gar. With the town's life-saving ladder and a 20 footer from their truck the firemen were able to reach him and Fireman Haggerty pulled him from the water.

The dog was a springer spaniel, a rather short but heavy animal, owned by John R. Hammond of 7 Glengarry. He was taken shivering to Headquarters where his identity was checked and then taken to his home.

TRIBUTE TO DR. ROBINSON

Amherst Graduates Quarterly Cites Old Winchester Boy

Winchester Amherst men and women are a number in town deeply interested in "The Amherst Illustrated," Dr. Edson Bradford Robinson," an article by Russell L. Davenport, '12, appearing in the January issue of the Amherst Graduates Quarterly.

The article is both a biographical sketch and tribute to the work which Dr. Robinson, a native and old Winchester boy, has done during the 41 years of his pastorate at Grace Congregational Church, Holyoke. Incidentally these 41 years give to Dr. Robinson, a graduate of Amherst and Yale Divinity School, the longest Congregational pastorate of any present city clergyman in Massachusetts.

In 1902 when Dr. Robinson went to Holyoke Grace Church was sponsored by the Second Congregational Church of that city. He was called to take the pastorate of Grace Church which was located in the industrial section and had a membership of 100.

An inclination of the zeal and effectiveness of his ministry may be obtained from the fact that the church now has over 1,000 members, has a separate building since 1937 and owns a church playground property and other real estate that constitute a splendid plant in which to operate.

In 1910 Dr. Robinson instituted at Grace Church an interesting social program, in which Amherst students come to Holyoke during their summer terms to engage in the social and religious work of the church. Fifty-five Amherst students have spent 67 terms in such work, with nine students from other colleges adding a total of 11 terms.

In 1942, upon the occasion of Dr. Robinson's 40th anniversary at Grace Church, the Holyoke Daily Transcript and Telegram ran an edition containing several pages of tributes paid him by men of varied occupations in and outside the city. It is said of him that no man in his community enjoys a higher degree of respect and admiration from all classes of people, rich and poor, Catholics, Protestants and Jews.

In 1927 Amherst conferred upon its distinguished son the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity, President George D. Olds, in conferring the degree, referred to Dr. Robinson's career as "a striking example of the church militant, an object lesson on the text, 'The word of God is the sword of the Spirit'; and to him as a prophet as well as priest; ministering bountifully to the moral and spiritual needs of men, women and children who too often look up and are not fed. . . ."

MR. GRINDLE AND TEACHERS CONSIDER CURRICULUM

In keeping with the present trend of modernizing high school curricula, Principal Wade L. Grindle and the high school teachers are revamping the program of studies at Winchester High School with particular emphasis on General Education. General education, according to their use of the expression stems from the Harvard report entitled "General Education in a Free Society." General education is the term used "to indicate that part of a student's whole education which looks forward all to his life as a responsible human being and citizen."

To reach the goal of general education, Winchester High School must offer a curriculum which represents all the forms of common knowledge and the common values on which a free society depends.

Specifically, all graduates of Winchester High School should have had many educational experiences in common; thus there is the likelihood that the number of elective subjects on any pupil's program will be considerably reduced in order that he may have more in common with every other graduate of the same school and with people generally.

Tetreault immediately threw himself upon the wounded man to protect him from further injury. He did not move until the enemy mortar had been eliminated.

In a subsequent action, Tetreault was wounded and captured. At that time he again distinguished himself with seeming disregard for his own personal safety.

In National Church life Dr. Maurer has held many important posts, among them membership on the Executive Committee of the American Missionary Association and as recording secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions. He has been active in the work of Talladega College, being on its board of trustees and also on the committee on War Victims and Services.

HIGH SCHOOL AGE STAMP CLUB JOINS HOBBY CENTER

The Winchester Hobby Center, which has hitherto accommodated only 6-12 year olds, took in its first older age club group last Monday evening. The new Stamp Club led by Peter Meara, President; Klaus Hahn, Vice-President; and Priscilla Blake, Secretary. Meetings are planned bi-weekly and are to be held in the Conference Room of the Public Library. A planning board is working on a series of interesting programs.

Meanwhile, the Saturday morning groups for 6-12 year olds are increasing rapidly in popularity. Last Saturday, following the special craft classes at the Hobby Center, 46 children gathered to hear Marshall Pihl, age 13, speak on Newspaper Publishing as a Hobby. Marshall brought down his own mimeographing machine, stencils, and other apparatus to demonstrate his hobby. In his engaging talk, he told of his work as editor, publisher, printer and reporter of neighborhood news and handed out samples of his printing. In addition, Marshall showed his versatility by putting on a very good Magic Show.

"NEW FOUR-YEAR PLAN INAUGURATED FOR VAUDEVILLE STAGE CREW"

The stage manager of this year's Vaudeville Show has announced a new four-year plan which will merge the Vaudeville Show of having an experienced stage manager each year. This plan calls for each of the four classes to be represented on the stage crew with each class representative being in charge of a particular job. For example, as a freshman a '49 has charge of the curtains as a Sophomore he will be the "follow spot" in the Projection Booth; in his Junior year he will have charge of the master lighting board on the stage; and so by his Senior year he will be ready to take complete charge of the stage.

The crew this year is headed by Mark Strawbridge '46 with Barbara Sipp '46 taking charge of the details in procuring the properties, Donald Goss '47 at the master lighting board, Todd Wyman '48 on the "follow spot", Robert Elliott '49 taking charge of the curtain, and Klaus Halm '47 is filling in wherever a hand is needed.

For the past week and a half the stage crew has been constructing scenery for this year's show. This scenery was constructed in the Junior High School shops through the courtesy and co-operation of Mr. Leary and Mr. Brainley. After the scenery was constructed and ready to be taken to the High School stage, the crew almost found themselves in the position of the man who built a boat in his cellar and had to knock down the walls to get it out. However, they put to good use the lessons learned in their math classes and measured all the doors from the Junior High School shops to the High School stage. Luckily, the doors were found to be just big enough to get the scenery through. The character of this year's show made it necessary to construct the scenery on a large scale to speed up the changing of scenes.

MR. NORRIS ADDRESSES MEN'S CLUB

Mr. Forbes Norris, superintendent of the Winchester schools, was the speaker at a meeting of the Men's Club of the First Congregational Church held on Thursday evening, Feb. 28, in the parish hall.

In speaking on the subject, "The Problems of a Superintendent," Mr. Norris outlined the various phases of his work, emphasizing the importance of mutual cooperation and understanding between the superintendent and the school committee, between the superintendent and the parents, and between the teachers and parents. He also stressed the problem of filling vacancies in the teaching staff with superior teachers, and the significance of an adequate salary schedule as a factor in attracting the right teachers to Winchester.

To this group, including both laymen and those familiar with educational procedures, Mr. Norris' address was both enlightening and inspiring.

CORRECTION

SPEAKER FROM THE ARCTIC CIRCLE

Will Address Epiphany Y. P. F.

Sunday morning, March 10, at 9:30, the Epiphany Young People's Fellowship will have as guest speaker Dr. Marian L. Bingham. Dr. Bingham will add another chapter to the story which the Fellowship has this year been hearing from men and women who know the story of the Episcopal Church on every one of the earth's where the "going's best" to take it easy, where natural enemies couldn't halt a gentlemen's club. Dr. Bridgman has seen the church at work on the northern rim of our continent.

She has recently come from Fort Yukon, Alaska, where she was physician at Hudson Stuck Memorial Hospital, a hospital located on the Arctic Circle, the only hospital in a 1000-mile area. Incidentally, it is named for a stalwart and adventurous missionary, Archdeacon Stuck, who was the first man to climb Mt. McKinley, Mt. Denali it was then called. He was a fit fellow-worker for the first Bishop of Alaska, Bishop Peter Trimble Rowe, who built himself the boat with which he made his first exploration of his territory up a rapids-roughened northbound river, and who in winter made his diocesan visits by snowshoes and dog-sled over the mountain passes, keeping the church with the gold-seekers of 50 years ago. It seemed not unfitting that the United States Navy named one of its ships for this hardy bishop.

Dr. Bridgman will tell what it is like to practice her profession up where patients may be brought from more than 100 miles away in the long dark.

SYMMES CORNER BOYS ON LSMS

It is a curious fact that two Symmes Corner neighbors, Lt. (j. g.) George S. Hobb, Jr., U. S. N. R., and Lt. (j. g.) W. Blanchard Lyon, U. S. N. R., are both serving on LSM's (Landing Ship Medium). Lt. (j. g.) Hobb, who served 15 months in the European Theatre as skipper of an LCT, recently was appointed commanding officer of U. S. S. LSM 134. He picked up his new command in Pearl Harbor in November and brought the ship through the Panama Canal to New Orleans, where it is undergoing decommissioning. Lt. (j. g.) Lyon, who had previously served 10 months in the Pacific as navigator aboard an LST, was assigned to the U. S. S. LSM 239 in November, and has recently been named executive officer of that ship, which is on of the very few ships that has been selected to remain in the Marianas area indefinitely. Neither officer expects to be released from active duty before June.

BRYNE RAISED BIG COAL BARGE

George M. Bryne of Copley street, former Selectman and well known marine contractor, has just finished the long, hard and costly job of raising a 228 ft coal barge, loaded with coal, from the bottom of Buzzard's Bay where it constituted a menace to navigation.

The barge was rammed and sunk by a Naval craft over a year ago, and then another ship ripped through the top of the submerged craft near the bow, making a second large hole. The barge lay in 36 feet of water and settled another seven feet in the mud, and it was this latter fact that made raising her so hard.

After lightening the ship of most of the coal, a diver shored up the damaged side, and air tanks were inserted to get rid of the water. The boat was finally raised and towed as far as possible toward Wareham.

Mr. Bryne has had many hard jobs in his long experience with Marine contracting. This was one which looked easy, but turned out to be, in Mr. Bryne's own words, "a headache."

PROSPEROUS WITH THE NEW DEAL

To the Editor of the Star:

Turkeys and some politicians are growing fat on the New Deal feed. The price of both is out of reach of the average citizen.

Let's start raising a new crop in the old-fashioned way.

Ed Sanderson

POLITICAL MEDICINE FOR AMERICA

On Nov. 19, 1945, President Truman sent a special message to the Congress asking for the enactment of legislation to provide medical care for practically every man, woman and child in the United States through a Federal Government agency.

On the same date Senators Wagner and Murray and Congressman Dingell introduced in the Congress bills (S 1606-HR 4730) to implement the requests of the President's message.

President Truman stated, "What I am recommending is not socialized medicine." Actually what is proposed is "Political Medicine." The proposals are more comprehensive and more far-reaching than any government medical care program ever attempted in any country with the possible exception of Russia.

The Wagner-Murray-Dingell proposals would establish a Political Appointee, the Federal Security Administrator as dictator in all matters relating to health. Working under him the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service would be authorized and instructed to:

(1) Hire doctors, specialists, dentists, nurses, laboratory technicians and establish rates of pay.

(2) Establish fee schedules for physicians' and dentists' services.

(3) Fix the qualifications for specialists.

(4) Determine the number of individuals for whom any doctor or dentist may provide service.

(5) Determine what hospitals or clinics may provide service for patients and under what conditions.

(6) Provide for all wage earners and their dependents and for all self-employed persons and their dependents—doctor, dentist, home nursing and laboratory care and hospitalization.

It is estimated that the cost would be more than four billion dollars annually. One man—The Surgeon General—would direct the spending of this gigantic sum.

Based on experience in other countries, it would take at least 300,000 lay bureaucrats to administer this system of politically distributed medical care. If you needed a doctor you might have to apply to a Bureau.

Under the American System, American Medicine — American Doctors—have developed the most effective and most widely distributed medical care that has ever been provided for any comparable number of people anywhere at any time. The Medical care provided our armed forces conclusively demonstrated how much better it really is than any other system.

Doctors know that an easier method must be provided for paying costs of unusual or prolonged illness. That is why so many prepayment plans and insurance programs are being developed. Given reasonable time for expansion these plans and programs will bring adequate relief.

Political distribution of Medical Care would destroy our system of private medical practice. Do we want to destroy it? Rarely is cutting off the patient's head recommended as a treatment for a boil on the nose.

Two Things to Remember

1. Political distribution of medical care would entail making a public record of the characteristics and the most intimate and sacred personal relationships of each and every patient. The privacy of every human being would be invaded and violated. It can be imagined how the information might be used by the curious and the unscrupulous.

2. The effectiveness of medical care is wholly dependent upon the skill of the physician. The American doctor is a human being—a personality. He must be free to act as an individual. He should not be robbed of his freedom of action and decision. Bureaucratic direction would destroy the factor that is the secret of his effectiveness.

President Truman has endorsed a system to provide political distribution of medical care in the United States. However, the Congress will have to pass the laws that would introduce this alien and totalitarian system into this country.

Write a letter to your Congressman and your Senators. Be definite and direct — tell them what you think. Do it now—TODAY — before it is too late.

A NEW HIGH SCHOOL?

To the Editor of the Star:

The letter from the School Committee which you published last week recommending the purchase of the Ginn Estate for a new High School was interesting. However, to a common ordinary garden variety type of citizen the perusal of it raised a few questions.

1. It seems that a mid-westerner by the name of Fowlkes came into a well run New England town, looked over a fairly recently remodeled high school building and pronounced it inadequate and antiquated, suggesting its abandonment. The gentleman recommended building a 6 year combined Junior and Senior High School on the site of the present Junior High School. Then the School Committee went a step further and suggested the abandonment of the present High School facilities and the building of a new High School on the Ginn Estate. The Committee gave 9 reasons for doing and that is what furnishes the urge to ask some questions.

2. Reasons and questions follow.

3. Item: Inadequate room for an Industrial Arts Program.

This kind of program is extensive. How many students would take advantage of such a program? What would be the per capita cost? Wouldn't it be cheaper for the town to pay tuition and send the students to any one of several institutions in Greater Boston which have excellent programs of this type?

2. There is lack of facilities for proper science instruction.

That probably means that the physics and chemistry laboratories are old fashioned. Why can't they be remodelled and brought up to date?

3. There is lack of room for future increase of the student body.

This implies that there is room enough now. Some one has said that the limit of Winchester's population is 20,000. It is now 15,000. If an addition is built to the Junior High School to take over the largest grade, the 9th, now the Freshman year, of the Senior High School, would not the secondary school facilities be large enough for some time? Isn't it possible also at a later date when building costs are down to build an addition to the present High School?

4. There is lack of proper library facilities.

Most of those who have gone to college realize that the devotees of the library are the graduate students. The undergraduates are not ardent fans of the library nor are high school students. In fact many teachers customarily give special assignments for the library. What is the average number of students who would use it per day? To what extent does the Public Library duplicate the High School Library? Which the new addition to the Public Library just across the street is built could not the needs, if any, of the High School Library be discovered?

5. There is inadequate cafeteria space.

There certainly is no need to have a seat for every student. Through staggering the school periods cannot half the school be sent to lunch at one time. Perhaps the principal can do better than that.

6. There is lack of adequate space for a complete athletic program.

An adequate program would call for some form of physical education for every student. That would be ideal and very expensive. What is the matter with the present gymnasium and various athletic fields of the town? Are they being used to the fullest extent already?

7. The physical interior of the school is undesirable, i. e., lighting, floors and fixtures.

That probably means that obsolescence has set in and there is need of some remodeling. The same is true of our homes, radios, cars, etc., but we still live rather comfortably in the home, the radio gives us all the programs we want and the car furnishes us satisfactory transportation. Why try to keep up with the Joneses especially if you can't afford it?

8. The location is bad from the stand point of noise and traffic. The school is surrounded by three main arteries.

That means that the students are bothered by the noise. If they are interested enough in what they are doing they would become engrossed through what the psychologists call "passive attention." They would not know what was going on outside. When they go to work in a busy business office won't they have to learn to concentrate? Why not now? Both Harvard and Yale are in the midst of the trucks, taxi cabs and street cars and the Ginn estate is next to the railroad track isn't it?

9. There is inadequate play space and the necessity of crossing the main arteries is dangerous.

That probably means the need of more playgrounds and the danger of accidents when crossing highways. How much time does a secondary school program need for play? Why not let them use the numerous playgrounds situated throughout the town after school hours? As for the danger in crossing streets, isn't the traveling to and from school frought with much more danger than merely crossing the street to the athletic field? What about traffic officers?

The average citizen usually thinks of federal and town government as something apart from himself. He doesn't realize that he is the government and when the government spends money it is spending his money. Therefor the town government should be as economically managed as a private business or the family budget.

This year Winchester's taxes increase about $400 to about $30.00 per thousand. We are in debt as a nation close to the staggering sum of 300 billion dollars. The dollar has a low purchasing power. Prices are high, especially real estate prices. Yet the School Committee proposes increased expenditure and the scrapping of valuable property.

This same committee whose chief problem now is not the secondary school but the elementary school, recently raised the Highland School. To be sure it wasn't a beautiful structure but with the elementary grades about to be swollen as a result of the war's increased birth rate and with the greatly increased cost of building, why did the committee tear down this school and thus put the town in an increasingly poor strategic position for school housing?

To be sure the new high school on the Ginn Estate would be desirable. It is a long distance for students living on the outskirts of precincts No. 1 and No. 6). The architecture probably would be pleasing to the eye and there would be broad expanses for the town to keep up. However, after all it is what goes on inside the school that is important. Good teachers are beyond price. The better they are the less they need physical props to bolster their teaching.

The Ginn Estate is a valuable piece of property, probably priced at present inflationary levels. It affords revenue through taxes to the town. If the trustees who control it developed it under the present excellent zoning laws, it would be very beneficial to them and to the town a lucrative source of tax revenue.

If the town buys it there will be no revenue. Are there ways of changing the laws so that philanthropic or private educational institutions cannot remove it from the tax list? Let's find out.

Can the town afford the scrapping of the High School especially after the costly acquisition of the property surrounding it?

By 1950 Winchester will be practically free from debt and become a "pay as you go" community. Let us keep it that way.

Sincerely yours,
Clinten E. Farnham

GINN SITE TOO FAR FOR MOST PUPILS

To the editor of the Star:

You would not take a group consisting of a workman, a doctor, a salesman, a housewife and a lawyer and say to them, "We want a new textile mill in this town. Find a site." Nor can an architect, give us the last word in an efficient plant and run it."

But that is what most towns expect a school committee to do when a new school building program gets under way. Funds are limited funds and too many poorly planned schools. This is the conclusion of the writer after 20 years close contact with the problems involved.

Even if a town is lucky enough to hire a firm of architects who have put up many schools, still many mistakes are made. It is seldom that either architect or members of the building committee have ever worked in a school.

To show the kind of mistakes usually made we will here are four cases, all in one building and less than ten miles from Winchester. This school was fireproof contruction and designed for an enrollment of 500 pupils. Funds were generous and the good. The architects had designed over 200 schools prior to this one! Here are only four samples:

(1) Too smooth plaster on the class room walls made poor acoustics. The teachers had to stand in just the right spot when using chalk to the class or the pupils could not hear correctly. The music room, at once, had to have a new ceiling of acoustic tile. Later, the cement fire-proof floors of the entire building were surfaced with sound-deadening tile.

(2) The heavy fire-doors to close off the stair wells at each floor had to be re-hinged and now stay wedged open all the time. The architect had them swing both ways, same as a pantry door and a pupil got knocked-out "cold" soon after the school went into operation. The architect and the committee did not know school practice. When you have scores of pupils moving thru a building at the end of each class or session, you must have traffic rules. The common way is to have all files keep to the right.

(3) The blower for ventilating the Assembly Hall is located right under where a speaker stands. The fan makes so much noise that it has to be shut down with the result that the Hall gets over heated and the pupils get restless or sleepy in "assemblies".

(4) All class rooms on the top floor are like ovens on hot days as there is no insulation between the ceiling and the flat tar roof. The building was hardly eight years old when the low-slanting roofs over the Gym and the Auditorium had to be re-surfaced.

These bills were paid out of taxes just as surely as the original appropriation but went unchallenged.

So you tax payers and you rent payers too, want to go at this question of an entire new site and new High School Plant with your eyes wide open. Remember also that good schools are more dependent on good teaching than they are on the latest gadgets and impressive buildings. Your staff must be happy to be efficient This is more true of teaching than most other lines of work.

How can we avoid mistakes similar to those we have been discussing? For one thing, there are several Consultants on school buildings, who have saved other towns thousands of dollars by their expert guidance. This can be easily checked up by asking the towns so served. These men have made a life-long study of all the factors involved. They are not connected with any firm of architects or contractors so their judgements are unbiased.

But how about the statement in the Star for March 1st with the caption "School Committee Explains Need of New High School Building." Nine needs are alleged:

(1) "Inadequate room for industrial arts program." If this means sewing, cooking, drawing and shops; these activities could be given an ideal set-up in a new range of rooms back of the parapet of the present High School. These subjects call for even more daylight than other courses. This "Pent-House for the arts and sciences", should be modern light-weight fire proof construction of which there are many systems to choose from. Such a plan assumes a thorough modernizing of all the lower floors of our present building; stairs, partitions, plumbing, conditioning, lighting and so on. The High School building is sound and not bad looking. The site is splendid.

(2) "Lack of facilities for proper science instruction." By all means we need the best in this field too, and location of laboratories above the other class rooms is ideal from the standpoint of light and ventilation.

(3) "Lack of room for future increase." By moving the arts and sciences to a new top floor, extra class rooms would be available on the lower floors. One of the most valuable services given by the Consultants mentioned above, would be a report on school population trends in a given area. This removes the guess work and makes possible long-range planning. This probable increase, a new curriculum and change to a real 8—3—3 school program (means 8 primary grades, 3 junior and 3 senior high school years) must be decided on before any intelligent building plans can be started.

(4) "Lack of proper Library facilities." Better teach pupils to use regular adult library where they can get expert guidance in how to use books. That is what we all have to do through the rest of life!

(5) "Inadequate cafeteria." It must be decided what kind of lunch is to be served and to how many. A basement location is possible for this feature. Long hours are not spent there.

(6) "Athletic facilities". Take care of this through well-planned stadium or locker building at the fields.

(7) "Out-dated interior finish and fixtures of present building." Quite true. But modernizing in a most thorough manner will cost the town far less than an entire new plant. It seems criminally wasteful to junk the new auditorium and gym. How much did they cost?

(8) "Bad location." This can be seriously challenged. The present High School is well above and set back from heavy traffic. How much noise does reach the class rooms? The Ginn site has the nearly constant thunder of passing trains plus the heavy traffic on Bacon street. What is gained? It has been stated that the Ginn Estate is nearly the exact geographical center of town. Get out your map and check this. Measure the distance from the Forest street section for example. But the very premise is in error. We are not interested in the geographical center but in the pupil population center.

(9) "Inadequate play space." A senior High School does not require play space for its 'teen-age pupils in the same sense as a primary grade school does. Crossing Main street can be taken care of by a pedestrian subway but this seems a doubtful issue.

From the above data it would seem that the School Committee must bring forward much more compelling arguments before the taxpayers should be asked to scrap one investment and make another one. This is the worst time that could have been selected as all costs are sky high. All town spending should be cut to the bone for at least two years more if we are to stay true to our Yankee heritage of thrift.

WINCHESTER ART ASSOCIATION

One of the most interesting and informative speakers of the season was heard by the Winchester Art Association members Tuesday evening. Miss Helen Cleaves, Director of Art in the Boston Public Schools, proved herself a person who speaks easily, holding the attention of her listeners from the first word until the last. She talked about her own philosophy of life as well as her philosophy of art.

Her intrinsic fascination in the activities of her daily life, together with her curiosity and appreciation for the wonders of the modern world was apparent before many ideas were presented. Miss Cleaves' desire seemed to be to teach children to draw, not for the sake of drawing, but for the personal satisfaction they will receive from it and in order to draw they must learn to observe more intently. Through keen observation the observer soon learns to notice and appreciate the details of nature and all things around him, and every phase of life becomes more fundamentally interesting.

She encourages young people to try to do things regardless of the result; to formulate their own ideas, express their personal judgment, maintain respect for their own ability and thereby establish their individuality.

She spoke briefly about the present exhibit of water colors by Winchester's Forrest Orr, mentioning the masterful way in which he chooses the significant motion or object to give his pictures reality while still retaining simplicity.

The meeting was conducted by the vice president, Mrs. Fred Abbott due to the illness of Mr. G. Russell Mann. At the close of the gallery talk the members and guests were served mints by the hospitality committee.

Mr. Orr's exhibition will be in the Library Gallery through the month of March. A small but very fine collection of ceramics is also on view including articles by Mrs. Margaret Bailey, Mrs. Rowena Hallowell, Mrs. Carol Nickerson and Mrs. Edith Turner.

E. R. GRANT GIVES ELKS' SERVICE RECORD

Michael F. Grant, exalted ruler of Winchester Lodge, 1445, B. P. O. E., this week made public some interesting facts and figures covering the service work of the Elks since the founding of the order 78 years ago Feb. 16. From a handful of New York actors who instituted the order in 1868 the Elks have grown to a membership of 750,000.

The Elks' War Commission and the 1422 subordinate Elks lodges throughout the country have worked hard and spent more than $8,500,000 to perform 14 definite and vital jobs for our armed forces during World War II. Since the founding of the order the Elks have contributed more than $70,000,000 to the public welfare.

The order's intensified program of rehabilitation, which will be continued indefinitely, is bringing cheer and comfort to sick and wounded veterans in more than 300 hospitals in 42 states. Elks everywhere are engaged in a country-wide campaign to help returning veterans in the present housing crisis. A million books for the Merchant Marine, the recruitment of thousands of Navy Sea Bees, Army Engineers, Air Cadets and Nurses, and the rehabilitation of 180 Jap-impresoned members of the Manila and Guam Lodges have been other Elk war benevolences. 80,000 Elks served in the armed forces.

The Elks National Foundation is engaged in creating a fund of $20,000,000 for new forms of welfare and educational work. At Bedford, Va., the order maintains a large clubhke National Home where more than 500 aged and indigent Elks can spend their declining years in peace and comfort.

The Order has been especially active in behalf of crippled children, Elks lodges in Florida contributing heavily in 1945 to the Harry Anna Home for Crippled Children; in Georgia, to "Admore"; in New Jersey, to the Betty Bachrach Home for Afflicted Children; and in Vermont, to the Goshen Fresh Air Camp for Crippled Children. The Elks Foundation with the Aid of, and through the Minnesota State Elks Association supports much of the welfare work in the Mayo Clinic in Rochester. The Children's Home in Hendersonville, N. C., is aided through the Arizona State Elks Association and the tubercular hospital at Prescott, Ariz., through the Arizona State Elks Association.

Educationally the lodges and Foundation award scholarships to deserving students who otherwise could not attend college and the Foundation offers $5,000 in prizes to the nation's high school students through its "Most Valuable Student Contest." The Emergency Education Fund of the Order, established in 1944, is to assist children of Elks killed or incapacitated during the war.

The Elks War Commission has already spent $100,000 in repatriating interned members of Manila and Guam Lodges. Plans are now being projected for the rebuilding of these lodges, destroyed during the Japanese occupation.

Veterans Reinhbilitation Committees are being established in all lodges to render assistance and advice to veterans seeking work, housing or loans. Funds, similar to the one through which the Elks made loans totalling $700,000 to 10,000 veterans of World War I without collateral, have been set aside for individual lodges for distribution through these committees.

President Truman is an Elk, so was President Roosevelt, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson is an Elk as is Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach and Attorney General Tom Clark, 19 U. S. Senators, 263 Representatives and the governors of 33 states. Admiral Ernest J. King is an Elk and so is the hero of World War I General John J. Pershing.

They often call the Elks "the "Best People On Earth" paraphrasing the B. P. O. E. The above article lists some of the reasons why many have come to think so!

EUROPEAN RELIEF CENTER

Congregationalists Co-operate in Boston

A United Church Service Center has opened on the fifth floor of 46 Cornhill street, Boston, for the shipping of garments, bedding and utensils (no china or glass) to stricken countries overseas. The Church Committee on Overseas Reconstruction and Relief asked the Congregational Christian Service Committee, Rev. James C. Flint of New York, director, to set up and operate this center.

A group of people from the Mass. Committee on War Victims and Reconstruction and the Friendly Service Committee of the Department of Woman's Work of the Conference with Mrs. George Willard Smith and Rev. Carl Heath Kopf as co-chairmen is the committee in charge.

Members of our churches are asked to send through this center all material that can be spared for needy war victims.

The director is Mrs. Nehemiah Boynton, [illegible] who will give further information if desired. Let us make use of this center!

DONATIONS REQUESTED!

Winchester's most unique store, The Thrift Shop, has been serving this community for the past 14 years. It is made possible by the generous contributions of clothing, furniture and what-have-you from friends and not once during these years has the shop been forced to close its doors for lack of patronage or donations. It solves a very real need on the part of both buyer and giver.

The Thrift Shop was organized under the leadership of Mrs. Charles A. Burnham and for the last five years Mrs. E. H. Garrison has had charge of it. The women of the First Baptist Church regularly donate their services as saleswomen.

In its earlier days the Shop wandered here and there from one vacant building to another until ten years ago when it became established at 8 Park street.

Before the war regular donation days were held in the spring and Winchester ladies will remember with pleasure "Living Pictures," "Miniature Wedding Pageant," "Fashion Show", by Filene's and "The Household Harmonists." Now, with the war over, the Women's League of the First Baptist Church are again able to present a Fashion Show, staged by Filene's in the Social Hall of the Church, Tuesday morning, March 26, at ten o'clock, at which time the 1946 Fashions will be shown on local models and morning coffee will be served. Admission will be a donation for the Shop.

The women of the First Congregational Church will have the unusual privilege on March 19, of hearing a talk by Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, retiring president of Union Theological Seminary in New York. Dr. Coffin will address the Women's Association at their spring meeting at which the Home Church Guild will be hostess.

Mrs. Pierce polling 1155. The latter lost the election in Precincts 3, 4 and 5, in which she ran substantially 5-to-one of Mrs. Smith. Her failure to get more votes, especially in 3, 4 and 5, is rather surprising, though the report that she was not to run after her nomination, seems had been filed did not help. Only Precinct 6 gave Mrs. Pierce a substantial lead, yet there was scant interest shown in the contest there.

There were but two other contests on the ballot. In one of these Joseph L. S. Barton, candidate for re-election, defeated Frederick LaTorella for Cemetery Commissioner, better than four to one, polling 1886 votes to Mr. LaTorella's 433.

In the remaining contest Alice B. Browne defeated Stephen N. Hill for the two years' term as Recreation Commissioner, 1374 to 721. Joseph W. Worthen, running unopposed for Moderator polled the largest vote, 2184.

Hocuse H. Ford polled 312 to lead the candidates for town meeting member in Precinct 1, other precinct leaders being J. Waldo Bond, 347, (2); Margery Lavingston, 141, (5); Sidney C. Blanchard, 404, (1); Henry G. Spencer, 312, (5) and J. Joseph Tansey, 174, (6).

Many were surprised to see the chairman of last years Finance Committee, Walter A. Redding, not only head of the precinct member in 3 but polling the lowest vote of any of the candidates there.

It was at first announced that Selectman Alfred J. Higgins, running for election as town meeting member for two years in 1, had been defeated. A subsequent check of returns disclosed a mistake in counting which added ten votes to his total, and took ten from that of Everett W. Gray, electing Mr. Higgins by 19 votes.

The last Precinct figures were in at the Town Clerk's office at 9:20 and the final total was made at 10:45. Seven Absent Voter Ballots were received. The summary:

BETTER HOMES AND GARDEN LECTURES

Winchester Homes

Featured in the March issue of Better Homes and Gardens magazine is a group building project which was started in Winchester just before the war. The families were found there since solely by one man, an associate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. They are professors Albert H. Conrad, Talbot W. Rounds, Robert R. Rathbun, and Malcolm McIlroy.

The original plan that sparked the project was based on the somewhat textbook thesis that "economics could be achieved in land purchase and building by group action, and that such group action would also develop a neighborhood congenial families having similar interests."

A small ad in a Sunday paper was the turning point of their dreams into reality. The ad described an estate for sale, in whole or in parts, along the shore of Mystic Lake. The four families decided that it would be a wonderful setting for their homes, for it was well wooded with a number of trees, and sloped pleasantly down to the shores of a lake that was the higher of two lakes which provided a view clear down to Boston.

The experiment was eminently successful, the group feels. However, they do not promote their idea without reservation. Buying a lot and building a home strains the financial resources to the utmost. But several families in the same boat and you multiply the strain. And all the time group relations must be kept at the point where they are an advantage and not a drawback. It is obviously largely a matter of whether you can find the right group.

The Winchester group emphasizes the importance of "a working relationship where complete candor is the first rule, where families co-operate when it is mutually advantageous, but where they make their own decisions always as to whether or not to co-operate on a given point."

Critical negotiations in the early part of the project have much to do with its future success. Lots had to be assigned so that each family would be satisfied. First proof of the groups thesis on economy came when they learned that the final purchase price of the land was substantially lower than the original asking price of the individual lots. The second saving was in legal and title search fees, significantly lower for a group purchase than for the individual purchases.

Incidents piled up that made the savings obvious and worth while to every member of the group. Time saving was not the least of these. One man investigated financing ideas for the group, while another took care of applications for permission to install wharves, and beaches, while another arranged building materials.

Experiencing the results of their own project has been fascinating for the four families. "Actually," they say, we are not a cloistered community. Our interests and friends are diverse, and the social life of each family is no more limited to the neighborhood than it would normally be. Yet among the greatest forces to make us friends were the experiences of working out joint problems in the beginning and our current interest in each other's plans."

Sites like this one on Mystic Lake may not turn up in every want-ad section, nor can you pick up any group of friends who will share your ideas on such a home building project. But if you are not in too great a rush to build your home, look into "group building." It may be a foresighted way of building up the kind of neighborhood with which you would like to surround your home.

PROVINZANO—GIULIANI

Among recent weddings of interest was that of Miss Emma Helen Giuliani to Frank Joseph Provinzano, which took place on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 10, at St. Mary's Church, with the pastor, Rev. Fr. John P. O'Reilly, officiating. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gaetano Giuliani of Richardson street was given in marriage by her father, and for her matron of honor was Mrs. Ralph Fiorio of Woburn. Miss Provinzano, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. Miss Helen Giuliani, sister of the bride, and Miss Gerry Maggio, also of Winchester and niece of the bridegroom.

Two brothers of the bridegroom, Peter Provinzano and Samuel Provinzano, were ushers with Philip Pizzo of Winchester, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; and Anthony Giuliani of this town, brother of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Provinzano, back from a wedding journey to New York and New Jersey, are making their home at 17 Irving street.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School. Mr. Provinzano recently returned from overseas service in the ETO with the Army Corps of Engineers, is a graduate of Winchester High School, Wilbraham Academy and of Boston University, in the class of 1942.

SOCIALIZED MEDICINE

An appeal is made again this week by Winchester Physicians, Dentists and Druggists for the support of our citizens in aiding their effort to defeat the "Socialized Medicine Bill." The response from last week's advertisement, both large, and small, is gratifying to note, but there is still much to be done. Please help us by signing the petition and mailing it to your Senator and Representative in the State House, Boston. Don't delay, sign and mail today. Remember, we are not opposed to "Socialized Medicine" but to the bill. Let your stand on this matter now, before it becomes a law, than it is to find out later when it is too late, that your delay is responsible for the passage of an act which is un-American and sanctions a state repugnant to all. Coupons may be mailed to or left at the Star Office.

What your RED CROSS Chapter does in WINCHESTER

YOU KNOW what the Red Cross has done overseas in World War II. The World knows it. Another glorious page in the history of your Red Cross is being written.

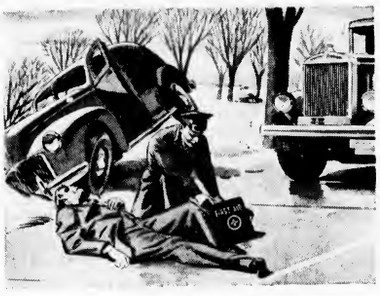

Each of the 3,754 chapters in the nationwide Red Cross network . . . just as our local chapter . . . did its full share to make possible all the help and comfort given our fighting men. But that is only half the story. Here is what your Red Cross chapter is doing now and will be doing for years to come.

Disaster Relief. In the United States last year, the Red Cross gave relief in 260 disasters. Experience has shown that no community is immune. Our local chapter has a disaster committee set up and ready to act at the initial warning of catastrophe . . . to provide emergency shelter, food, clothing, and medical care for the helpless victims . . . to save lives and relieve suffering. And after the first shock has worn away, comes the long job of rehabilitation.

Home Service. The Red Cross Home Service worker is a home town trouble-shooter for the serviceman and his family. Our Red Cross chapter has Home Service workers available for duty day or night . . . trained, practical people, equipped to act in emergencies. The Red Cross two-way communication system reaches around the world, so that in a sense the serviceman is no further from his loved ones than our Red Cross chapter.

First Aid. A crash on the highway . . . a slashed wrist . . . a burn from scalding water . . . severe shock without proper attention, all can produce serious results. Our chapter in cooperation with individuals and organizations maintains mobile first aid units and highway first aid stations manned by trained first aiders, who help care for the victims of traffic accidents until the doctor arrives. First aid, water safety, and accident prevention classes are conducted to teach Americans the principles of self-preservation.

Home Nursing. The Red Cross teaches the fundamentals of home nursing to many citizens. Mothers and high school girls learn how to care for simple illnesses, and how to follow the doctor's instructions in preventing serious ones.

Junior Red Cross. From eager first-graders to high school students young volunteers stitch, hammer, and plan for the Red Cross. Many also learn first aid, accident prevention, water safety, nutrition, and home nursing.

Volunteer Special Services. Your neighbor next door or just around the corner is probably a member of one of the many Red Cross Volunteer Corps. She may sew or knit for our hospitalized men; she may drive for the Motor Corps, she may be a Nurse's Aide or a Gray Lady. Perhaps she's a Staff Assistant, or a Home Service worker . . . but whatever corps she serves . . whatever she does . . her time and effort help stretch the Red Cross dollar.

THINK of the many thousands who look to our Red Cross for aid and comfort in lonely hours of desperate need. Think what its many services and safeguards can mean to our town . . . to you, and your loved ones. Then remember that your voluntary services, backed up by your contributions, make it possible for Red Cross to carry on in our community. Your individual gifts are its only source of income. Without you and your neighbors, there would be no Red Cross. Give to the Red Cross today.

YOUR Red Cross MUST CARRY ON . . . GIVE!

BE READY TO GIVE!

TROOP 6 AND TROOP 3 RALLY

A week ago last Monday, Feb. 25, Troop 6 had a rally with Troop 3 at the Unitarian Church.

There were seven events, of which six were main scout requirements.

The rally started off smoothly, with Troop 6 taking the first event which was compass. Troop 3 took the second and third events, Semaphore and knots respectively. Troop 6 won the fourth event, flint and steel, to tie the score. Then Troop 3 won the fifth event, Morse signaling, to come out ahead, then Troop 6 won the sixth event, fireman's carry relay, to tie the score again. The last event, the tug of war, was the deciding event. Troop 6 won this to break the tie and win the rally with four events to their credit to Troop 3's three at the end of the rally.

Everybody had a fine time and good sportsmanship was displayed all around.

FELLSAND SCOUTS TO CAMP IN NEW MEXICO

Out in New Mexico, where Kit Carson used to roam, where the Pony Express and stage coaches used to go thundering along the Old Santa Fe Trail there is a vast ranch known as Philmont Scout Ranch, which is the property of the Boy Scouts of America. Philmont Ranch has 127,308 acres, that's more than the whole State of Rhode Island. It has herds of Hereford cattle, over 100 guides, cowboys and staff; over 200 saddle and pack horses; hundreds of square miles of unbelievable, deer, elk, antelope, beaver and other wild life live. It contains the famous Rayado Crater, and Lover's Leap guarding the entrance to Urraca Canyon, an old gold mine, Indian writings and Hidden Valley.

Now that wartime travel restrictions have been removed, the Philmont Scout Ranch is open again. This coming summer, a group of Scouts and leaders from Fellsland Council will make an expedition and camping trip at Philmont. They will follow trails originally blazed by Indians; visit old robbers' caves; pan for gold, examine cliff dwellings; and see wild life aplenty.

Many of the organizations in this area that sponsor Scout Troops are planning to send their own Scouts, one or more, on this great trip. The activity is under the leadership of the Camping Committee of Fellsland Council, Boy Scouts of America, with headquarters in Winchester.

Announcements of the camping dates and other details will be made later.

Several Cubs received awards at this meeting.

Raymond Simpson, John MacLean and Jack Ekstrom, all of Den 1 received their Bobcat pin; Roger Foster of Den 1 received his Bear badge; Robert Flaherty of Den 2 received his Wolf badge and silver and gold arrows.

Paul Welch of Den 2 received his Bear badge.

MEN'S CLUB ASSEMBLY

The Winchester Assembly of Men's Clubs held its supper meeting and annual assembly last evening in Metcalf Hall with an attendance of 185. Rev. Edwin C. Sliney, new pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church, made the invocation and the discussion leader and moderator was Prof. Charles A. Myers of M. I. T., an authority in the field of industrial relations.

Topic for the Forum discussion was "Management-Labor Relations and What's Ahead", Management's representatives being Frederick W. Bliss and Clarence G. McDavitt. Mr. Bliss, N. E. district manager of sales and engineering services for General Electric, is chairman of the Industrial Relations Council of Metropolitan Boston, representing industries and unions in this area. Mr. McDavitt, until recently a member for industry and chairman of the New England Region 1 section of the National War Labor Board, is prominent as one of the employer representatives in the International Labor-Management Conference, a tri-partite body of Government, Labor and Industry.

Labor's representatives were Ernest C. Johnson, secretary of the Boston Building Trades Council of the A. F. of L., formerly labor's representative on the New England Council; and Francis Carmichael, N. E. regional director of the C. I. O., a top policy man in the national councils of that organization.

The meeting was devoid of fireworks, both labor and management speakers presenting their cases factually and dispassionately. Those who attended took away with them much to ponder over.

JAMES PATRICK DONAGHEY

Veteran Police Officer Died Sunday

Officer James P. Donaghey, veteran member of the Winchester Police Department, died early Sunday evening at the Winchester Hospital. He had been critically ill for a week and had been confined to his home for two months, but for some years his health had not been good and he had undergone at various times five operations for trouble which it is believed originated from injuries received in line of duty. Many times in recent years his devotion to the service won the admiration of those who knew the courageous fight he was waging to remain on the job.

Officer Donaghey was the son of James P., and Ann (Smythe) Donaghey. He was born Sept. 30, 1886 in Woburn, but came to Winchester as a young child and grew up here, receiving his education in the Winchester schools and winning through the years a wide circle of friends from all walks in life.

Officer Donaghey was the second man appointed to the Winchester Police Force under civil service, the first being the present Chief, William H. Rogers. He was appointed a patrolman July 1, 1912, and served continuously since that time until his death, being a military substitute sergeant during Charles A. Harrold's leave of absence in World War II. Police work was quite different from service today in Officer Donaghey's early days on the force and he had many a "rough and tumble" battle when patrolmen walked their beats exclusively and were on their own without the assistance of radios and patrol cars. One of his best catches in recent years was when he picked up a would be armed robber and his pal attempting to break into a store in the block replaced by the Locatelli Building.

Officer Donaghey was a charter member of Winchester Lodge, 1445, B. P. O. E.; a member and past president of the Winchester Police Relief Association and past president of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Parish. As a young man he enjoyed quite a reputation as an entertainer and later, after the formation of the Police Relief Association he took an active part in arranging for its concerts and dancing parties.

On April 24, 1916, Officer Donaghey married Etta M. Hevey of this town. She survives with four sons, Thomas W., of Dedham; Robert L., James E., and Kenneth V. Donaghey, all of Winchester; a grandson, Thomas W. Donaghey, Jr.; a sister, Mrs. Frank J. Hennessey of this town; and four brothers, John F. Donaghey of Winchester; Thomas W., and Arthur L., both of Stoneham; and Joseph W. Donaghey of Woburn, parcels post carrier at the Winchester Postoffice.

Following Officer Donaghey's death Police Headquarters were draped with black and flags on the common and public buildings displayed at half-staff.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from the late residence.

The cortege formed at 8:30 and proceeded to St. Mary's Church, a detachment of Police under Sgt. Thomas F. Cassidy and a detachment of Firemen under Capt. J. Edward Noonan acting as escort. The active bearers, Sgts. Charles J. Harrold and Joseph J. Derro, and Officers James E. Farrell, John F. Hogan, Archibald T. O'Connell and Henry P. Dempsey marched at either side of the funeral car.

At the church, both before and after the mass, Police standing at salute, formed two lines, through which the casket was borne.

Rev. Fr. William Sherry of the Immaculate Conception Church in Salem, formerly of the Immaculate Conception Church in Winchester and a relative of the deceased, was celebrant; Rev. Fr. J. Joseph Kierce of the Immaculate Conception Church was deacon and Rev. Fr. Cornelius J. Hogan of St. Mary's subdeacon.

Honorary bearers were Chief William H. Rogers of the Police Department, Chief John J. Gerrish of the Fire Department, Police Lt. Edward W. O'Connell and Chief Charles McCauley of the Woburn Police Department. Capt. James Rogers of the Fells Division represented the Metropolitan Police and representatives of town departments were also present.

After the mass the cortege formed again and proceeded to Calvary Cemetery where the interment was made in the family lot. Committal prayers were said by Fr. Sherry.

RALPH H. BONNELL
Reelected Chairman of Selectmen

At the first meeting of the new board Mr. Bonnell was elected chairman.

Margaret T. Morris, 850 Main street, was appointed a measurer of leather for 1 year.

Under Chapter 55 of the Acts of 1946 passed in February of this year, three town officials who have been serving for the duration after reaching retirement age will be obliged to terminate their services on May 31. They are the Town Counsel, Mr. Pike; Chief Gorman of the Fire Department and the Executive Clerk, Mr. George W. Franklin.

ROTARY NOTES

At the regular weekly meeting of the Winchester Rotary Club, our own member, Ralph Bonnell, Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, spoke informally of existing traffic conditions in the center, the present status of the grade crossing elimination plans, and the periodic unsightly condition of the Aberjona River, between the Main street bridge and the post office. Ralph is particularly well versed in town affairs in general, and he has given freely of his time and energy in performing the multiple duties of Chairman of the Board. In so doing he has at all times exemplified the highest ideals of Rotary.

For the second time, "Don" Simonds was declared the winner of the Victory Bond, with an assist being given to visiting Rotarian "Bob" Gray for drawing "Don's" number.

It was announced that an important joint meeting of the Scholarship Committee and the Board of Directors is to be held at the office of Harry Mueller, March 15, at 5:15 p. m.

Secretary "John" McLean distributed the new 1946 Club rosters to the members, and Price Wilson is to be complimented on his usual fine job of printing and assembling the rosters.

Vice-president "Pat" Foley announced Mr. Arthur W. Coolidge, President of the State Senate, as the guest speaker at the next regular meeting on March 21. Several new members are to be welcomed at this meeting and every member is urged to be in attendance.

HIGH SCHOOL ART STUDENTS WIN REGIONAL AWARDS

Dorothy Byford and June Moffette, Winchester High School seniors, have received word recently that their art work entered in the Regional Art Exhibition sponsored by Scholastic Magazine have won for them two of the region's achievement keys and that their entries now go to the 19th National Art Exhibition, Fine Arts Galleries, Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh. Miss Jennie Lou Elliott's entry received honorable mention.

Miss Byford's entry is a decorative flower study, Miss Moffette's is a decorative illustration in scratchboard technique, and Miss Elliott's is an illustration in pastel.

The art work of these girls, pupils in the high school art department, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Sharples, will appear in an exhibition of 180 pieces chosen from 1000 items entered in the regional contest.

The Regional Exhibition will continue at the Fashion Center, 6th floor annex, Jordan Marsh Company, through Saturday of this week.

GINN ESTATE TO HOUSE VETERANS

Court Differs from Board of Appeal's Ruling

Judge Charles C. Cabot of the Superior Court has ordered a decree to be entered for the Trustees of the Ginn Estate who appealed to the court from a decision of the Winchester Board of Appeal denying them the right to use the premises on Bacon street to lodge more than four persons in opposition to the town's Zoning By-Laws.

Under the decree nine couples, primarily veterans of World War II and their wives will be permitted to use the premises as a dwelling for one year from the date of the decree, after which a petition may be entered to the Winchester Appeal Board for permission to renew the privilege for one more year.

Judge Cabot in his decree differed from the Board of Appeal in its decision that the Zoning By-Laws of Winchester prohibit such use of the Ginn property as the Trustees desire.

He found that the law does permit just such use as the Trustees propose to make of the property, basing his opinion upon Sec. 7D of the Zoning By-Laws, the emergency clause which permits the Board of Appeal to grant certain permission in emergency cases not otherwise allowed. He stressed the acute housing shortage in connection with his interpretation of the law.

The Board of Appeal in denying the petition felt that any housing emergency which exists is town-wide and that it as a judicial board should not apply an individual emergency ruling to a situation equally affecting the entire community.

Judge Cabot ordered the decree as a variance which is to say that the law has been varied in a particular instance without a ruling being made upon its permanent applicability. This can be taken to mean that the present decision does not necessarily imply that the town's Zoning By-Law, making certain housing restrictions, has been invalidated. In this particular case the Judge found an emergency existed which in his opinion warranted overturning the Appeal Board's decision under the emergency clause of the law.

FIRST BAPTIST LENTEN SERVICES

Rev. Jack Matheson Baker, dynamic pastor of the First Baptist Church, Reading, will be the speaker at the Lenten Wednesday evening service in the Sanctuary of the First Baptist Church, March 20 at 7:45 o'clock. "Life's Unenforceable Obligations" is his intriguing subject. The Men's Brotherhood Quartet, composed of Leon E. Leavitt, Leonard O. Waters, Cecil W. Pride and Elliott Ward, will sing "The Shepherd True" and the favorite of Christians the world over "The Old Rugged Cross".

A large number of the townspeople are taking advantage of these special Lenten services, and a most cordial invitation is extended to everyone to join in this service.

JAPANESE TROPHIES AT STAR OFFICE

The Star will have on display in its window this coming week a number of Japanese trophies brought back from Okinawa by Sgt. Lawrence J. Penta, of the Star force, who served with the Marines First Division.

Besides a Nipponese Flag, there is a Jap 25 caliber rifle and one of the deadly Sumari swords used by the Japs to commit Hari Kari or to decapitate any one for whom they have happened to conceive a dislike.

There is also a fine Japanese Navy officer's sword, a handsome weapon, its elaborate hilt decorated with flowers, flags and the inimitable "rising sun" of the once proud Japanese Empire.

Anyone interested in purchasing any of these items may inquire at the Star Office.

WAY CHAIRMAN

At a meeting of the Board of Public Welfare held recently at the Town Hall B. Kendall Way of Fells road was elected chairman for the ensuing year.

Have You A Room You'll Rent To A Returned Veteran?

No need to talk about the housing shortage. But there is a vital need to do something about it! If you have a room that you'll rent to a veteran, will you let us know about it?

Since one of the most frequent requests which we get from returning veterans is "Where can I get a room?", the Winchester War Veterans Advisory Committee is compiling a list of rooms that are available in Winchester.

So if there is a vacant room in your house and you are willing to rent it to a returned veteran, will you call the Winchester War Veterans Advisory Center and let us know about it? We'll put you in touch with the boy who wants that room. It is just another way of expressing appreciation for the job he's done.

BOUTWELL—BARR

Miss Louise Taylor Barr, daughter of Mrs. George Bradford Hayward of Everett avenue, and the late Alfred George Barr, was married to Roswell Murray Boutwell, 3rd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hill Boutwell, 2nd, of Foxcroft road at the First Congregational Church on Saturday evening, March 9, Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the church, and Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, officiated at the 8 o'clock ceremony which took place in an attractive setting of Easter lilies, white snapdragons, white stock and exhibition lilies.

Miss Barr was given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. George Bradford Hayward. She wore a period gown of Skinner's ivory satin with a yoke of pearl beads and a bouffant skirt extending to form a full-length train. Her headdress of rosepoint lace was caught with orange blossoms and her veil of the same heirloom lace was mounted on silk illusion. Her flowers were cymbidium orchids with stephanotis, freesia and maidenhair fern arranged in a cascade bouquet.

Mrs. Robert W. Cowgill of Greenville, Del., was the bride's honor attendant and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Harry P. Hood of Winchester, the former Katharine Boutwell, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Carol Grant of Winchester, Mrs. Frederick S. Troy of Boston, Mrs. William E. Simmons of Hamilton, Miss Mary Louise Collier of Brookline and Mrs. William Chewning of Marblehead.

Mrs. Cowgill wore a period gown of white net, styled with a shirred bodice, peplum and bouffant skirt. Her headdress was of matching white plumes and baby orchids and she carried tulips shading from red through purple and deep pink snapdragon.

The bridesmaids carried dark maroon and dusty pink snapdragon with deep pink and red tulips. They wore gowns and headdresses designed like those of the matron of honor, but in different colors, Mrs. Hood and Miss Collier wearing hyacinth, Mrs. Simmons and Miss Grant wearing rose, and Mrs. Chewning and Mrs. Troy, green.

John J. Scully of Winchester was Mr. Boutwell's best man, and the usher corps comprised Lewis Emery Dearborn of Deerfield, N. H., Elliott Kimball Blaisdell, Harry Preston Hood, Jr., Emmons S. Ellis, all of Winchester; S. Leonard Eurenius of Swampscott and A. Leroy Bolton of Andover.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother and stepfather, who assisted in receiving with the parents of the bridegroom. Among those from out-of-town in Winchester for the wedding was the bride's sister, Mrs. M. I. McFarland, the former Cynthia Barr, who came East from California.

Mr. Boutwell and his bride went to Bermuda for their wedding journey. They are to live in Marblehead where they will be at home after June 1.

The bride is a graduate of the Brimmer-May School and of Edgewood Park Junior College. Mr. Boutwell prepared for college at Phillips Andover Academy and is a Yale graduate, class of 1940. He was discharged from the Army after 31 months in the European Theatre.

$3,600 TO GO!,

IT'S OVER

Chairman of Staff Assistants Eloise Graves turns over to Campaign Treasurer Helen Monroe the $700 needed at 6 o'clock to reach the Campaign Quota. Equally enjoyed at the assured success of the Campaign are two of Mrs. Grave's aids—Miss Carol Kellogg and Mrs. Herbert Kelly.

WINCHESTER RESIDENTS GENEROUSLY SUPPORT RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

Subscriptions total $23,342.40 as of Wednesday—158.8 per cent of quota.

The residents of Winchester responded to the 1946 Red Cross Fund Campaign with their customary generosity, assuring its success the first day.

As in previous years, the general canvass was confined to one day with the Precinct workers turning in the results of their canvass at the Report Center set up in the main banking rooms of the Winchester Trust Company. This year's quota of $14,700 was passed by 6:30 and when the final tabulation was made at 9:30, a total of $19,069 had been received, checked and turned over to the campaign treasurer, Miss Helen Monroe. Since Sunday over $4000 additional has been received with more to come.

Although the quota has been so generously over-subscribed, all money received will be put to good use in maintaining facilities for our service men overseas—the Red Cross still is supporting 727 Overseas Clubs, for hospital and veterans' aid work and for an enlarged Home Service program.

Subscriptions are welcomed from any who were not at home when a canvasser called last Sunday. These subscriptions may be mailed to Campaign Headquarters, 30 Mt. Vernon street or may be left at the Chapter rooms in the Town Hall.

SEE THE CROSSING PICTURES

The Selectmen have in their office architects drawings of the proposed project to raise the Boston and Maine railroad tracks going through Winchester to eliminate the grade crossing in the center.

Everyone should make it his or her business to see these sketches and get an idea of what this change-over center is going to look like. Check it fom all visual angles and then compare these newest and more accurate sketches with the original descriptions of the structure made at the grade crossing elimination hearing in the town hall awhile back. The present sketches are quite enlightening.

WINTER POND FULL

Winter Pond is nearly full again after several years of such low water that many people thought that it was going dry. This week water flowed beneath the bridge which separates the pond on either side of Woodside road. It is seven years since this has happened. During this time house holders on the shore have filled in sections below the natural high water mark, made walls, gardens, etc. It might be well for them to remember two things. First this pond and its bottom up to the old high water mark are the property of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, it being a so called great pond. Second the natural high water mark is some three feet higher than the present level of the pond and it must reach this level before it can run over into its natural water course which discharges into Wedge Pond.

MRS. STEPHENSON ELECTED PRESIDENT

Of New England Nurse Anesthetists

Mrs. William H. (Esther M.) Stephenson of 7 Wolcott road, was elected president of the newly formed Assembly of Nurse Anesthetists from the six New England States at their meeting Wednesday. She organized the Assembly and put on the first meeting Tuesday and Wednesday at the Hotel Statler in connection with the New England Hospital Assembly.

Following the last session on Wednesday afternoon, a dinner party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson to the new officers of the Assembly, honoring their house guest, Miss Anne Campbell, Executive Secretary of the National Association of Nurse Anesthetists, Chicago.

WINCHESTER BOY ELECTED READING ASSESSOR

Ralph T. Horn, former Winchester boy and one-time end on the high school football team back in the days of 1927-28, was elected a member of the Reading Board of Assessors in the big event of the annual town election there on Monday, March 4.

Mr. Horn, 36 year old vice president of the F. F. Morgan Company of 45 Milk street, Boston, in charge of his firm's sales and rentals of industrial and garage properties and its property management department, defeated the veteran campaigner Arthur S. Cook, generally believed sure of re-election.

Mr. Horn, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Albert Horn of 25 Thompson street has had a wide experience in real estate with the New England Trust Co., Potter Realty Company of Cambridge and Charleston Five Cent Savings Bank. Special courses at Pennsylvania University and Boston University have supplemented his practical knowledge.

He makes his home at 46 Grand street in Reading, is married to a Reading girl, the former Jeannette Woods, has two children.

MRS. MARY FAY MULLEN

Mrs. Mary Fay Mullen, wife of James F. Mullen, of 9 Arthur street, died Wednesday morning at the Baker Memorial Hospital in Boston after a short illness.

Mrs. Mullen was 36 years old. She was the daughter of William and Bridget (Gibbons) Fahey, was born in Boston and educated in the Boston schools. She was a graduate nurse, having graduated from the training school of the Massachusetts General Hospital with the class of 1931. She had lived in Winchester for the past 11 years.

Surviving, besides her husband, are three children, Mary Fay Mullen, James M. and John F. Mullen; and a sister, Mrs. Ernest Iverson of Mattapan.

The funeral was held this Friday morning from the Lane Funeral Home with high mass of requiem at the Immaculate Conception Church. Interment was in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, Stoughton.

COMING EVENTS

TOWN MEETING MONDAY NIGHT

Winchester will hold the first session of its limited town meeting Monday evening at the town hall commencing at 7:45.

Thirty-six articles appear upon the warrant for consideration, but many of them are routine and are not likely to occasion much if any debate. If, as has been reported, action is going to be deferred upon some or all of the school articles, to a special meeting in June, much of the real fireworks may be squelched right at the start.

There may be a bit of debate on the article inserted by the Park Commissioners asking $20,000 for grading and improving the west side playground on Wildwood street extension. The Finance Committee has turned thumbs down on this.

Articles 16 and 17 may also arouse some little discussion. The first is to see whether the town will make any provision for a recreation program, or provide any place to conduct such a program, and whatever motion is to be made under the article is sponsored by the Youth Guidance Committee.

Under Article 17, the meeting is asked to determine whether any commission or board is to administer the town's recreation program. No sponsor is named in connection with this article, but doubtless its insertion in the warrant is in accord with the Recreation Commission, e-stablished by a close vote at last year's town meeting, the members of which were elected for the first time this year. Action under this article may come only after some discussion since there appear to be many who do not seem to know about the Recreation Commission and others who believe the Park Board has done enough in this field with the facilities at the disposal of the town.

How far the town is prepared to go into a further recreation program, in view of the present increased school budget and other items of expense only time and the meeting can tell. That there will be a determined fight for a recreation program of some kind, to be administered by the Recreation Commission, is certain. The group who championed the establishment of the Recreation Commission a year ago is not going to be satisfied to have this group remain a board in name only.

Whether an attempt will be made to have action deferred on the articles with reference to providing decent athletic facilities for the high school pupils hasn't been announced. "They" may want to consider this matter with the school articles, or after the school articles are settled. Action on the proposal to erect a new high school on the Cross street estate and utilize the athletic field plans materially, but those who are advocating some sort of suitable athletic plant can feel with equal justice that immediate steps should be taken to provide such on the field ready for next fall's football.

The Finance Committee favors giving the Police a day off in six without loss of pay and no trouble is expected to pass this article. The Committee has, however, turned down the appeal of the Firemen for an average 70 hour working week, and it is no secret that the "boys in blue and silver" are going to battle for these hours.

How the meeting will view the proposal to establish a Department of Public Works in Winchester to stream-line town functions can be determined in advance. The Finance Committee is for it. As a matter of fact it has often proven that some little innocent article, amounting relatively to very little, has occupied a lot of time while those involving the spending of huge sums have gone through virtually without debate. There may of course be more discussion of the town's grade crossing problem under reports of committees.

Town meetings in Winchester have come to be fairly predictable what with the town officers, Finance Committee, members at large block voting, but sometimes the apple cart is overturned. That is what attracts people to the sessions. They are open to the public but you can't sit inside the rail unless you are a precinct member. And you can't vote, of course! Joseph W. Worthen is moderator. Why not come down Monday night.

PRIDHAM HOME

Roland Pridham, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Pridham of Lake street, is home from Guam and out of the service after serving overseas with the 501st Bomber Group of the 315 Bomber Wing of the 20th Air Force. He was last serving as a radar instructor and had 30 months service, seven in the Pacific Theatre.

Rev. Henry Sloane Coffin

The Reverend Henry Sloane Coffin, retiring President of Union Theological Seminary, will address the Women's Association of the First Congregational Church at the Spring Meeting on March 19 at two o'clock.

Dr. Coffin has for many years been in great demand as speaker and preacher. The name of Henry Sloane Coffin has drawn attendance to college chapels as quickly as word of "Sinatra" crowds the corner store.

Many remember Dr. Coffin in his 21 year pastorate at the Madison avenue Church in New York City, and many think of him for his 20 years as President of Union Theological Seminary from which he has just retired.

Among the many additional posts Dr. Coffin has held are that of Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, and of University Preacher at many leading universities. He has been honored with degrees of L. L. D. and Litt. D. by several institutions.

Dr. Coffin has won national recognition through his numerous publications, among which are "The Meaning of the Cross" and "Religion, Yesterday and Today."

The Women's Association meeting will be presided over by Mrs. Robert M. Keeney, the worship service lead by Mrs. George Nardin, and the tea will be served by the Home Circle Guild as hostess for the afternoon. Any women interested in hearing Dr. Coffin will be cordially welcomed.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Regular Meeting

The program on March 11 was presented by the Art Committee, Mrs. Michael H. Hintlian, chairman, in co-operation with the Music Committee, Mrs. Virgil Ghirardini, chairman. Lucy Cushman accompanied Idabelle H. Winship who sang "Hindu Chant", "When I Bring You Colored Toys" and "The Sleep That Flits on Baby's Eyes". Also for the Fortnightly Singers "Nightingale and Rose" and "Silent Strings" directed by Mary R. Witham.

Mr. Boudakian traced the development of materials and looms for creating oriental rugs from earliest forms to those now used in homes or guilds. Our modern dyers are critical as to shade, fast colors, fine weaves, texture, and patterns. To illustrate his talk he used many of the very beautiful rugs which were hung on the walls and around the stage and even a lovely one on the floor.

Miss Louise Bancroft was hostess for the afternoon. Mrs. Aram Mouradian was most generous in her contribution of "paklava" pastry dainties served with the coffee, and with the attractive costuming of the Fortnightly Singers.

Next Meeting

At the next regular meeting, March 25, Mrs. Olive Hanna will demonstrate the points in her talk, entitled "Graphology is a Graphic Art." Mrs. T. H. Rhodes will be hostess for Coffee at one o'clock, in the Parish House of the First Congregational Church.

Opera and Lunch

Mrs. Clifton S. Hall gave notice of the Music Festival on March 20. The speaker at the luncheon will be Rudolph Elie. In the afternoon Boris Galdofsky will talk on Operas in Boston, and will illustrate with Piano.

On Sunday afternoon, March 3, at the First Congregational Church in Meredith, N. H., Miss Virginia Ethel Weeks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Weeks of Meredith, was married to Frederick S. Hatch of Jefferson road. Rev. Roland W. Nye officiated at the 4 o'clock candlelight ceremony.

The bride wore a white taffeta gown with a net skirt. Her veil cascaded from a beaded tiara and she carried a bouquet of sweet peas and stephanotis. The maid of honor, Miss Barbara Jones of Meredith, was in pink satin with Colonial bouquet, and the bridesmaid, Miss Avis Cotton, also of Meredith, was in blue.

HUNGARY AND YUGOSLAVIA

Two important states of southeastern Europe, having renounced their old monarchical governments by vote of the people, now move forward as peacetime republics headed by their wartime leaders of resistance to the Axis.

They are Yugoslavia, bordering the Adriatic Sea on the east, newly proclaimed a Federated Republic, and Hungary, adjoining Yugoslavia on the north, set up as the Third Hungarian Republic. Marshall Tito (Josip Broz) is Premier of Yugoslavia. Zoltan Tildy is President of Hungary.

Serbia Dominated Yugoslav Monarchy

Common Slav ancestry was seen as the tie that would bind when Slovenia, Croatia, Dalmatia, Bosnia and other areas of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire joined with the kingdoms of Serbia and Montenegro late in 1918 to form the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes. In October, 1929, notes the National Geographic Society, the name was changed to the Kingdom of Yugoslavia (South Slavia).

Nucleus of the kingdom was inland Serbia. Straining against the common tie of Slav ancestry were differences in culture and customs, in politics and religion. Croats and Slovenes in the northwest, long under the influence of Austria-Hungary, lived quite differently from Serbs in the southeast, long dominated by Turkey. High mountain ranges and varying types of soil are among factors causing wide variations in regional occupations and interests.

Throughout World War II bitter internal strife surged between supporters and opponents of the monarchy. By the end of 1941, during which much of Yugoslavia was freed of German control, the resistance movement headed by Marshall Tito had set up a national administration. Under its direction came the election of the Constituent Assembly that has declared an end to the monarchy.

Serbia, Croatia, Slovenia, Bosnia Hercegovina, Montenegro, and Macedonia have been named as the six units of the Federal People's Republic of Yugoslavia. In addition, there will be areas within states having autonomy and limited representation in the Assembly. Vojvodina in the northeast and Albanian-populated regions in the south are in this class.

Because of its strategic position on routes from central Europe to the Mediterranean and Middle East, Yugoslavia, comparable in size to Oregon, felt the constant force of external as well as internal pressures. Belgrade, the capital and chief city with a population of 300,000, was heavily damaged by German air attacks in 1941. It also suffered at the outset of World War I, when, as capital of Serbia, it was bombarded by the Austrians from the north banks of the Danube River. Agriculture occupies a large majority of Yugoslavia's 16,000,000 people.

Hungary Was Kingdom Without King

In September, 1918, the Dual Monarchy of Austria-Hungary collapsed. After democrat, socialist and communist governments failed in brief turns at Hungary's helm, the people in January 1920 voted to return to a monarchy form. But Hungary, separated from Austria, had no royal family, and Admiral Nicholas Horthy became regent.

Mrs. Catherine (Muse) Busby, wife of William Busby, died Sunday morning, March 10, at her home in Taunton after a short illness.

Mrs. Busby, a native of Nova Scotia, came to Winchester as a child and made her home with the then visiting nurses. Miss Stevens and Miss Billings in a house on Washington street on the site of the present high school. Later she lived for nine years with Mrs. Charles I. Fortis of Dix Terrace, and it was from Mrs. Fortis' home 20 years ago that she married Mr. Busby. They had observed their 25th wedding anniversary only a short time before Mrs. Busby's death. Her husband is the only survivor.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon in Taunton. After cremation at Forest Hills the ultimate interment will be made in Wildwood Cemetery.

K. OF C. NOTES

The Annual Communion breakfast of the council will be held at the Town Hall, following the 8 o'clock mass at St. Mary's Church on Sunday April 7th. An active committee headed by Fran Dolan are lining up a very attractive program for the occasion.

Don't forget the March 17th party to be held in the K. of C. Hall on Monday March 18th.

The following new members were honored with the exemplification of the first section of the major degree the past month:

There will be a very important meeting of the Communion breakfast committee in the council rooms on Friday March 15th at 8:15 p. m.

The local Elks have been meeting little opposition the past two weeks, taking the "Casey's" into camp by the scores of 10 to 2 and 8 to 4. It is hoped that some of the new members recently admitted to the council can play cribbage, as this appears to be the weak link in the "Casey's" tournament team.

John Lane chairman of the membership committee announces that a new class of candidates is being formed, any member who wishes to sponser a candidate should get his application in as soon as possible as a first degree will be had very soon.

Next regular meeting will be held on Monday March 25th.

BAPTIST YOUTH FELLOWSHIP

Jerry Hevey, Jr., president of the Youth Fellowship of Massachusetts, is to be the guest of the Baptist Youth Fellowship at their Saturday night social, March 16, at 7:30 o'clock. He will conduct an evening of fun and fellowship with refreshments and everything that goes to make a good time.

Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, Jerry Hevey will speak to the Youth Fellowship and his message will be of particular interest to all young people.

LOCAL GIRL GRADUATED

Eastern Air Lines Flight Attendant

Miss Elizabeth Jane Thompson, of 25 Swan road, is one of 35 girls who have been graduated from Eastern Air Lines' School for Flight Attendants at Forest Hills, Long Island. She has been assigned to serve aboard a Silverliner of the Great Silver Fleet with headquarters in Atlanta, Georgia, according to an announcement made by John T. Stickney, superintendent of passenger service for the air line.

Miss Thompson, a native of Jersey City, New Jersey, attended schools in Hasbrouck Hgts., N. J. and Winchester, Oak Grove School, Vassalboro, Maine and Guilford College, Guilford, N. C. She was employed by Jamison Classics as a model before entering Eastern Air Lines' School for Flight Attendants.

COPRA

The arrival in the United States of shipments of Philippine copra, the dried meat of the coconut, has brought predictions of at least partial relief from the soap shortage.

Before the war the Philippines had more than 135 million coconut trees, and normally produced about 600,000 tons of copra a year to lead all other countries, says the National Geographic Society. Government experts estimate that the islands this year will export almost half of their normal output.

With Philippine sources cut off during the war, users of copra in the United States were dependent mostly on shipments from Ceylon, the Fiji and other British islands of the Pacific, and smaller quantities from the West Indies. Imports last year amounted to less than 100,000 tons.

Plenty of Copra, But . . .

Like the Philippines, the Netherlands Indies, another important source of copra, are still suffering the aftermath of war. Malaya, New Guinea, and the Solomon Islands were other substantial prewar producers.

Imports from the Philippines normally included shipments of coconut oil, pressed from the copra. This year the shipments will probably be limited to copra, as the Japanese destroyed many of the copra mills. About six million palms were killed or destroyed.

Warehousing and transportation, including inter-island shipment, have added to the difficulties of Philippine copra shippers. Many warehouses were destroyed or left roofless; others are needed for the army. Highway and railway bridges were destroyed in many places.

Better Transportation Sought

A possible solution to the internal Philippine transportation problem, under consideration, is the use of army trucks, and the employment of small naval vessels to carry copra cargoes from the various islands to major ports.

In addition to the making of soap, coconut oil is used in the manufacture of such products as candles, perfume, glycerin, and cosmetics. Most soaps contain 15 to 25 per cent of coconut oil, which makes soap lather freely, especially in hard water. Margarine manufacturers have had to rely almost wholly on cottonseed and other domestic vegetable oils rather than on coconut oil.

During the war, a large part of the copra and coconut oil imports into the United States went to military uses. Glycerin was in great wartime demand for the making of explosives, and coconut oil yields about 40 per cent more glycerin than domestic fats and oils.

WINCHESTER'S BASEBALL SCHEDULE OUT

Games With Melrose and Wakefield New Middlesex League Dates

Faculty Manager of Athletics Ray V. Hayward released Winchester High Schools baseball dates for the coming season, league games being played with Wakefield and Melrose High Schools, newly admitted to the Middlesex Circuit.

As usual Winchester will play two games with Woburn, which still is not a member of the league though a natural for membership, meeting the Tanners on May 15 at Winchester at 3:30 and playing a twilight game at Woburn June 6.

The schedule opens for Winchester at home on April 23 with Wakefield the attraction. Henry T. Knowlton will coach the Winchester team after a lapse of a year, during which he handled track. Last year's team, handled by Ray Hayward, finished third in the league. This year's prospects depend pretty much on whether there is any latent pitching in the squad which is certainly woefully lacking right now in experienced hurlers.

The graduation of Guy Washburn, best pitcher in the league a year ago, and also of "Chucker" Roche, another capable twirler with a world of stuff when right, leaves the locals in something of a pitching predicament and "Lefty" Gerbick's having left school hasn't helped any either.

Elsewhere the team looks fairly well off, but pitching is the hub of baseball and without it, especially in the schoolboy league, you don't go too far.

The schedule:

April
23 Wakefield
26 at Reading
30 Lexington

May
3 at Belmont
7 Stoneham
10 at Melrose
14 at Concord
15 Woburn*
17 at Wakefield
21 Reading
24 at Lexington
28 Belmont

June
4 Melrose
6 at Woburn* (twilight)
7 Concord

*Non league games.

ANNUAL CUB CONCERT

The Cubs of Pack 3 will hold their annual concert and entertainment Saturday night, March 16th, at 7:30 p. m., in the Parish House of the First Congregational Church. This is the third successive year that this group has offered their concert.

The band this year consists of 16 Cubs and 9 Scouts who have been rehearsing under the direction of Mr Wescott. The concert portion of the program will include seven numbers by the band.

In addition to the music, more than 60 Cubs in the Pack will take part in eight short skits. In past years, these little acts have proven equally entertaining to the pleasing performance of the band

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

The table of attendance and tardiness issued monthly by the School Department shows that Noonan School ranked first in both attendance and in lack of tardiness. The high school ranked 2nd in attendance, but only fifth in promptness. Lincoln School was second in tardiness rank. The summary for the month of February follows:

HIGH SCHOOL HAD POOR HOOP SEASON

Patterson's Scoring Record only Feature

Winchester High School closed its current basketball season two weeks ago with Concord, concluding a drab season with a record of seven wins in 19 games, and finishing 6th in the eight-club Middlesex League.

At times, the locals, coached by Athletic Director Henry Knowlton, looked as good as any team in the league, but the boys seemed to be "choke-ers" and couldn't produce against the stronger teams of the circuit.

Those who saw the team lose its opening game to Tech Tournament Newton, 35-47, had high hopes of a successful season, but the Red and Black then proceeded to drop four of its next five, including league engagements to Lexington and Belmont, and the jig was up so far as the local club's circuit chances went.

Winchester had as many scoring chances as most of the teams it played, enjoyed fully as many setups but seldom could two of its scoring players get into double figures at the same time. If Patterson was having a scoring spree, chances are every one else was below 10. Against the poorer clubs this didn't matter so much, for Patterson scored a lot of points in the telephone number games.

No one player, however, can get a team by against good competition, and so when only Patterson, Latham, or Olivier was up in the double-figure scoring bracket and no one else could make it, the other team with two boys hitting the doubles, or an evenly distributed scoring punch, romped home in front.

Winchester was really only outclassed once, at the Boston Garden, when it played Belmont, in one of the games of a schoolboy double-header. That afternoon the bottom fell out of the local game completely, the final score being 32-58. Belmont never was that much better than Winchester normally.

Winchester's first string team had Captain Patterson and either Jimmy Olivier or Twiggy Nolan in the fore-court with towering "Rog" Latham at Center and Pete Blanchard, Sammy Tibaldo and John West down back. Sammy Bellino, Switzer, Eddie Hicks and Amico were second team performers who filled in on the varsity.

At the close of the season the High School sports authorities announced that Captain "Pat" Patterson had run up 222 points for the season to break the Winchester record, or the record so far as it is known by the present Athletic Department.

This would probably constitute an all-time record for Winchester since none of the boys in the old "B. B." (before whistle) days scored anything like 222 points in a season. A guy in those rugged days of hoop play was lucky to get 10 points in a game, and it is interesting to wonder what shots like Francis Tansey, Abe Winer, "Red" Noble, Joe Matthews, "Harpy Fitz", Leon Tuck, "Doc" Hurd, Al Dover, "Clary" Mobbs, Frank Sullivan and Jack Sharon, to name only a few, would have done if their guards had to "beg pardon" before bumping them in a fast and furious game.

The Winchester seconds had a great season, winning 13 of 16 games. Regularly in the second squad were Bellino, Errico, Maffeo, Young, Switzer, Howard, Amico, Dickman, Pizzotta and Hill. Parker Flagg was manager. The summaries follow:

TROOP 3 NOTES

Troop 3 attended the Father and Daughter dinner on Tuesday, March 12 at the Congregational Church. Deborah Fish was in charge of decorations. The place cards for the Girl Scouts were circus animals and for the fathers circus wagons.

Sandra Thomason represented Poland, the country where the Friendship bags are going. Every Scout brought as many pennies as they are years old.

There was a magician who showed a few tricks.

The Girl Scout band played a few songs.

The guest of Troop 3 was Jeannie Chien, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Chien of Peiping. Jeannie was one of the first to arrive here after VJ Day on the USS. Lavaca with her mother Mrs. Chien (Helen Court, Radcliff 1911). Mr. Chien after graduating from Harvard in 1910 became Vice Minister of Finance in China and is now Chief Inspector of Salt Revenues there.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Vincent are vacationing in Florida.

SOCIALIZED MEDICINE

The response to the appeal for opinion issued by the Doctors, Dentists and Druggists of Winchester to our townspeople on the Wagner-Murray-Dingell Bill calling for socialized medicine has been widespread and voluminous. Coupons from the recent advertisements have been received at the Star Office in great numbers. The signatures given to the petitions placed in Winchester stores has been equally large. There seems no question but that the vast majority of Winchester people oppose this bill. Winchester, at least, desires its medical care kept out of the hands of our great Washington Rulers. They wish to use their own doctors and their own hospitals. To have Washington tell them what they are going to do along this line does not appear to suit them.

The coupons and petitions will be sent to our Representatives in Washington and there is little doubt but what they will receive a clear idea of what Winchester at least desires in this matter.

It is not too late for you to send in your coupon or sign one of the many petitions placed about town.

THE NEW "NEW DEAL" POLICIES

To the Editor of the Star:

Wages can go up—maybe—maybe not

Prices of materials must not go up—maybe they can—mayle they cannot

The only sure thing is that the "New Deal" politicians and their friends must be taken care of.

Good luck, Mr. Truman!

What a real policy you are operating under!

ANSWER LOOKED FOR BEFORE LONG

People's Editor:

I haven't seen it mentioned yet but I'm wondering when the great thinkers and the mother-knows-best planners in Washington will catch up with the next question.

When, under their divine guidance, corporations have increased labor's wages and OPA has held the lines on prices, there will be no profits, no dividends, and perhaps no bond interest; a few losses, perhaps, but never mind that.

The country will still have a 25 billion dollar budget and a 255 billion debt to service, and taxes will still be raised (mainly) from corporate and individual income taxes.

With no corporation profits and no individual income except wages there will be very little or no revenue. Then what? Greenbacks, or will labor unions take over the government financing? I hope the great thinkers give us their answer soon.

VETERANS HOUSING

Housing for veterans here in Winchester seems to have come out in the open if it is true, as reported in the Boston papers this week, that the Ginn property on Bacon street, by decree of the Middlesex Superior Court, may be used for veterans in the coming year. However it appears that the Ginn mansion will only accommodate a baker's dozen or so of veterans and their wives and thus that even making that particular property available will do but little to lessen the housing shortage here in town. (About 2500 persons from Winchester were in the armed forces in World War II according to the 1945 Town Report recently delivered).

It may be of interest to Winchester veterans and their families to learn that there is something that can be done by them if they are really anxious to have more housing made available locally. Something of what can be done may even be done over this present week-end, and before the annual Town Meeting is called to order Monday evening, March 18.

On Jan. 30 Governor Tobin signed Chapter 13 of the Acts of 1946 entitled "An Act To Provide Housing For Veterans of World War II." This act took effect upon its passage. Under provisions of the Act cities and towns in Massachusetts have the power to engage in specified housing activities for the benefit of veterans for five years.

Many cities and towns under this Act have already applied for excess temporary war housing under the Federal Government, by way through the Federal Public Housing Authority, is giving away for use for temporary housing for veterans where needed. The city or town has to provide a site and connect the buildings with utilities, and it can cover its own expenditures by rental charge to veterans. Winchester could conceivably get its share of such housing if it were to act quickly. To date, there is no application in for Winchester, as I was informed by the Federal Public Housing Authority at 24 School street, Boston, last week.

About two weeks ago I provided the Board of Selectmen with copies of Chapter 13, above referred to. The Selectmen by letter informed me that they have turned the material over to our Town Planning Board. On Monday night the Planning Board may make recommendations to the Town Meeting. Among possible recommendations under the Warrant could be one for a committee to investigate housing for veterans here in Winchester. The appointment of such a committee would seem to be the necessary first step to be taken before the Town either applied for any temporary housing or took any other steps under said Chapter 13. The warrant for Monday's Town Meeting was closed on Jan. 28 so that there is a real limit as to what aspects of housing can be acted upon on Monday.

It seems a shame to me, however, that there is not more awareness in town of this new Chapter 13 and of what it could mean to Winchester veterans if the Town was disposed to assist them. The procurement of the temporary housing described above is only one of the possible things which a Town could do under Chapter 13.

The housing problem is a real one as everyone is aware who has a veteran in his family or among his friends.

Veterans and others desiring to do something about housing are therefore urged to make known to their town meeting representatives in their own precincts what their wishes are and to act before Monday night if they want any action this year. There won't be another annual town meeting after Monday night until 1947 and it takes a lot of signatures to call a special town meeting if interested persons let Monday night's meeting pass all discussion of this subject.

Sincerely,
Brenda M. Dissel

THE ROVING REPORTER

To the Editor of the Star:

Condition of the Roads

I recently had occasion to visit a number of surrounding towns and I found that in these communities the frost has caused a great deal of damage to the roads. I have been particularly impressed with the way the roads in Winchester have stood up. They are in much better condition than in other communities. Much credit is due to the construction carried on by our Highway Department under our Superintendent, Parker Holbrook. It pays in the long run to do good work.

Pollution of the River

For the last week a considerable foam has been accumulating on the Aberjona River below the dam, indicating that something was polluting the stream. On notification, the State Department of Health sent an inspector who went with Superintendent Harry W. Dotten over the upper reaches of the stream in Woburn. There they found where the Woburn sewer enters the State sewer the sewage overflowed into the river. The State Department of Health has notified the City of Woburn that this condition must be correct ed at once or legal steps will be taken to protect the stream. The Police Department was called on to take pictures of the condition for further record.

Winter Pond

Winter Pond is full again. It is expected that it will run over in the early spring. This has not occurred since 1933 when the pond overflowed its bank and the following year an overflow drain was installed. This proves beyond doubt that when we have a series of wet years Winter Pond will be full but in dry times we may expect low water, although rearranging the street drainage as is planned will help to a large extent.

AN AUXILIARY FIREMAN LOOKS AT ARTICLE 23

To the Editor of the Star:

It is pleasing to learn that the Finance Committee favors one day off in six for their efficient policemen, and it is hoped that it will be granted.

But the Finance Committee failed to agree with the firemen's request for a 70 hour week in place of the existing 84 hour plan, and I voluntarily want to call attention to some aspects of the case, in the hope of aiding both sides.

While it is true that the firemen are not extinguishing fires all the time, it is likewise true that they daily perform many duties that the public knows nothing about, such as regular and thorough house cleaning; cleaning and polishing apparatus; washing, testing, drying and storing hose; washing windows and walls; interior painting, tending the boilers which furnish the heat and hot water for the police station and firehouse; washing and recharging many extinguishers brought in by the public; testing and maintaining the fire alarm system; inspecting, testing and overhauling all the fire engines; maintaining constant vigil at the signal desk, etc.

Many citizens have been surprised to learn that the off-duty platoon must answer alarms except when the men have the 24 hour lay-off and then they cannot leave town without permission.

Although the night platoon sleeps in the firehouse, Mr. and Mrs. Public do not know that Arlington and Woburn alarms ring in our headquarters, so that broken sleep is by far the order at night.

In addition to response to off-duty alarms which add to the 84 hour week, many of our firemen have given freely of their own time in training the Auxiliary men during the last five years, and also to teaching Boy Scout courses in firemanship.

Any "Auxie" will tell you that he, too sleeps with the expectation of hearing an alarm at night. Although the Auxiliary attendance at fires is very god, it would be nearly 100 per cent if the Town had a more extensive system of audible signals.

Pension experts state that the average age of firemen is 56 years and that very few of them live long after retirement. Firemen are also subject to frequent and serious illnesses as a result of their peculiarly nervous and exciting occupation.

Even when the men on duty are free to read or play games, or when in their own homes enjoying family life, we learn that their relaxation is not complete, for interruptions are frequent. Aren't we lucky to have them willing to serve us?

In Brookline there are 407 inhabitants for each fireman employed, but in Winchester there are people served by each fireman. The nearest to our ratio is Milton with 778 to one fireman. Other cities and towns nearby, rate in between.

We are all proud of Winchester's acknowledged leadership in the municipal management field, but Andover, Belmont, Braintree, Cambridge, Everett, Malden, Medford, Milton, Methuen, Norwood, Peabody, Somerville, Stoneham and Wakefield have all given their firemen the 70 hour week, with Cambridge making it 67 hours in the end. Let's not be trailers.

If the Town had had to hire firemen to perform the five year's duty given by the Auxiliaries, it would have paid a great deal more than the $5000 cost of extra men to provide the 70 hour week.

There has been some criticism about the recent information which was mailed to voters, unsigned. It is entirely truthful and was composed under the guidance of an eminent local attorney who favors the firemen's plea for shorter hours.

I hope every town meeting member, including the Finance Committee will vote for the 70 hour week for our fire laddies.

T. Parker Clarke,
Deputy Chief,
Auxiliary Fire Department
March 14, 1946

CORRECTION

The article sent the Star for publication last week incorrectly stated that the Navy Cross and Citation had been awarded to Capt. Edward C. Craig, USN, of 7 Grassmere avenue for his work in the design and installation of magnetic mine countermeasures.

The decoration and citation which were awarded Capt. Craig were those of the Legion of Merit.

WHY?

To the Editor of the Star:

The Finance Committee has recommended favorable action on the Police Department's request for one day off in six. This action, undoubtedly, will meet with approval at our town meeting since our Police Department has long afforded the town a high grade of service at a minimum cost.

But this committee also has recommended unfavorable action on a request by our Fire Department for a 70 hour week in place of the present 84 "test of endurance." Why the apparent paradox? Why recommend favorable action for a 56 hour week department and deny the request of another department to drop 14 hours from an 84 hour week?

BAND INSTRUMENT TEACHERS WANTED!

March 14, 1946

To the Editor of the Star:

The Winchester School Department has done a great thing by introducing bands into the Winchester primary schools. The best time to start learning a musical instrument is certainly at this early age. Mr. Fred M. Felmet, in charge of the primary school bands, has been extremely busy rounding up his band members and obtaining instruments for them; the bands are now rehearsing regularly.

Mr. Felmet feels, as I do, that such band work should when possible be supplemented by outside study on the instrument. Several parents have already approached him for recommendations for teachers to give their children private lessons, and some time in the future a definite program may be undertaken to see that as many pupils as possible are getting outside instruction.

But before any such program, or even the recommendations he has already made, can be undertaken fairly, Mr. Felmet should have as complete a list as is possible of local teachers of musical instruments. The local factor is especially important for children of this young age since very few could undertake outside-of-town lessons easily. Working with Mr. Felmet, I have been trying to locate all the Winchester teachers I could, but I have found only one teacher of one instrument who is willing and able to take on several pupils. The purpose of this letter is to contact some more local musical instrument teachers. The extent of the shortage can be shown by the fact that I, a mere chemical engineer who can ineptually play clarinet, have taken on four pupils in the last few weeks.

So if you know someone who can play a musical instrument well enough to give elementary lessons, and has the time, please contact me at 326 Main street, Winchester, or at Winchester 0848-R. At present the band consists of trumpets, trombones, flutes, clarinets, saxophones and drums; more instruments may be added later.

Mr. Felmet and I, as well as the kids, will thank you heartily for whatever help you can give us.

James B. Weaver,
326 Main street

TRIBITE WELL DESERVED

To the Editor of the Star:

I was glad to see the tribute to Dr. Edwin Bradford Robinson, of Hollyoke, in last week's "Star." It was well-deserved. Dr. Robinson's 44 year pastorate in a down-town church is remarkable, not only for its length, but for its vitality. Few men could have carried the load which has been his.

Not only has he been active in his pastorate, but he has maintained a helpful contact with the students of Amherst, and has served the Congregational denomination on many commissions.

Incidentally, he was reared in the First Congregational Church of Winchester. His mother, Mrs. Mary B. Robinson, of Vine street, was the oldest living member of the Church at the time of her death. His sister, Miss Alice L. Robinson, is a Winchester resident.

WINCHESTER GOES WELL OVER TOP IN RED CROSS DRIVE

Winchester went well over its quota of $14,000 in its 1946 Red Cross Fund campaign, raising a total of $23,342.40 to date and with additional gifts still coming in. On Sunday, volunteer workers at the headquarters of the Campaign in the Police Station, and over 600 teams of volunteer solicitors joined to form one of the most successful and concerted drives that the town has known.

Under the chairmanship of Raymond Strawbridge, more than half of the money raised in Winchester this year came from the homes, and the additional amount came from special gifts and business firms.

The office force, under the leadership of Mrs. Eloise Graves, laid the groundwork for giving out the solicitors' kits, receiving and tabulating returns so that drive figures were available at all times. Assisting Mrs. Graves were Mesdames Herbert Kelley, Raymond Strawbridge, Stanley McNeilly, Clark Collins, Clarence McDavitt, Frank Hawkins, Ralph Swan, Clifton Linnell, F. Milne Blanchard, Ruth Hilton, Frederick Ford, Philip Wadsworth, Vincent Farnsworth, Charles Wansker, Lyndon Burnham, Adna Smalley George Hayden, Edward Kuypers, Walter Seager, Richard Clark, William Hohlich, Alfred Higgins, James M. Beal, George Hammond, Carrick Kennedy, Frank D. Madge, Arthur Cutter, and Miss Caroline Kellogg.

Miss Helen M. Monroe served as treasurer of the Campaign, and assisted by Miss Isabel L. Copland, Mrs. Robert E. Faye, Miss Esma Hacket, Miss Harriet Miller, Mrs. Amy E. Pond Mrs. Shepard Pond, Miss Martha Salice, Miss Alida Robinson, Miss Oriana Wingate, Dean Duncan and Frank T. Olmstead.

In addition to these workers, hundreds of men and women in the town volunteered their service on Sunday and visited homes, bringing in their kits to make final returns, and put Winchester over the top in the drive.

The Fire Department answered ten alarms on Wednesday, all but one for grass fires, scattered through the town. The other was a stiff fire at the town dump.

FUDGE—FROST

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stanley Fudge at 19 Fairmount street, Winchester, was the scene of a wedding last evening, when Mr. Fudge's brother, Arthur Samuel Fudge, Jr., of Somerville, took as his bride Mrs. Celia Moore Frost of Cambridge. About 70 immediate relatives, close business associates and mutual friends witnessed the ceremony which was performed by the Rev. Paul Harmon Chapman in an attractive setting of spring flowers and candlelight.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart Chaffe of Winchester attended the couple. Blonde Mrs. Chaffe, wearing a dress-maker suit of soft grey-beige wool, with green accessories, fruit motif hat, and camelia corsage, was in attractive contrast to the brunette bride who was becomingly clad in a soft wood-green wool dressmaker suit, with an orchid corsage and hat of baby orchids.

Leaving the bride's young daughter to be entertained by her new Winchester cousins for a few days, the happy couple departed for a honeymoon in New York City, where they are to be feted by the newest Mrs Fudge's prominent aunt, Dr Marion E. Moore.

ORR EXHIBIT AT LIBRARY

That is an excellent exhibition of water colors which Forest Orr of Winslow road is showing currently at the Library Art Gallery under the auspices of the Winchester Art Association. Mr. Orr is a member of the Association and so are the ladies who have a nice, though small, accompanying exhibition of ceramics. Rowena Hallowell, Edith Turner, Carol Nickerson and Margaret Bailey show some very finished pieces, such as cups and saucers, vases, plates, bowls, boxes and costume jewelry.

Mr. Orr's pictures are first of all well drawn. In no sense photographic, they still have the lines and proportion, necessary to make them true to life without sacrificing the artistic.

His "Park Street Spire", seen across a welter of roofs and chimneys, is an excellent example of masterly draftsmanship with a wholly artistic approach. The same is true of Tremont Street, Boston, beautifully proportioned with its long clean lines and fine shadows, the whole surmounted by the familiar Parker House sign.

Leading in local interest are two fine snow studies, one "The 6:25 a. m. at Wedgemere", a strikingly artistic treatment of a homely, yet picturesque scene. Commuters trudge along Bacon street through the snow toward the ramp leading to the station which stretches long and dark and snow-capped, its gloom cut by a single bright spot of light from the open door. The reflection of the station on the little pond in front of it and the deep blue of the sky, in which hangs a golden crescent moon, add to the attractiveness of this painting.

The other local subject is "Looking Across Wedge Pond". In a snowy setting one looks past two wholly natural trees from Palmer street across the ice to the Congregational Church. A hockey game is in progress on the ice and the figures are full of life and motion, their poses being especially natural.

Many will like Mr. Orr's study of historic Faneuil Hall Market, another instance of the artist's ability to combine faithful reproduction with atmosphere. The cars, pedestrians, advertising signs and snow in the city are all beautifully handled with a deft touch that lightens keen appreciation of locale with a helpful imagination.

All Mr. Orr's paintings show something with a definite firm grasp of the scene to be portrayed and the technical skill to reproduce his conception of it. Call it imagination, if you will. It tones all the pictures in the show at the Library. Each one is full of fine feeling for the subject.

Take "Fog in Ash Cove". It is a real gem with its picturesque small weather-beaten wharf buildings, hoist and power-boats moored alongside. Across the water, boats and highland loom spectral through the mist. The whole is full of atmosphere, yet no more so than "The Crossing", which is in sharp contrast with its warmth of reflected light, color and buildings in a rural setting looking down upon a grade railway crossing with warning signposts under a tall tree.

The haunting spirit of autumn with its grays, oranges and purples is in "Across the Marsh", while "View of Boston Common" teems with life and color with its splashing fountain and trees in gay foliage. Once again the naturalness of the figures in this study strikes even the casual observer.

"Summer Morning", very luminous and sensitively painted, is another of those quaint little studies Mr. Orr is full of charm; in sharp contrast from the virile "V-J Day at Bailey's Beach, a fine marine, which has the observer look past jagged red-brown cliffs across white-capped deep blue water, shaded with turquoise, to the spot where the sea meets a wind-blown sky.

Another colorful study is "The Brook", with its turbulent blue water, touched with greens and yellows bubbling along through rugged tree-grown banks with two fishermen leaving a parked automobile in the background.

"Morning Tide," with its busy clam-diggers, is a fine study in blues and purples, "February Afternoon" another appealing snow-scene with its fresh cut logs and weather-beaten building in a wooded setting. "Late November Afternoon," with its squarish little houses set in trees is nicely lighted and you can almost smell the salt on that pile of lobster-traps huddled together under some trees.

You may have gathered that we like Mr. Orr's show. We do! See it while it is at the library. It is open to the public.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

The Father-Daughter Dinner held at the First Congregational Church on March 12th, 34th birthday of the Girl Scout organization, was acclaimed most enthusiastically by the fathers as well as by the girls themselves. After the Girl Scout Promise was repeated by the girls in unison, and grace said by Dr. Chidley, Mrs. Clarence Roberts, Girl Scout commissioner, welcomed the fathers, introduced the troop leaders with words of appreciation, and explained the importance of Girl Scouting nationally and internationally. Mrs. Barbara Metcalf, executive director of Girl Scouts in Winchester, after giving the fathers preliminary instruction, led songs and rounds particularly popular with Girl Scouts.

One of the outstanding memories of the banquet will be the sight of the eleven girls garbed in costumes of as many different countries coming onto the stage to deliver the Juliette Low pennies of their respective troops, while the two Polish girls, also in native garb, were being presented with the 75 or more Friendship Bags made by the Winchester Girl Scouts.

Mrs. George Cary then introduced Frank Lane, well-known magician, who appeared to enjoy baffling the audience as much as it enjoyed being baffled.

A particularly interesting feature of the banquet was the individual table decorations, though unfortunately the guests in general saw few besides those gracing their own tables. There were foreign flags and dolls, one table having a large doll dressed as Juliette Low, the founder of Girl Scouts in this country. Another table had a miniature Camp Joy (the Winchester Girl Scout camp) with a tiny replica of the Swiss chalet given to the Girl Scouts by Mrs. James Storrow as a headquarters for international Scouting conferences. There was one centerpiece devoted to a circus, which possibly the most appropriate of all was the band table, ornamented by small band instruments.

The Band exhibited a great deal of skill as well as whole-hearted participation in its announced program, and a drum routine by Joan Lanihar, Mary Ann Davis and Judy Harmon, as well as Taps, played on the trumpet by Ruth Halm as a signal that the party was over, were delightful, adding considerably to the pleasure of the evening.

"Brownie Scout Troop 29 has been very busy learning about health. We have gone to the Board of Health where Miss Gillespie told us about the Dental Clinic, Well-Baby Clinic, contagious diseases, and how the milk for Winchester is tested. Then we went to the Winchester Public Library where Miss Mead and Miss Noyes showed us how to find books in the dictionary catalog, especially books on health. Afterwards some of the girls joined one of the Reading Clubs.

A week later the Brownie Troop went to the Locatelli Building and saw the Home Nursing Room, and, thanks to Mrs. O'Leary, we learned how to wash our hands the right way, and also how to make disposal bags to use when we are sick. We found out that our mothers could take the Home Nursing Course. Mrs. O'Leary told us there are three kinds of Public Health Nurses in Winchester: the Board of Health Nurse, District Nurses and School Nurse.

Across the hall is the Winchester District Nursing Office where Mrs. Eaton, the Secretary, told us what happened when our mother called Win. 0730 for the District Nurse to come to our homes. Our Health Notebooks are showing us how foods helps us to grow. Now our troop is collecting canned food to send over to Europe to feed the starving European people.

Miss Elizabeth B. Rutherford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Rutherford, 16 Winslow road, was initiated recently by the Eta chapter of Alpha Xi Delta sorority at Syracuse University. Miss Rutherford, enrolled as a freshman in the School of Nursing, is also a member of the Chapel choir.

Winchester went well over its $14,000 quota this year, and raised some $23,342.40 to carry on its local Red Cross work and services. This is an achievement and it its townspeople are proud of it. But full credit should go directly to the men and women of Winchester, because THEY gave and made the goal possible.

Mr. Raymond Strawbridge, chairman of the drive this year, has explained that in other years, the greater percentage of money for the Red Cross drives came from the stores and business firms and large gifts. This year, while possibly the most appropriate of all was the band table, ornamented by small band instruments.

The Band exhibited a great deal of skill as well as whole-hearted participation in its announced program, and a drum routine by Joan Lanihar, Mary Ann Davis and Judy Harmon, as well as Taps, played on the trumpet by Ruth Halm as a signal that the party was over, were delightful, adding considerably to the pleasure of the evening.

BOY SCOUTS TO SPONSOR SPRING GLEE CLUB CONCERT

Plans have been completed whereby the Spring Concert of the Mystic Glee Club this year will be given for the benefit of the Fells-land Council No. 242 of the Boy Scouts of America. This is in keeping with the policy of the Club to lend its talents each year to some worthy organization in Winchester. The Fellsland Council serves Medford, Stoneham, Woburn, Burlington and Winchester.

May 10th has been selected as the date and the place will be the High School Auditorium. And judging from the large number of recruits back from the Services this year, this concert will be the finest ever given by the Club.

At the regular rehearsal Monday night, President Carl Wood appointed the following committee to collaborate with a similar committee from the Boy Scouts to guarantee the success of the concert: Benjamin T. Marshall, Jr., Chairman, Roland H. Parker, Lindsay H. Caldwell, Adin B. Bailey and William H. Stephenson.

HOBBY SHOW

With a hobby show, display of handicrafts, and a talk on the "Romance of Herbs" The Business and Professional Women's Club held its March meeting last Wednesday evening at the Congregational Church. Mrs. Frances Williams of Highland avenue was the speaker, and told of the many uses of herbs in flavoring, seasoning, in plain and fancy cooking, pointing out the joy of having an herb garden. She also presented an exhibit of the many herbs, their uses and highlighted her exhibit with many tasty dishes.

Miss Gertrude Davis, president, presided, and Mrs. Ruth Hilton, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting.

Among the hobby exhibits were painted wooden bowls by Miss Janet Copland; a few of her 400 pitcher collection by Miss Alice Crawford; silvercraft, beautifully displayed in a half-open jewel box by Miss Ruth Nelson; pottery and a collection of miniature bottles by Mrs. Charles Howe; pottery by Miss Edna Hatch, who also told how she fashioned the charming animals and jewelry which she displayed; scrap books by Miss Davis, who explained that her mother had started her on this hobby by amusing her as a child with the making of books from favorite clippings and poem; cut glass and Wedgewood, Mrs. Edmund Sanderson; afghans, Mrs. Robert E. Fay; hooked rugs, Miss Cassie Sandy, strikingly beautiful Russian Jewelry, spoons and Russian Church cloths, Miss Nina Richardson; books on the fun of Hobbies, loaned by the Winchester Public Library.

WINCHESTER SISTERS FLEW TO MOTHER'S BEDSIDE

Monday afternoon at 2:30 Mrs. Francis J. Higgins of 893 Main street and her sister, Miss Mary O'Rourke, left New York on one of the new Constellation planes of the T. W. A. Company en route for Reenbee Lispole, County Kerry, Ireland, and the bedside of their seriously ill mother, Mrs. Ellen Ahern. They were at their destination at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Their trip wasn't accomplished as easy as reading this article. Much had to be done in a short time after they received the message telling them of their mother's illness. They had contemplated a trip to Ireland for some time, but had planned to go in more leisurely fashion.

With the help of "Jim" McGrath of the J. F. McGrath Travel Agency in Woburn the usual multitudinous details were effectively stream-lined; Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers, member of Congress from Lowell, aiding in the speedy arrangement for passports, and Mr. Joseph Brennan, the Irish Consulate in Boston, arranging for the visas, keeping his office open after hours to help. Postmaster Vincent C. Ambrose of the local office had a hand in speeding things up where the mails were necessary by using such special means as were at his disposal.

It was just another of those heart-warming instances of helping out in time of trouble that happen once in a while to revive your flagging faith in human nature.

COINS

Before starting to turn out the new Roosevelt dimes for distribution in February, says the National Geographic Society, United States Mints had produced three and a half billion of the small silver coins, the bulk of them since the first World War. That output would form a march of dimes 40,000 miles long.

The coinage law of April 2, 1792 provided for the making of silver "dimes" at the Philadelphia Mint, which was established by the same Act of Congress. But the actual coinage of dimes did not begin until 1796.

The first dime bore the draped bust of Liberty with long loose hair, two side locks drawn back and tied with ribbon. The eagle stood on a rock, with head turned right and wings displayed, within a wreath of olive and palm branches.

Production Difficulties Encountered

The design is thought to have been the work of Joseph Wright, first draftsman and die sinker at the Mint. The appointment was made by President Washington, whose portrait Wright had painted two or three times.

Subsequent dimes were variations of the same theme. Sixteen stars were added in 1797, but the number on the 1798 dime was reduced to thirteen.

The Mint began the coinage of silver with the making of dollars on Oct. 15, 1794. The early Government had experienced difficulties in producing money. Engravers had to be brought from abroad; even the machinery and the first metal used in making the American coins were imported.

Every year since the Mint was established, with one exception, there has been a ceremony called "trial of the coins." This year it was set for Feb. 13 and 14, with the Assay Commission going to Philadelphia to test the purity and weight of 108,321 silver coins valued at $37,936.55.

Owners Furnished Silver

Coins in the early days of the republic had to be made from personally-owned bullion, household silver, foreign coins, etc., since there were no silver and gold mines in the country at that time. The owner took his possessions to the Mint, had them melted and minted, and took home his own metal, transformed into currency.

The need for coins was so great that the coining was done without charge, thus originating the term "free coinage." Tradition says that George Washington was the first customer at the newly established Mint, and that his silver spoons were converted into half-dimes, a coin now replaced by the nickel.

At Alexander Hamilton's suggestion, the trial of the coins in the United Sates was patterned on the "trial of the pyx" in England. There the coins were collected in a pyx, or chest, in the Pyx Chapel in Westminster Abbey. When the chest was full, it was brought out, and the coins tried by a jury made up of the Goldsmiths' Company.

Originally the trial of the coins in the United States was a very solemn occasion; if the coins reserved for assay were found wanting in purity or weight, the officers of the Mint were, according to the law, "to suffer death." It appears that the Mint had a perfect record for its coins, since this penalty was never invoked. Today the ceremony is largely a matter of tradition.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON NEWS PENETRATES OCEAN DEPTHS

Last week news of the forthcoming Florence Crittenton annual luncheon was being whispered among the inhabitants of the lobster colonies of Maine. The proximity of the affair due to take place next Friday, March 22 at 1 P. M. at the Unitarian Church, caused such commotion that mothers had to restrain daughters and grandfathers had to caution their sons so great was the rush to the lobster pots in the hope that each might be chosen to go to the gala affair.

As in every contest there will be many disappointments but it is the expectation of the committee that the best men will win and will be served as lobster newburg to the ladies of the Winchester Circle and their friends on next Friday afternoon.

The milliners have made adequate provision both in Winchester and the rest of Metropolitan Boston for the anticipated yen in each gue ts heart for a new spring bonnet to grace the occasion.

In fact the weather itself has collaborated in the preparations by giving the winter jaded nerves of Winchester's women a spring tonic with the lovely warm days of this week.

WOMEN'S ALLIANCE

On Tuesday March 12, Mrs. J. J. Mechelen opened her attractive home for the March meeting of the Women's Alliance of the Unitarian Church.

The business meeting was called by the president, Mrs. Henry E. Worcester at 2 o'clock. The speaker for the afternoon was Rev. Edward Cahill, Associate Director of the Unitarian Service Committee which has led an outstanding fight for humanity in its effort to relieve the suffering of thousands, particularly in Europe during the past six years.

It has also been foremost in sending clothing and food to the starving European nations.

Mr. Cahill told in a most interesting manner of the formation and constructive work done by the committee and stressed the point that we must not relax our efforts as after six years of practically starvation diet the peoples of Europe need our help until such time as they can harvest sufficient to feed themselves.

A social hour followed. Tea was served by the tea committee; Mrs. Philip Wadsworth and Mrs. Richard D. Bolster, chairmen.

The pourers were Mrs. George H. Reed and Mrs. Theodore C. Browne past presidents.

HARD LUCK

Virginia Farrar of Myrtle street, former aviation machinist's mare in the WAVES, recently discharged after service in the Pacific Theatre, cashed in her veteran's bonus check Tuesday forenoon at a local bank and then made a small purchase at the Ames store.

When she got down to Converse place she found her wallet with nearly all of her bonus money, Navy pass, jeep license, pictures and all the keys to her luggage was missing.

She retraced her steps carefully and searched everywhere but to no avail. She will be grateful for any information concerning her property. Her ad appears in another column of the Star.

WHICH?

A program involving the development and extension of voluntary plans such as Blue Cross, Blue Shield and others, supported and endorsed by the American Medical Association.

OR

A plan of regimented medical care directed by a politically controlled bureau and supported by a withholding tax on wages.

The Doctors, Dentists and Druggists of Winchester urge you to register your opposition to the new Wagner, Murray, Dingell Bill on the grounds that--

It will interfere with doctor-patient relationships;

It will impair the present high quality of medical care;

Observance of the "Week" is sponsored nationally by the National Organization for Public Health Nursing, a voluntary organization which helps communities establish and maintain a high standard of public health nursing service, and of which the Winchester District Nursing Association is a member agency.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Marsters of Washington street are moving to Milwaukee where Mr. Marsters has been appointed agent for the Frisco Railroad.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

March 21 Meeting

"What the League Stands For" will be the subject of the afternoon on Thursday, March 21 at 2:30. Mrs. Henry Dellicker of 15 Grove street will be the hostess.

The proposed state and national programs will be fully discussed. Mrs. Malcolm Nichols, Mrs. Wilbert Underwood and Mrs. Phillip Woodward will explain different program items which form the basis for the 1946-1947 year's activities. Never has the League's work been so important. Rumors and baseless gossip can only be refuted by education and knowing the facts. All members are urged to attend this meeting and bring their interested friends.

EPIPHANY WOMEN WELCOME NEW DISTRICT LEADER

Mrs. Richard Evarts of Cambridge was the post-luncheon speaker at the weekly Tuesday meeting of the Epiphany Church Service League, March 12. It was her first visit to the Winchester group since she became head of women's activities in the North Suburban District, comprising 20 parishes. However, Mrs. Evarts told the League that for her Epiphany was a familiar place, since as a young girl learning church school work in order to help out in her own Cambridge parish she had been advised by her rector to go over to Winchester and observe the work of Deaconess Helen Lane in the Epiphany kindergarten. Mrs. Evarts' hearers thought of the proverbial bread returning after many days when their young learner of other days came back their leader.

Mrs. Evarts brought news of diocesan leaders' plans for the parishes, in furthering women's activities in the Woman's Auxiliary's, 4 fields of church loyalty, world service, and personal growth: service, fellowship, study, and worship. Tangible service was before her eyes, as her hearers worked on with the shirts they were making for the Red Cross or the pretty little girls' dresses they were finishing for church missions in remote corners of the United States.

Mrs. Evarts brought suggestions of the diocesan reader, Mrs. Richardson, for Lenten reading, Epiphany was pleased to find that their own librarian, Mrs. R. E. L. Meehan, had already placed copies in the Epiphany Library.

March will bring to the Diocese of Massachusetts two national leaders of the Women's Auxiliary from the New York headquarters, and both Mrs. Evarts and Mrs. Harold H. Blanchard, emphasized the link with the whole church which Winchester women will find in the all-day meeting at the Cathedral of St. Paul, Boston, March 20.

HUSBANDS GUESTS AT THE FINAL PLAY REVIEW

The Play Review series of 1946 will go out in a gale of laughter, Friday evening, March 22, whether March is blowing big guns that day or behaving lamblike. For Mrs. Adelo Hoes Lee has chosen for the last review that mirthful comedy of sub-deb energy, patriotism, epistolary fervor, and managerial ability, "Dear Ruth." The Tuesday Luncheon Group's one-woman band, Mrs. A. R. Corthell, free from all Petrillo trammels, will have the piano speak in the same sprightly tone. And the presence of husbands, who couldn't share the afternoon reviews, in itself makes the last play an event.

Single admissions will be available for "Dear Ruth" and may be paid at the door of the parish hall.

The Tuesday Luncheon Group celebrating the completion of their fourth successful year of presenting Mrs. Lee's Broadway reviews, ask all to remain as their guests after the play, to have a cup of coffee, to meet Mrs. Lee, and to visit. Mrs. F. W. Aseltine, Jr., is chairman of the committee, assisted by Mrs. Hollis Ayer, Mrs. Allan Farquhar, Mrs. Roland Fletcher, Mrs. E. Craig Greiner, Mrs. Robert Johnson, and Mrs. John Page.

Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer and Mrs. Maxwell McCreery will pour.

WEEK-END FIRES

The first alarm of fire over the past week-end was a "still" at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon for a grass fire at the rear of 408 Washington street.

Sunday afternoon at 1:45 there was a grass fire on Holton street with a second grass fire at 2 o'clock on Sylvester avenue. The last run of the day was at 4:20 for a chimney fire at the home of Dr. Harrison L. Parker on Mt. Vernon street.

BUILDING PERMITS

The Building Commissioner has issued permits to alter buildings on the following property for the week ending Thursday, March 7:

Reshingle dwelling at 7 Wolcott Terrace

Reshingle dwelling at 31 Lebanon street.

HAITI

Haiti, scene of unrest following the overthrow of its wartime president by an army group, is no stranger to revolution. On-again-off-again internal strife began virtually with the establishment of this first Negro republic in 1820.

Gradually mounting, it reached a climax between 1911 and 1915. "Ballots by bullets" brought no less than seven luckless presidents into office at the capital, Port-au-Prince, during those four years. Then the United States Marines took the situation in hand. Haiti, smallest and most densely populated Western Hemisphere republic, became a temporary ward of Uncle Sam.

Lying southeastward across strategic Windward Passage from Cuba, Haiti occupies the western third of Hispaniola, only island in the world which is the home of two sovereign nations, points out the National Geographic Society. Haiti's share, fertile, but largely mountainous, covers 10,248 square miles, nearly matching Maryland's area. On it, three million French-speaking Negro descendants of African slaves compose a farm state three times as populous as Maryland excluding Baltimore. In the eastern two-thirds of the island, the Dominican Republic is crowded enough with little more than half as many people, Spanish-speaking.

Won Freedom by Whipping Army of Napoleon

Discovering the island late in 1492, Columbus established a Spanish settlement, the first European colony in the New World, in the island's northwest corner. Having wiped out the Indians by 1510, the colonists began importing Negroes as slaves. In 1697 Spain was forced to cede the Haitian portion to France, whose colonists then exploited the slaves for a full century and grew rich in the sugar trade.

After several futile uprisings, the Africans succeeded in 1803 in routing not only the white colonists but an army sent by Napoleon as well. Haiti was free, the second American nation to break its European fetters.

The first leaders of free Haiti were ex-slaves. After 1820, however, control of the government lay with the small elite class. These were natives of mixed French and Negro blood, often Paris-educated capable of speaking and writing pure French, the language of state records. The Negro masses, in contrast, spoke Creole French, a written form of which has developed only in very recent years.

Overpopulation stimulated revolutions and banditry, leading to intervention by the United States in 1915. Constructive measures for improving health, sanitation, education and trade were imposed. Although the occupation naturally was resented, it brought a peaceful era that saw much of the developments of the port-capital into a modern city of 125,000 people and the building of 1,800 miles of improved motor roads. Cap Haitien and Gonaives, next largest communities after Port-au-Prince, number 20,000 people each, thus emphasizing the republic's rural character.

Elections Resumed in 1930

In 1930 national elections were resumed, and in 1934 the Marines were withdrawn. Uncle Sam continued to provide Haiti with financial counsel and bought Haitian products to maintain essential foreign trade. Throughout World War II, which Haiti entered immediately after the Pearl Harbor attack, the republic's coffee, bananas, sugar, sisal, rubber, corn, rice, beans and pharmacopoeia helped relieve Allied shortages.

The average Haitian peasant tills his plot of soil in one of the three east-west valleys or on slopes of the mountain ranges that cover two-thirds of the land and reach to an 8,700 foot top. He reads no papers, hears no radio, gets his news at planting and harvesting bees where neighbors help each other. His wife walks many miles to market, balancing a big basket of produce on her head. Little cash is handled in the family - perhaps $75 (375 Haitian gourdes) a year.

In 1939 and 1944, extensive amendments were passed to the Haitian Constitution, tending to increase the powers of the president. Election of senators, deputies and mayors was discontinued in 1944 until a year after the end of World War II, and the president was empowered to fill vacancies by appointment. At the same time, the president's term, due to expire on May 15, 1945, was extended to May 15, 1951.

Salute To You

● The Girl Scouts take the occasion, on the thirty-fourth birthday of their organization, March 12, to salute you—the men and women who have made Scouting possible in your communities.

THAT STATE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

After a careful study of Governor Tobin's Commission Report, advocating a million dollar State Department of Commerce, some of the speeches made on the tour, and the statements in the press recently by some of the principal signers of that Report, there is only one real conclusion:

"Just Another Bureau" - sired by a promise to cure a disease that has not yet been diagnosed as existing, by means of a remedy that has not yet been discovered."

An attempt will undoubtedly be made now to cut the asked-for appropriation to say $200,000; but a million dollar, "imaginary disease" cannot be cured by one-fifth the pills prescribed.

The facts are that Massachusetts has not slipped, as a whole and that Massachusetts has had - for years - a "booster" Commission and a Washington Ambassador.

It all looks just too, too nolitical. Just a very few facts (that are factual) - Massachusetts has more than hell its own:

Massachusetts ranked eighth in population in 1840 and eighth in 1940 - 100 years later. Massachusetts gained about 150,000 in population in the years 1940 to 1939—even though the geographical center of the nation has steadily gone westward.

Massachusetts increased its gainfully employed from 1,728,318 in 1929, to 1,811,210 in 1939.

Massachusetts lost less Industrial Establishments in the 20-year federal census period (1919-1939) than did the United States as a whole - and vastly less than its principal competing states.

In 1945 Massachusetts had more corporations formed than ever in its history - almost twice 1944 - and this does not take into consideration firms and individuals.

Power Consumption in Massachusetts increased in 1945 and the ratio of Labor to Power Consumption shows the technological advances of Massachusetts Management.

This all - in spite of terrible, nation-wide depressions!

Massachusetts does not need inferiority complexes - calamity howlers - nor national advertising that it has slipped.

Massachusetts would do well to amend any higher taxes on its housing problem and keep new spending down or Business might move out.

THANKS FROM RED CROSS

Raymond Strawbridge, chairman of the 1946 Red Cross Fund campaign, has expressed his thanks to the people of Winchester for putting over the drive here by 158.8 per cent, "Of the $14,000 goal for the town, the people raised $22,342.87." Mr. Strawbridge stated, "It was done in one day - a task accomplished because every home in the town cooperated, and every man and woman did something to help.

"I would like to thank each person who gave to the drive this year, and through his donation made possible the home service and the veterans' aid program of our Red Cross. If you gave to the drive this year, it may be your money which makes possible the handicraft material which will give some boy in a hospital the use of his hands again - hands which became helpless serving you overseas.

"I want to thank the workers who volunteered their time and efforts to the drive, and who worked at the headquarters, who got the many unsung tasks there; the women under Mrs. Eloise Graves and Miss Helen Munroe who had such a wonderful system of tabulating returns and who checked the kits as they came in from workers; the solicitors who called on the homes, and brought in their returns. Everyone worked on Sunday, and in that single day, put Winchester over the top. It was a magnificent community drive."

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Troop 7 News

On Monday, March 4, troops 6 and 7, had a spectacular basketball game. It was a very good, and exciting game. Each troop has two teams. When the first teams played troop 7 won 36-34. The second teams were tied. I was talking with Mr. J. C. Casler, troop 7's scoutmaster, the other day, and he said, and I quote, "in the first game troop 7 was so far ahead I started cheering for troop 6."

Troop 7 is really going out for basketball this season. They are going to play with troop 1 on Monday, March 18.

This year, Mr. Casler is giving medals to each boy in the troop 7 patrol who has the most points. He is counting the points on, the number of tests passed, attendance, dues, and uniforms worn. The two patrols leading now are the Flying Eagle Patrol with "Junior" McGonigal as patrol leader and the Silver Fox Patrol with Jason Dale as patrol leader.

The Flying Eagle Patrol is ahead with the Silver Fox Patrol following close behind. The other patrols are doing very well though.

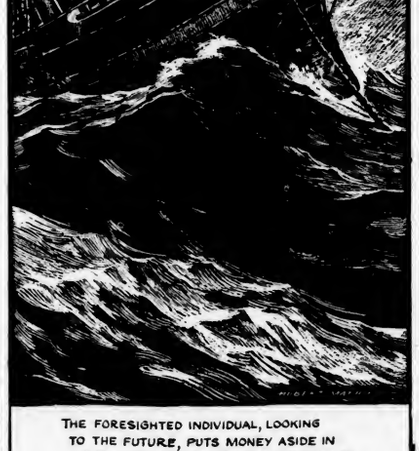

Among those students home for the mid-term holiday is Arthur Donaghy, son of Mrs. Arthur R. Donaghy, 40 Main street, Winchester, who is a student at Tilton School, Tilton, New Hampshire.

AOSTA VALLEY

France's claim to a portion of the Valley of Aosta, under consideration by Allied diplomats drafting the Italian peace treaty, involves a scenic corner of northwestern Italy lying in the shadow of the loftiest Alps.

Directly across the border from France and Switzerland, the National Geographic Society points out, the Valley of Aosta extends along the southern approaches to Mont Blanc, the 15,781-foot "monarch of mountains"; Great St. Bernard, with its famous hospice and rescue dogs; and the rugged Matterhorn.

Medieval Castles Prominent

From the small towns, vineyards and wheat fields along the Dora Baltea River are visible the snow-piled peaks, glaciers, forests, and waterfalls which provide some of the most magnificent scenery of Europe. In normal times the region was crowded with visitors eager to indulge in mountain climbing, skiing, and the thermal springs of the valley health resorts.

Against the backdrop of natural grandeur rise turreted castles built by feudal lords in the 14th and 15th centuries. Some were destroyed during the recent war, but others are remarkably well preserved, and a few are inhabited.

There are remains, too, of an earlier period of the valley's history—the period of the Roman Empire. Roman troops guarding the Alpine approaches built roads and bridges, portions of which still exist.

French Dialect Spoken

The town of Aosta, now the capital of Aosta Province, was laid out by Augustus Caesar, who erected a triumphal arch there. The arch has been given a new roof but is otherwise intact. Even today Aosta is known as the "Rome of the Alps," although it is renowned as much for its medieval churches and cloisters as for its Roman relics.

The Valley of Aosta long has been an important communication route between France and Italy. Its people speak a French dialect, and in dress and customs have much in common with French communities across the border. After the Allied invasion of Italy in 1943, many Aostans emulated the French maquis by organizing underground forces which harassed German and Italian troops quartered in the valley.

GRANDE ISLAND OIL FIELD

Dependent on other nations for its petroleum, Chile is cheered by a promising oil strike on none too accurately named Grande Island, a small bit of land near the southern tip of the country.

The Island, notes the National Geographic Society, lies in Whaleboat Sound about three miles off the Pacific (Chilean) coast of the big island of Tierra del Fuego. It is 120 miles south of Punta Arenas (Magallanes), Chilean mainland city of 33,000 people on the Strait of Magellan. It is about 80 miles west of Ushuaia, the world's southernmost town, on the southern coast of Argentina's half of Terra del Fuego; and 165 miles northwest of Cape Horn. South America's farthest south point of land. Grande Island is about four miles long, less than two miles wide.

Largest of a cluster of islands known as the Middle Group, Grande Island lies on a general northwest-southeast axis. Highlands distinguish the southern reaches. An anchorage named Port Uti extending off the southeastern end of the island is more than 100 feet deep.

Through the gale-swept, rain-drenched, island-studded region which frays out from the western and southern coasts of Chile sailed the Portuguese mariner Ferdinand Magellan in 1520 navigating the famous strait named for him. The mountainous area south of the strait, "stark with eternal cold," he named Tierra del Fuego, Land of Fire, because the natives kept so many fires going.

Gold once attracted man yfortune seekers to the strait area. Storms threshed the metal from clay banks and strewed it into the tidal wash along the beaches. Sheep raising is a large-scale interest in the grass lands of eastern Tierra del Fuego. Otter and seal hunting are profitable activities on near-by islands.

The natives of this loosely-patterned mosaic of islands spend so much time in their canoes that they literally qualify as a floating population. Once numerous, the Indians—Onas, Yahgans, and Alikulufs—have steadily declined since the coming of the white man.

BROWN MEDAL TO TERZAGHI

Soil Expert Is Winchester Resident

The 1946 winner of the Brown Medal of The Franklin Institute is Dr. Karl Terzaghi of 3 Robinson circle, consulting engineer, lecturer on Soil Mechanics in the Graduate School of Engineering, Harvard University, and research consultant to the University of Illinois. Dr. Terzaghi will receive the reward "in consideration of his theoretical and technical knowledge, initiative, pioneering research and outstanding leadership in the establishment of the Science of Soil Mechanics."

The Frank P. Brown Medal is awarded to inventors for discoveries and inventions involving improvements in the buildings and allied industries. It was first presented in 1941 to Willis Haviland Carrier for achievement in the field of heating, ventilation, and air-conditioning. In 1945 it went to Gilmore David Clarke, dean of the College of Architecture at Cornell University, for his leadership in the field of city planning.

Karl Terzaghi was born in Prague, Czechoslovakia in 1883. He graduated from the Technische Technische, Graz, Austria in 1911. He supervised construction of reinforced concrete buildings and hydro-eletric developments in Austria, Hungary, Croatia, and Russia and first came to the United States in 1912.

Following a term as Professor of Civil Engineering at Robert College, Istanbul, Turkey, he returned to this country as a consulting engineer and lecturer on the Mass. Institute of Technology. In 1929 he went back to Austria to serve as a member of the faculty of the Technische Hochschule in Vienna. He remained there until 1938, but took several leaves of absence to act as consultant in various parts of the world --Germany, Sweden, North Russia, Caucasus, Turkestan, North Africa, France, Italy and the United States. In 1936 he acted as president of the International Conference on Foundations and Soil Mechanics, which was part of the Tercentenary celebrations at Harvard University.

Dr. Terzaghi has been residing permanently in this country since 1939 and, in addition to his work at Harvard, and the University of Illinois, he has served as consulting engineer to the Department of Subways and Super-Highways of the City of Chicago and to various industrial organizations. At present he is engaged in a consulting capacity in various post-war developments, including a large irrigation project in the Province of Madras, India. He became a citizen of the United States in 1943.

Dr. Terzaghi's studies of Soil Mechanics, which are represented by many technical papers and several books on the subject, have caused him to be referred to as "the Father of Soil Mechanics."

Dr. Terzaghi has received the Fitz Gerald and the Herschel Medals of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers and has twice been awarded the Norman Medal of the American Society of Civil Engineers. He is a member of both of these societies and of the Institute of Civil Engineering.

His studies have covered the entire field of soil behavior. He worked out the theories of settlement of structures due to the consolidation of underlying clay strata and the theories of earth pressure on the timbering in open cuts, shafts, and soft-ground tunnels. He laid the groundwork for the experimental methods which are used in modern soil laborntories. He has advocated and practiced extensively the procedure of combining theoretical and experimental research with accurate observations on full-sized structures. The first book which he published on his methods and findings established soil mechanics as an independent branch of the engineering sciences. It was followed by numerous papers in which he developed the application of the theories of soil mechanics to the solution of practical problems.

The Brown Medal will be awarded to Dr. Terzaghi by Charles S. Redding, President of the Franklin Institute, at the annual Medal Day ceremonies in Philadelphia, April 17.

STATE DEPT. OFFICIAL TO SPEAK

Mr. Francis H. Russell, Acting Director of the Office of Public Affairs, will lecture in the High School Auditorium on the evening of April 1. His subject, "Our Role in World Affairs," is particularly pertinent at this time in our national history.

This event is sponsored by the League of Women Voters. Tickets at 55 cents, tax included, may be obtained from Mrs. Mortimer L. Downey, Jr., Win. 0399-J.

We seldom have the opportunity of hearing a high official of the State Department. Mr. Russell is universally well qualified to speak on up-to-the-minute developments in international affairs. He has just returned from the meeting of the First Assembly of the United Nations in London, and was on the Secretariat of the American Delegation at San Francisco.

TOWN MEETING OPENED

Police and Firemen Win Hours Concessions—Pay Raises For Employees

Straight Pay for Nichols

Highway Department to Collect Garbage

The Police and Firemen are going to work 48 hours, Tax Collector Nathaniel Nichols is going to get the straight collector's pay plus his pension and the Highway Department is going to collect the town's garbage. These decisions of the 195 precinct member, highlighted Monday evening's opening session of the annual limited town meeting, which was adjourned until Thursday night after concluding the long appropriations article of the warrant.

Winchester has 228 town meeting members, so roughly 85 per cent were on hand for Monday's meeting. There was also a large attendance of non-members, at the rear of the hall and in the balconies.

Moderator Joseph W. Worthen opened the meeting by reminding those present of the part Winchester had played in World War II, with special reference to those young people of the town who have made the supreme sacrifice. At the conclusion of his remarks the entire gathering stood in silence while Chairman Bonnell of the Board of Selectmen read the town's honor roll of 63 names of those who lost their lives in their country's service.

Newly-elected Selectman Morris B. Kerr, chairman of the current Finance Committee, explained that committee's position on appropriations, warning financial chaos which is resulting from unrelaxed municipal spending and pointing out that even if the meeting follows the committee's recommendations with respect to current appriations, a higher tax-rate, probably in the neighborhood of $30.00 is inevitable.

He stated that the Finance Committee had been guided in making its recommendations by its feeling that expenditures should be made with a close scrutiny toward necessity and the philosophy of doing "first things first."

With a view to keeping the tax rate at its lowest possible figure Mr. Kerr explained that the Finance Committee had recommended a trans-fer of $50,000 from the town's Excess and Deficiency Fund to $81,000 of which is to be allocated to Departmental Budgets and $16,000 to be used to pay the town's share of the reconstruction of Cross street under Chapter 90.

The Finance Committee recommended that the meeting vote to increase the regular compensation of town employees by including money voted last year as a temporary wage adjustment in their regular basic pay, with such further increases as may be necessary in individual cases to total an increase of 23 per cent, provided that in no case shall the increase be more than $300.00.

LEGHORN RETURNED TO SERVICE

Winchester Officer to Participate in Atomic Bomb Tests

Lt. Col. Richard S. Leghorn, USAAF, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Leghorn of Wedgemere avenue, on terminal leave since V-J Day, was recalled to duty Feb. 1 for the period of the atomic bomb tests. Now in Roswell, N. M., he is going shortly to the Marshall Islands as deputy commander of the Photographic Group, a signal honor, since it will be these men who will record the visible evidence of the bomb's destructive power.

In the Photographic Group there will be more than 300 cameras, including every known type, which have been installed in the B-29's and C-54's that have been selected to fly over the scene of the atom bomb blast. The cameras and planes have now been tested and are ready for their exacting job.

Four of the camera planes will be over Bikini Atoll at the closest possible range as the bomb is exploded. They will circle in an orbit with all cameras going for the exact length of time that science has determined men and film can withstand the intense radio activity.

A full dress rehearsal of the "Operation Cross-Roads", which is how the authorities designate the bomb test, was held last Friday afternoon off the coast of Southern California. It resulted in a successful test for the batteries of cameras which will make the forth-coming atomic bomb explosion the most photographed event in history.

Lt. Col. Leghorn served with distinction during World War II. He was graduated as a physicist from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1939 and was with the Eastman Kodak Company until he entered the service early in 1941.

For a time he was at the experimental photo-laboratory at Wright Field, later graduating from AAF flying school in 1943. In January of '44 he took a photo reconnaisance squadron to Europe and later became commanding officer of the 67th Tactical Reconnaisance Group.

He continued to head this group until after V-E Day, when he returned to Washington. There he assisted with the planning of operations in the Pacific until after V-J Day when he was placed on terminal leave.

JOHN TANSEY

John Tansey, retired member of the Highway Department and long time resident of Winchester, died Thursday afternoon at the Winchester Hospital after three years of poor health. Many will remember him in his active years as the operator of the town's steam-roller.

Mr. Tansey was the son of John He lived for many years at 81 Nelson street, but for the past year had been making his home with his son, Joseph, at 19 Canal street, and Annie Tansey. He was born in County Galway, Ireland, July 12, 1873, coming to this country as a boy of 14. He settled in Winchester and for a time worked for the late contractor, Nicholas Fitzgerald, father of James J. Fitzgerald of the present Fitzgerald Contracting Co.

In 1889 Mr. Tansey, still in his teens got a job on the Highway Department, and applying himself diligently, succeeded in passing the examination for a license enabling him to operate the town's steam-roller. For many years until his retirement on pension in January, 1936, he operated the roller, and he was also the engineer for the steamer, "Mary Ann", of the Fire Department.

In those days the fire engine was drawn by horses belonging to the Highway Department, and Mr. Tansey, a call member of the Fire Department often drove the steamer as well as fired it. He drove it to the big Chelsea Fire at a time when controversy was rife over the respective merits of steam and gasoline pumps and that day at least the steam pump was in the ascendency. "Mary Ann" doing yeoman work at the fire while many of the gasoline pumps either did not get there or were disabled.

Mr. Tansey was driving the steamer to the fire at the old Sink House at the corner of the Parkway and Washington streets when it tipped over coming down Converse place from the old fire house and crashed into the Ames store, then in process of construction. He was in the hospital for seven months as the result of the accident.

In his youth Mr. Tansey was a well known athlete, a fine bicycle rider and five mile runner. He also excelled in the hose coupling contests which the Fire Departments had in those days. He was for many years a member of the American Brotherhood of Road Roller Engineers.

Mr. Tansey's wife, Catherine, died 15 years ago. He is survived by two sons, Joseph Tansey of Winchester, late of the Army Air Forces and a teacher at Wentworth Institute; and Francis W. Tansey also of this town. There are also surviving six grandchildren and a half sister, Mrs. Thomas Howe of Worcester.

The funeral will be held Monday morning at 8:15 from the Lane Funeral Home with high mass of requiem celebrated at the Immaculate Conception Church at 9. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery.

PUBLIC ADDRESS SYSTEM AT TOWN HALL

The town has permanently installed in the town hall auditorium the latest type of public address system, with one microphone for use on the stage and one for use on the floor.

The new system, which was installed under the direction of Chairman Edmund C. Sanderson of the Water and Sewer Board, was first tried at Monday evening's opening session of town meeting, and proved far superior to anything of the kind previously used at the hall.

Loud speakers are installed at either side of the stage, and experiments will be made to see if audibility is improved by the addition of speakers in the small town hall.

TOWN MEETING DISSOLVED

School Articles to Committee

Recreation Committee Established

Vote to Enter Metropolitan Water District

Winchester's precinct members concluded the warrant at the adjourned session of the limited town meeting last night, dissolving at 11:15 after referring the controversial school articles to a committee for study and report with recommendations in June. Action on these articles took up by far the major portion of the meeting devoted to debate with considerable opposition voiced to the motion championed by the School Committee. Despite this opposition, the supporting arguments of which were rather warmly applauded there was no objection to the establishment of the committee asked by the School Committee when the final vote was made.

The committee established is to consist of two members of the School Committee and one member of the Planning Board, to be chosen by these groups, and also four other citizens of the town, to be appointed by the Moderator. This committee is to consider the enlarging of the junior high school building, the enlarging and modernizing of the high school building, combining and enlarging the facilities of these buildings, constructing a new high school in another location, providing an athletic field or fields for these schools, considering locations available for a new high school building and an athletic field or fields, and considering how improved accommodations and facilities may be provided for the pupils of the 7th, 8th and 12th grades inclusive for educational and athletic purposes.

The committee is to file a preliminary report on or before June 15, at which time a special town meeting will be held to hear its report and recommendations. A final report and estimates are to be submitted in season for printing and distribution with the warrant for the next town meeting to be held after Sept. 1. The sum of $2000 was appropriated for the committee's use.

Mr. Borden spoke for the School Committee's motion, explaining that it would be necessary to initiate rather a quick decision in the matter of the acquisition of the Ginn Estate as a site for a possible new high school since the trustees are determined to sell the place in the present favorable real estate market and will hold off for the town not later than September. If the town's decision is not made until then and it is voted to buy the property the price is increased by $1000, to include taxes which the trustees feel the town should assume if it takes longer than June to make its mind.

Mr. Borden spoke of the need for better educational facilities for the upper grades and stated the School Committee's belief that the problems involved all tie in together and are of too great magnitude to be decided by a meeting without guidance from a committee of members of which have had opportunity to study the many points involved at first hand with expert advice.

Mr. Farnham moved to amend the School Committee's motion, by having the committee report at the next annual town meeting. Mr. Stone took sharp issue with about all that the School Committee advocated. Town costs are soaring out of sight and order down, advocating that the committee proposal be defeated since no committee could hope to report on problems of this magnitude as quickly as by a May Committee meeting. Mr. Kerr concurred. Mr. Allen and Mr. Kerr voiced the Finance Committee's support of a committee, and Mr. Farnham's motion was lost on a voice vote after which the School Committee's motion, substantially as it appears above, was carried without opposition.

Other debate occurred as the Recreation articles which were all taken up together. It was finally voted to establish a recreation committee consisting of the town elected three members of the Recreation Commission and one member each of the Park Commissioners and School Committee to study those activities and adult recreation not now handled by the Park Commissioners and School Committee, and to advise, confer and co-operate with the above boards or other town agencies, organizations or groups in relation to recreational activities, facilities, use of facilities and personnel.

The new committee is to make recommendations to the town for an over-all recreation program and to engage leaders, instructors and facilities for such activities within the budget allotted to the General Recreation account.

The Finance Committee sought to strike out the clause giving the committee the right to engage leaders, instructors and facilities until such time as the committee could formulate a program and tell what it proposes to do. Mr. West of the Recreation Commission championed the original motion, admitting the proposed committee has no program at the moment, Mr. Davidson spoke in favor, and the Finance Committee amendment was lost.

The new committee was given some $1,400 remaining in the old recreation account, and the meeting voted if and when the School Committee no longer needs the old Mystic School on Bacon street, it shall be turned over to the Recreation Committee for a recreation center with the recommendation that it be made available for such use by the Hobby Center as the Committee shall deem proper. He was voted to transfer the insurance item of $713 from the School Account to the Insurance

SUPERINTENDENT ADDRESES TEACHERS' CLUB

At a meeting of the Winchester Teachers' Club held last Tuesday afternoon in Room 37 at the High School, President Arthur E. Butters introduced Superintendent Forbes H. Norris, who spoke about the philosophy of an administrator. Mr. Norris pointed out that supervisors and teachers have as their most difficult personal problem the maintenance of their idealism and the suppression of their personal feelings.

Mr. Norris drew attention to the fact that all teachers should strive to merit the confidence placed in them and in the administration when the town meeting members voted favorably on this year's large school budget which will make possible the activation of a salary schedule approved some time ago and which will date from September 1 of this year.

In closing, Mr. Norris reminded teachers of the proper channels to be used for transmitting suggestions, criticisms, and problems, and expressed his desire to have teachers drop into his office to "talk things over."

Next, Mr. Butters introduced Dr. Otis E. Alley who outlined the aims of the Scholarship Foundation and explained its general purpose and likely function. The fact that this organization will unify the procedure in granting scholarships to high school graduates and will make it possible for larger numbers of clubs and groups to become members through contributions, regardless of the amount contributed, as well as furnishing a depository for any sums of money which individuals or groups may care to give or bequeath, drew enthusiastic approval of the Teachers' Club, which voted to become affiliated with the provision that identity of the club be retained.

HEALTH TEACHERS TO HEAR DR. IRWIN

Teachers of physical education in the Winchester schools will meet on March 28 at the Superintendent's office to discuss the health program with Dr. Irwin of Boston University. Items to be considered are the present program, criticisms and suggestions relative to that program, and records.

Miss Croughwell sang "Carmena" by H. Lane Wilson, "Do Not Go My Love" by Hageman, the aria from Louise; "Deuis le jour," and the "Musical Snuff Box" by Liadoff.

Miss Arnesen sang "Zeignung" by Richard Strauss, "Minnelied" by Brahms, the aria from Bizet's Crmen, "Habanera", and "Song of the Open" by LaForge.

They sang together "Sous le done epais" from Lakme by Delibes and from Humperdinck's Hansel and Gretel, "Evening Prayer."

WINCHESTER GIRL A. A. PRESIDENT

Miss Edith Dover nas been elected President of the Women's Athletic Association at Massachusetts State College, an honor seldom won by a member of the sophomore class. "Edie" has been women's basketball manager for the current season and will not assume her new duties as President until her successor is elected at the annual Spring Sports banquet next month.

"Edie" is a graduate of Winchester High School where she made a brilliant record in athletics. For the past two summers she has been life-guard at Palmer Beach.

COUPLES' CLUB DANCE NEXT WEEK

The Annual Dance of the Couples' Club will be held next week Saturday, March 30th at Metcalf Hall of the Unitarian Church. A special committee headed by Marjorie and George Hayden is in charge of decorations and as in past years, groups will be seated at tables of any size from 4 to 36. Ken Reeves in person and his orchestra will provide music for dancing from 8 to 12 and there will be several cabaret numbers during the evening.

The Couples' Club is sponsored by the Unitarian Church but its activities are enjoyed by those of many different church groups, as its fundamental purpose is to encourage good fellowship between couples in Winchester and to afford new-comers an opportunity of meeting new friends. Proceeds go to various activities. This summer the Couples' Club will finance the trip of an outstanding Winchester Boy Scout to the great Scout Ranch in Cimarron, New Mexico.

Because those who buy their tickets late have in recent years found that all available tables have been sold, the committee in charge hopes that those who plan to come will buy their tickets and make their table reservations promptly. Those who are new to Winchester will be especially welcome.

Dress is entirely optional at every Couples Club dance. Most men wear business clothes, while some of the ladies wear long dresses.

WINCHESTER HOCKEY TEAM DID WELL

Winchester High School's youthful hockey team made real progress during the past season, even though its won and lost record is not on the face of it especially impressive.

The local boys, coached by Larry Palmer, won four and tied one out of 12 games, but this year they played a much harder schedule than last, meeting varsity instead of second teams and taking on schools that have been playing hockey for years. Stoneham, Medford, Wellesley and Andover are all rich in hockey tradition, yet the locals lost to Stoneham, Andover and Medford by a single goal, scored in the last few minutes of play at that.

Over 50 boys were out for hockey this year, indicating that the sport has a real appeal here. A junior varsity schedule was arranged but because of inclement weather and the necessity for playing all these games outdoors, none of the contests could be played.

The varsity played five indoor games this year and had one indoor practice session. Out of a schedule of 17 games, 12 were played.

Looking ahead the boys and their coach are very much hoping that a rink may be built on Shore road field, near the pond, qualified observers believing such a spot would prove ideal for an out-door rink. The local players are also greatly interested in the report that Boston College High may drop out of the Bay State Hockey League another year, playing in the Catholic School loop. Winchester would be a natural to fill such a vacancy in the Bay State, and it is no secret many teams in this league would be glad to see Winchester in.

Don Armstrong, a good player on any club, scored 15 goals to lead the team, with Dave Merrow, the most improved player on the squad tallying nine for second money. Doub poked in four goals, Whip Saltmarsh, Pete Priest and Al Ulrich, two apiece, and Ed McGrath and Frankie Livingstone, the latter a spare, one. Dick Dick Powers and Johnnie Duffett were other spares.

Following is the season's record:

Winchester 6—Belmont Hill	4
Winchester 3—Watertown	4
Winchester 3—New Prep	2
Winchester 0—Watertown	2
Winchester 3—Stoneham	4
Winchester 3—Andover	4
Winchester 3—Wakefield	2
Winchester 1—Marblehead	2
Winchester 2—Watertown	2
Winchester 3—Browne and Nich.	1
Winchester 4—Medford	5
Winchester 5—Wellesley	11

HIGH SCHOOL HAS BIG BASEBALL SQUAD

Eighty-two candidates have reported to Coach Henry Knowlton to try out for places on the 1946 baseball team at Winchester High School. Knowlton is back handling baseball after a year off during which he coached track and Ray Hayward handled baseball. This year John Downes, who handled cross country and track indoors will coach outdoor track.

It is too early to tell much about the sort of team Winchester will field this year. Baseball is not a strong sport at Winchester High, most of the boys playing the game only during the high school season.

Baseball is a game of quick decisions, split-second co-ordination and correct reactions that have to become automatic from constant repetition to be much good under game pressure. You just don't become a ball player in any three months of a year, and the lack of pre-high school kids playing baseball with the dearth of summer ball has hurt the game locally.

Winchester coaches have to do a lot of rudimentary coaching and the heavy schedule of league games makes it hard to correct mistakes in practice sessions which are all to infrequent after the season commences.

The locals finished third in the league last year with probably the two best pitchers on the circuit in Guy Washburn and "Chucker" Roche. Both graduated last June along with catcher "Sarto' Walsh, a good backstop.

Coach Knowlton has 25 candidates for pitcher working out and from them he may get a couple of dependable hurlers. Jimmy Haggerty, outfielder-pitcher, has a letter but little experience in the box. He is a big boy and can stand a lot of work. None of the other candidates has any experience, but two or three of them look good right now.

Bob Wilson is a letter catcher, but as a sophomore was very erratic behind the bat. He is aggressive, however, and may be the catching answer this year. There is no letter player for first, but at second, short and third, the squad is well fixed with second sacker Jimmy Olivier, third baseman Dean Blanchard and two shortstops, Sam Tibaudo, veteran, and Eddie Hicks. Sam Bellino, left, and Tippy Cogan, center, are letter outfielders.

Frank Provinzano, former Winchester High, Wilbraham Academy and B. U. all around athlete, recently out of the Army, is assisting Coach Knowlton with baseball regularly this spring.

Following is the list of candidates:

Pitchers: D. Armstrong, A. Ulrich, J. Haggerty, R. Ferrera, T. Cogan, J. Chisholm, A. Switzer, R. Plunkett, J. Amico, W. Knights, R. Flynn, D. Coon, R. Roth, D. Kenton, T. Wyman, R. Whitmarsh, R. Singer, C. DeFilipo, R. Richardson, Dingwell, S. Doub, P. Priest, C. Flynn, J. Hammond, N. McNamara.

Catchers: J. Filler, R. Wilson, E. Amico, K. Dickson, R. Parker, Wagstaff, P. Hutchins.

First Base: J. Patterson, J. Amico, H. Fry, J. Costello, C. Fox, C. Phippen, K. Kolligian, A. Switzer, K. Dickson, R. Atkinson, Shoemaker, Reid.

Second Base: J. Olivier, R. Keeney, F. Swymer, R. Richmond, J. Harris, R. Cleary, Duckworth, J. Hopkins, F. Kimball, R. Swanson, D. Thomas.

Third Base: D. Blanchard, J. Marshall, R. Harvey.

Shortstop: S. Tibaudo, E. Hicks, C. DeFilipo.

SCHOOL NOTES

This week marked the departure of another high school boy for service with the armed forces. Allan Ulrich, high school senior, is the latest to leave, James Morrison and Kenneth Symmes also having left recently. These boys will be duly graduated with their class under a School Committee ruling, established during the war years to provide for those who were called into service before their school days could be completed.

Those people interested in engaging high school pupils for outside work should contact Assistant Principal Samuel M. Graves at the high school.

The Class of 1946 Gift Committee consists of Chairman Robert Swanson, Mary Jean Browning, Elisabeth Jennings, Frank Nolan, and Corinne Marvin.

Music: Susan Hight, Marjorie Johnston and Marion Horwood.

Decoration: Martha Fay, Rudolph Ferrara.

Food: John Rutherford

Entertainment: Don Armstrong.

Invitations: Jennie Lou Elliott.

Graduation decorations will be accomplished by Jennie Lou Elliott's committee.

WINCHESTER'S PATTERSON IN ALL STAR GAME

"Pat" Patterson, captain of this year's basketball team at Winchester High School, has been selected to play on the Middlesex League All Stars who are to meet the circuit champion, Lexington High, in an exhibition game tonight at 8 o'clock at the Lexington High gymnasium, the game having been arranged in connection with the dedication of the new Lexington score-board. Reading's coach, Bowdoin "Al" Kent is coaching the Stars.

Patterson is a natural for a place on the all star quintet. He has been Winchester's high scorer for the season with 222 points, said to be an all time record for the school. When he is having a good night 20 points is an easy total for "Pat" who has played right forward over the past two seasons.

It is expected that quite a few of "Pat's" Winchester school mates will go over to Lexington to see him in action tonight. Manager Parker Flagg is leading the local delegation.

WILL CONDUCT CHESS CLASSES

Mr. Charles S. Jacobs of 5 Bacon street has been asked to conduct a series of chess classes at the Boston Center for Adult Education. He is the winner of various Tournaments in this country and in Canada and is an enthusiastic problematist and teacher.

Two chess groups are being formed, starting on Friday, March 29. One is planned for the beginner and a second for the more advanced player. NEW ABERJONA SKIT FOR VAUDEVILLE

With only two weeks remaining before the curtain rises on the 14th annual Vaudeville Show at Winchester High School, Faculty Manager Ray Hayward is rushing preparations for the entire show and giving more than passing notice to the new act, as yet called only the Aberjona Skit, which helps to establish continuity in the show and has a definitely local color.

Music Supervisor Alma Stoddart has been rehearsing choral groups who will take their part in setting the proper atmosphere for certain acts and will make several appearances during the evening.

The dance groups are again receiving the expert guidance and direction of Mrs. John T. Phelps who has given most generously of her time and talent to make these annual shows successful.

Miss Ethel Knowlton is again in charge of tickets and to her will fall the responsibility of seating the capacity audiences that will crowd into the High School Auditorium on the evenings of April 5 and 6. Tickets are purchased in Room 32 at the high school before 3 p. m. any school day.

MEN'S CLUB

The Men's Club of the First Baptist Church will present Mr. Robert F. Lybeck in a very timely talk on aviation in the social hall of the church on Tuesday, April 2 at 7:45 p. m. Mr. Lybeck's subject will be "You Will Fly". He has a message that will interest both young and old.

Aviation has truly captured the imagination of the American people. In a world at war the airplane has demonstrated its power as a weapon in modern warfare, but what are its potentialities in a world at peace? Will the airplane occupy the same place in our domestic economy as the automobile did in 1919? Will you own and fly a personal airplane in the post-war era? These are but a few of the questions that challenge us for the future.

Mr. R. F. Lybeck, a former school committee man in Winchester, has for the past 24 years been continually associated with the Colonial Beacon Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. As an engineer, his early years were spent in manufacturing and development. More recently he has been associated with the development of aircraft and particularly the application of petroleum products. He is a graduate of Tufts College with degrees of B. Sc. and M. Sc. a member of National Aeronautical Association and Society of Automotive Engineers.

Mr. Lybeck has also secured a sound film showing the Sikorsky Helicopter in some very interesting maneuvers.

Refreshments will be served at the close of what promises to be a very enlightening evening.

MONITOR EDITOR SPEAKS

Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, addressed the Wednesday Night Club of the First Congregational Church on Thursday, March 14. The topic of his address was, "Unfinished Business." A large and very appreciative audience was in attendance.

Mr. Canham realistically faced the Russian situation with the statement that neither the United States nor England was prepared to stop Russia in that country's desire to gain supremacy in those territories adjacent to the Soviet Union. He called for a renewed spirit of consecration on the part of all citizens in backing up our country's participation in the United Nations Organization.

WHY PULL CHESTNUTS OUT OF THE FIRE FOR SOMEONE ELSE?

It is time that the good old U. S. A. had a real stiff foreign policy with teeth in it. If we do we can command the respect of other nations but as long as we make heroes of politicians that come to this country for sympathy and help we will get nowhere fast.

THE FIREMEN ARE GRATEFUL

To the Editor of the Star:

The permanent members of the Winchester Fire Department wish to express their gratitude to all town meeting members for granting them a reduction in working hours.

To our many other friends who assisted us in obtaining the 70 hour week, we are sincerely grateful.

A PAT ON THE BACK FOR THE COMMITTEE

To the Editor of the Star:

I would like to praise the person or group who saw to it that we would have the swell amplifying system in use at the Town meeting. Last year we bemoaned the lack of such a system and it was very pleasant to hear the various speakers this time although some of them seemed intent on spending our hard earned money in a manner contrary to the studies of our Finance Committee. So, may I add here a "pat on the back" to this Committee for what must seem at times a thankless task. May they continue to watch out for us small property owners with fixed incomes and low (if any) tax deductions!

THE NEW SCHOOL

To the Editor of the Star:

I fully appreciate the desires of Winchester citizens to keep their taxes down by lending anything but a helping hand to the new superintendent in the efforts he is making to put a new High School in the focus of the town's interest. He has done that quite well, but now the "battle" for the school itself looms large in the offing.

In the interests of lower taxes, the citizens of the town are keeping their eyes closed to the future, as I see it. Winchester has long been an average New England town. There is a chance to make it something more than average.

I can certainly vouch for the antiquity of the interior of the present High School. The halls themselves are nothing short of tombike, with their many dust-laden busts and statues and uninspiring pictures.

The exterior looks, well, to be frank—too "academic." Learning seeps from every pore of its ivy covered corners. Students want (I believe) a smart, eye catching building that they can point to with genuine enthusiasm, not matter of fact.

I for one would say that this progressive "mid-Westerner" who has told us what he thinks of our school and its system, is right. Our present school is inadequate in nearly every sense of the word.

To reap benefits of the future, the seeds must be planted now. There are many times in life that we must "stick our neck out." Everyone who has ever gotten anywhere has had to. The very fact that they did made them what they are.

Give me an amplifier. Let me when the final vote comes to issue, say "Yes!"

DARLING—MARSTERS

There is Winchester interest in the marriage which took place at the Arlington street Church in Boston on Saturday evening, March 16, when Miss Ann Marsters, formerly of Winchester and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elbert Marsters, now living at 345 Commonwealth avenue in Boston, became the bride of Lt. (j. g.) Bradford Darling, USNR, son of Mrs. Herbert Lincoln Darling of 15 Madison avenue west, and the late Mr. Darling. Rev. Dana McLean Greeley officiated at the 8 o'clock ceremony which took place in an attractive setting of ferns and greens with flower-entwined candelabra.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Marsters had for her honor attendant, Miss Barbara Marshall of Needham. Mrs. Robert Franklin Rapelye of Binghampton, N. Y., and Mrs. Arnold Whitman of New York, formerly of Brookline, were bridesmaids.

The bride wore a princess gown of satin with sweetheart neckline and a veil of heirloom lace belonging to her great-grandmother, mounted on tulle and combined with orange blossoms belonging to her mother. Her flowers were a cascade of gardenias, orchids and cephalotis with maidenhair fern.

The honor attendant and bridesmaids were all gowned alike in off-the-shoulder dresses of pale aqua satin brocade, made on princess lines. Their headdresses were of matching ostrich tips and the honor maid carried American Beauty and yellow snapdragons with pink carnations. The bridesmaids flowers were American Beauty snapdragons, pink carnations and lavender stock.

Ben R. Schneider, Jr., of Winchester was Lt. Darling's best man and the ushers were Richard H. Marsters, of Philadelphia, Pa., brother of the bride; Harold S. Fuller, Jr., of Winchester, Peter L. Sibley of Schenectady, N. Y., formerly of Winchester; John G. Leschen of Boston and Major Kenneth M. Leghorn, USA, of this town.

After the ceremony a reception was held at The Lincolnshire, 31 Beacon street, Boston. Mrs. Marsters, the bride's mother was gowned in sapphire blue chiffon velvet. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Darling, wore a grey-blue crepe gown with a beaded yoke.

The bride attended the Modern School of Fashion Design in Boston. Lt. Darling graduated from Winchester High School and from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology with the class of 1942. He is a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity.

ROTARY NOTES

In developing his theme, "Romance in Legislation," Mr. Arthur W. Coolidge, president of the Massachusetts State Senate, proved himself to be one of the most interesting guest speakers heard by members of the Rotary Club in recent months. His remarks concerning the possibility of a state-operated lottery to finance payment of an additional veterans' bonus were revealing, especially when it is considered that it will require about $600,000,000 to pay this bonus to each Massachusetts veteran of World War II. He recounted many instances of pathos and humor in the numerous bills which are annually presented to the General Court.

In a few well chosen words, "Dick" Sheehy very graciously and sincerely welcomed five new Rotarians to membership in the Club. The new members are Raymond Dickman, Junior High School Principal; Wade Grimble, High School Principal; John Dick, local manager of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Co., John Wallace and Eugene Pollard, Dentists.

"Jim" McGrath, our genial host was the winner of the Victory Bond which is awarded weekly to the holder of the lucky number.

It was a real pleasure to greet our past-president, State Senator Harris S. Richardson, of whom the guest speaker spoke in the highest terms.

It is reported that the Lynch Market is to be reopened in the near future at the corner of Harvard and Washington streets. This store which has been famous for many years here in town has been closed since the first part of the war. Extensive alterations and repairs are being made to the property leased.

Account and the Pensions and Annuities item was raised $350, in order that the pension of the retiring Fire Chief John J. Gorman may be paid on the salary he is now receiving rather than upon that he was receiving when he reached retirement age in 1945.

The sum of $50,000 was transferred from Excess and Deficiency to be added to a $1,000 appropriation for Chapter 90 road construction. Three hundred and sixty-four dollars were voted to indemnify Chief Gorman for expenses arising out of a claim against him for injuries and damages resulting from the operation of a motor vehicle owned by the town.

The meeting voted to authorize the Water and Sewer Board to make application for membership in the Metropolitan Water District to secure water for that part of the town now served by the west side high service system, $4,15.67 being appropriated without debt, to Lavoie's for Garfield Terrace, with a $2,500.00 appropriation, Glen Green and Nelson Place were accepted. The Selectmen's alteration of the south-east corner of Forest and Cross streets was accepted, adding $40.00.

Mr. Davidson was successful in securing for the Park Board the sum of $7,000 to commence the grading and improvement of the west side playground on Wildwood street extension, over the objection of the Finance Committee.

The sum of $4,000 was appropriated at the request of the School Committee to buy bleacher seats to add to those now in use on Manchester Field, as a temporary solution of the athletic problem, the permanent solution of which can not come until the decision is reached on the proposal to build a new high school. Indefinite postponement was voted on the proposed memorial stadium.

Committees were established to study the town's wage schedule, the feasibility of establishing a Department of Public Works and to consider the problem of securing temporary or permanent housing for veterans of World War 2.

Vernon W. Jones was elected the town's Director of Agriculture, with a budget of $50.00. The number of measures of wood and bark was fixed at not more than eight, and the Town History Committee, given the right to make certain concessions in the price of the town history to make it more generally available. Legacies left the town for the library by Elizabeth Downe Wadsworth and Nettie Rust Winn, and another for Wildwood Cemetery by Mary A. Warren, were accepted. It was voted against establishing a municipal department under Chapter 722 to furnish advice, information and assistence to veterans.

The meeting voted, at the request of the Planning Board, to alter the zoning map to place strips of land on both sides of Washington street, north from a point beyond Forest street to the Woburn line in the single residence zone.

The usual motion by Mr. Rowe dissolved the meeting.

WOMAN'S SOCIETY

The Deborah Group of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church will hold a luncheon and sale at the church Tuesday, March 26. Luncheon will be served at 1:00 p. m. under the direction of Mrs. Harold Bergquist. Mrs. J. Wilson Armstrong has charge of tickets, and Mrs. Stanley McNally will supervise the dining room service. Mrs. George Wendham will preside at a sale table of miscellaneous articles. After luncheon Mrs. Earl Haney will give some beauty hints for 1946, demonstrating how cosmetics should be applied to give best results in an attractive appearance.

Lt. (jg) Robert H. Smith, U. S. N. R., of 45 Wildwood street, was released from duty in the United States Navy at the separation center in Boston March 19 after 21 months service, including 10 months sea duty in the European, African and Pacific Theatres. Lt. Smith, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry N. Smith, and married with two children, plans to return to his own business.

BLOOD PLASMA NOW AVAILABLE THROUGH RED CROSS

Free supplies of surplus Army-Navy blood plasma to be used for transfusions to local civilians were today received by the Winchester Hospital it was announced by Frank E. Crawford, manager.

"This plasma is being made available by the American Red Cross through the State Department of Public Health which is handling its distribution," Mr. Crawford said.

"The plasma is being distributed to hospitals throughout the state as a public service, just as are serums and vaccines. The only charge which can be made is a service charge for administering the plasma.

"Used widely during the war to combat severe shock," said Mr. Crawford, "plasma saved thousands of lives of wounded American fighting men on the battlefield, and was thus responsible for its remarkably low mortality rate among battle casualties."

On the civilian front, local physicians will find the plasma extremely useful in combating shock suffered during accidents and surgical operations and in other emergencies.

The recent shipment of blood plasma received at the Winchester Hospital was obtained from voluntary blood donors enrolled during the war by the American Red Cross and is available without charge to all licensed physicians.

Private physicians who wish to use plasma may obtain it on request from their local hospital.

Peacetime enrollment of volunteer blood donors is now being continued in Massachusetts communities under the Blood Donor Program operated by the Division of Biologic Laboratories of the State Department of Public Health, cooperating with the Red Cross.

Release of the Army-Navy surplus plasma will be followed shortly by the distribution of various fractions of blood plasma and eventually whole blood.

"ROGER"

Winchester residents who have been used to seeing Attorney William N. Beggs and his beautiful Seeing Eye dog "Roger" walking about the town together will be grieved to know of Roger's death on Sunday, March 10 after an illness of only 36 hours.

Many of the townspeople will remember when Mr. Beggs went to Morristown for the purpose of obtaining Roger at the famous school for Seeing Eye dogs, and were greatly impressed by the team of man and dog safely working even under hazardous traffic conditions.

Roger's unusual canine personality was evident to even the casual observer and Mr. Beggs's loss of this loyal and skilful friend will be deeply regretted by all.

Arrangements have been made for Roger's burial in the Pine Ridge Cemetery for small animals, which is under the auspices of the Animal Rescue League. Here George Arliss's dog and Admiral Byrd's mascot are at rest.

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, "To ignore God as of little use in sickness is a mistake. Instead of thrusting Him aside in times of bodily trouble, and waiting for the hour of strength in which to acknowledge Him, we should learn that He can do all things for us in sickness as in health" (p. 166).

FORMER WINCHESTER PASTOR TALKED WITH GANDHI

Rev. Roger Makepeace Met Indian Leader at Sodepore

Rev. Roger E. Makepeace, who resigned his pastorate at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church to enter the Army Chaplain's Corps and is currently in India had a recent interesting meeting with the Indian leader, Gandhi, at the latter's temporary Ashram at Sodepore. Now a captain, Mr. Makepeace had hear of Gandhi's visit to Calcutta and mutual friends made arrangements for him to go to his Ashram to see the world personage at close range and hear his meditations.

Captain Makepeace was much impressed with the cleanliness of the buildings where Gandhi is stopping and with the vigor and earnestness of the Indian youth he found surrounding the great man. He described his meeting with Gandhi as follows:

"It was about quarter of five when we wended our way to where Mr. Gandhi was to come for his afternoon devotions. Hundreds of people were already there, seated in various sections, divided by bamboo fences, the women in one, the men in another, etc... it was estimated there were over 3,000 present.

"A bell chimed and then came the familiar figure of that little Brown Man . . . I recognized him immediately. On either side was a young girl. Following on the sides and in the rear were some 30 or 40 attendants, close friends, and those in charge of the Ashram. He was cloaked in a white gown as usual.

"The crowd was hushed as he began his meditations. In a thin soft voice he intoned for a while, followed by the choric response of a song in which the people joined. Then he spoke for over 15 minutes in a soft quiet voice to the people concerning their attitude in coming there, of the value of prayer and what it meant to him, and of the need for each one to avail himself of this power.

"Then as quietly as it had started, it had ended and he was stepping easily down from the platform, gathering his 'shawl' around him . . . As he came near where we were standing one of the men told him there were two American chaplains who would like to meet him. He smiled at us and we were presented. At my name he commented how appropriate it was and asked me how I made peace. I replied with Ahimsa, his practice of non-violence. That caused him to laugh and repeat it."

Captain Makepeace fell into step with Gandhi and walked with him, the latter commenting upon his name again and telling of meeting a man by that name on shipboard in 1914.

In answer to Captain Makepeace's telling him that his folks had come out to America from England very early Gandhi said "I have never got on the Mayflower." He was evidently pleased to know that Captain Makepeace knew and had been married by Bishop Fisher, whom the Indian leader knows and likes.

Captain Makepeace closed what was for him a memorable 15 minutes by telling Gandhi of the interest America has in him and by wishing him success in his work. As he left Capt. Makepeace the Indian folded his hands and touched his forehead and said goodbye. The former Crawford pastor was later complimented upon the timing of his conversation with Gandhi and with what he said to him.

The new "stream-lined" procedure for consideration of the long budgetary article inaugurated last year, was again in effect, all the motions under the article being read at once and accepted, unless a question was raised, whereupon that article was summarily deferred for special consideration.

The first of the deferred articles was that dealing with the appropriation for the Collector of Taxes Department. Mr. Nichols, the collector, asked deferment to seek the return of his full salary, which he had not been getting since he reached the age permitting him to receive his contributory pension.

Mr. Nichols explained that when he reached the retirement age of 70 he had voluntarily agreed to accept from the town only the difference between the amount of his pension and his original salary.

He now feels that in view of changed conditions, additional taxes and higher living costs he can no longer continue this practice and he asked the town to raise the amount allocated his department from the Finance Committee's figures, $8,889.55 to $10,284.55, including $3,300.00 a year salary for him.

Mr. Nichols at some length spoke in his own behalf, comparing the treatment accorded him with that given other departmental heads and telling of the action of other communities faced with the same problem. He expressed his personal regret at having to speak for himself and assured the meeting that he was only doing so out of necessity and secure what seemed to him a fair deal.

Mr. Kerr voiced the Finance Committee's disapproval, stating that while they as a committee had the highest personal regard for Mr. Nichol's ability as a tax collector, they believed to grant his request would establish a dangerous precedent, and would be unfair to those appointive town servants who are forced by law to retire at the age of 70.

Mr. Tansey supported this contention.

Mr. Gleason, Senator Richardson, Mr. Pihl and Capt. Chadwick spoke in favor of paying Mr. Nichols the salary commensurate with the office he holds, irrespective of any pension he may be receiving.

The vote was close, Mr. Worthen doubted what seemed an easy voice vote in Mr. Nichols favor, and called for a polled vote on the Finance Committee's amendment to his motion, lowering the appropriation he asked to the figures originally appearing in the warrant. The poll vote stood 95 to 81 for paying the collector the $3,300 salary plus his pension.

There was no debate over the Selectmen's proposal to give the members of the Police Department a day off in six. Mr. Bonnell speaking for the motion and explaining that it is common practice in communities comparable to Winchester.

The Selectmen, however, opposed granting the Firemen a 70 hour week, because of the necessity for adding four men to the department in order to make these hours possible.

Mr. Speers, former Selectman, spoke for the shorter hours, explaining with refreshing frankness that he was appearing as counsel for the Firemen, without compensation because he believed in their cause.

He spoke at some length of the arduous hours the men have worked, and are still working, of the long 24 hour day which all must work, when it is impossible to leave the station even for meals, and read a long list of communities in which the Firemen now work the 70 hour week.

Mr. Speers believed that two extra men can make the 70 hour week workable and told something of the difficulty the town is experiencing in getting desirable men for the Fire Department because of the long hours.

Mr. Bonnell differed from his reasoning in some of its details, but did not voice too strong opposition, in general believing the present hours are no particular hardship and are nothing which needs an immediate change.

Mr. Farnsworth seemed to favor the shorter hours and Mr. Cullen strongly championed the firemen's cause.

The meeting voted to accept the law permitting the 70 hour week by a voice vote this action raising the appropriation under the article from $79,256.00 to $86,616.00. Actually the amount to be raised by taxation is less than originally asked since of the new figure $18,000 is to be met by a transfer from the Excess and Deficiency Fund.

That ended the debate for the meeting, which however upped the Highways and Bridges appropriation from $106,372.72 to $118,872.72, to include a traffic circle at Washington street and the Parkway and the widening of Washington street from the circle to Main street. The Snow and Ice Appropriation was also raised from $40,000.00 to $45,000.00, with $10,000.00 coming from Excess and Deficiency. There was no objection, though Mr. Guild hoped the additional $5,000.00 was for bigger snow-plows.

Under the Department of Public Health budget Mr. Kneeland championed a motion transferring the collection of garbage from the Board of Health's supervision to that of the Highway Department. Mr. Hewis was the sole dissenter. The $20,500.00 appropriation was cushioned a bit by a transfer of $6,000 from E and D.

Mr. Borden explained the items entering into the greatly increased school budget, but no one asked him to or seemed particularly concerned.

The meeting adjourned upon the usual motion by Mr. Rowe.

WYMAN SCHOOL FASHION SHOW

The Wyman School Fashion Show Committee has announced that the following have been chosen as models for the affair: Mrs. Robert Abbott, Mrs. George Blackwood, Mrs. Paul Collins, Mrs. Frank Evans, Miss Barbara Gladding, Mrs. Chester Goodenow, Mrs. Shepard Pond, Mrs. Clarke Staples, and Mrs. Charles A. Whitney, Jr.

Exhibited at the Show, which is being staged by Filene's of Winchester will be the latest styles in sport, afternoon and evening clothes, Mrs. Janet Jordan, fashion coordinator of Filene's branch stores, will discuss the Spring fashions.

Several luncheons are being given before the dessert and coffee to be served at Wyman School Hall as part of the entertainment, and many of the guests plan to remain for an afternoon of bridge. The committee consists of Mrs. George Marks, chairman, Mrs. Frank D' Eleuaux, vice-chairman, Mrs. Arthur Hertig, Mrs. John Willis and Mrs. Paul Lamb.

The in-bound express at 9:38 last Friday morning had a window broken in one of the cars going through Wedgemere Station, evidently by some one throwing something against the glass. The Police were notified by the tower-man.

A bad habit has developed this winter on upper Washington street near the Woburn line. Some body with garbage in crates or otherwise, empty liquor bottles, etc., just throws them out along the right of way.

Do your family a favor!

Let YOUR first "post-war project" be a modern ELECTRIC Range

All during the war, you planned hopefully for the time when you could improve the kitchen equipment in your home. Now that time is drawing near . . . so--let a fine, new, modern Electric range be your first "post-war project." It will bring you more genuine satisfaction, more real convenience, (yes--and more delicious meals!) than you ever thought possible.

A modern Electric range will give you greater nutrition and more flavor from the food you buy, for Electric cooking preserves precious vitamins and natural food juices.

You enjoy added leisure too because automatic timing devices make it possible for your electric range to cook a perfect meal in your absence.

Then--add electric cooking's economy to these advantages and you'll see why it will pay you well to investigate the best possible "post-war project" for your family--a modern ELECTRIC range!

There's an electrical future ahead . . . and BOSTON EDISON wants to help you make the most of it

Your RED CROSS must carry on!

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY CHAPTER D. A. R.

Mrs. William W. Goodhue of 13 Herrick street opened her home on Monday, March 18, for the regular meeting of The Committee of Safety Chapter, Daughters of The American Revolution.

Dessert was served at 1:30 p. m. to members and guests by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Charles Grant, Mrs. Everett Kidder, Mrs. Harry Locke, Mrs. Maxwell McCreery, Mrs. John Penniman, Miss Clara Russell, Mrs. Florence Scales, Mrs. Marshall Symmes and Mrs. Harold Twombly.

Mrs. Raymond Strawbridge and Mrs. John B. Wills poured at the coffee table.

The Regent, Mrs. Nathaniel M. Nichols, presided at the business meeting and introduced the guest speaker, Miss Esther Hugh Beeler, who in turn presented an interesting sketch of a "New England Village" to her enthusiastic audience.

Miss Patricia Eberle of 69 Cabot street, who was chosen this year from the Winchester High school as the D. A. R. Good Citizen, was the Chapter's guest. Miss Eberle will be entertained, with other Good Citizens at a luncheon at the Hotel Vendome, on March 27, after which the girls will attend the State Conference of the D. A. R. to be held in the ball room of the Copley Plaza, where the name of the winner of the award will be drawn.

FIRE AT WATCH-HAND FACTORY

The alarm from Box 332 at 12:12 Saturday morning was for a fire at the watch-hand factory of J. H. Winn's Sons on Washington street.

The fire originated in a storeroom in the basement, a closed room with no opportunity for a draft to develop to fan the flames. As a consequence the fire smouldered, causing a heavy smoke, but little fire damage.

The heat finally caused the factory sprinkler system to let go and also set off the alarm which called the fire department.

The firemen had quite a time getting to put out the fire because of the heavy smoke. Actually the flames did little damage, except to a wooden cabinet which was in the store-room. Arlington sent apparatus to Winchester to cover in during the fire.

Mr. Arthur Bryer, Agent for the Winchester branch of the Mass. Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals reports 58 animals cared for at The Shelter on Main street during the months of January and February. The March meeting of the Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. John Gilbert. Mrs. Gilbert presented Dr. E. W. Johansen, Veterinarian, who spoke on his experiences in the Southwest Pacific during the war. Dr. Johansen was in charge, among other duties, of the guard dogs used for guarding the gasoline supply. Those dogs were of different breeds and trained for guard duty. The doctor spoke of many animals he came in contact with; the koala bear, a harmless small animal about the size of a poodle dog and which lives almost entirely on the eucalyptus tree. There are at least 23 different kinds of kangaroos. The Dingo, or wild dog, is found only in Australia and is vicious and an enemy to sheep, of which Australia has 120 million, or one sixth of the world's flocks. The Australian sheep dog is a short haired dog used for herding the sheep.

Roger was Mr. William Beggs own Seeing Eye Dog but Winchester folks have felt a keen interest in this wonderfully intelligent animal and will feel sad to learn he died last week after a short illness. Too much cannot be said of praise for the Seeing Eye Dog. Roger was a paid member of the Winchester Branch of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held at Mrs. G. Russell Mann's home May 9th.

CUB PACK NO. 7

On Friday, March 15, Cub Pack No. 7 sponsored by the Men's Brotherhood of the First Baptist Church held their regular Pack meeting.

The meeting was opened at 7:30 by Cub Master, Seymour Bingham with a talk to the parents while the boys were enjoying games in the Recreation hall.

After roll call a very interesting circus was put on by the boys.

Den No. 1 had a side show with the fat man, strong man, super cubs, headless man and so forth.

Den No. 2 put on a regular circus show having a trained lion, chorus tight rope walker and finally the one and only Zippo was shot from a cannon. Peanuts and ballons were in evidence and everybody enjoyed a real old time circus band, parade and all.

The program for April is air and a visit to one of our air ports is being planned for our boys and model air plane building will be much in evidence.

The committee was very pleased with the attendance of so many parents at our Pack meeting and hope we will see them all again next month.

BOY HIT BY TRUCK

Edmond Curry, 6 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew Curry of 60 Lloyd street, escaped serious injury Tuesday afternoon when he was struck by a tractor and trailer being driven through Winchester Square north along Main street.

Roy F. Dalley of 169 Roxbury street, Roxbury, operator of the truck owned by the Dunham Trucking Company of 28 Columbia terrace, Springfield, told the Police he was driving south through the center on Main street near Thompson street when the Curry boy ran from the sidewalk near the Woolworth store against the outer rear left wheel of the tractor.

Dalley told the Police that the boy complained of his right foot. He was taken by Joseph Connolly of 20 Border street to the Winchester Hospital where X-rays were taken to determine the extent of any injuries which he might have received.

NAVY HONORS N. F. P. A.

The United States Navy has awarded its Certificate of Achievement to the National Fire Protection Association "in recognition of exceptional accomplishment in behalf of the United States Navy and of meritorious contribution to the national war effort".

The certificate was presented to General Manager Percy Bugbee by Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air, the Honorable John L. Sullivan, in a ceremony in Mr. Sullivan's office in the Navy Building in Washington on March 19.

In making the presentation Mr. Sullivan said: "The National Fire Protection Association provided outstanding service to the Navy in the field of fire prevention and fire protection engineering during the war period. Its staff members as well as its technical and engineering resources were placed at the disposal of the Navy and were utilized with great effectiveness by the Navy Department and the Naval Establishment."

PACK 3 BAND CONCERT AND ENTERTAINMENT

To a capacity audience, Cub Pack 3 presented their third annual Band Concert and Entertainment Saturday night, March 16th in the Parish House of the First Congregational Church.

The first part of the program was opened with a series of bugle calls by Elliott Hersey followed by "America" rendered as a cornet duet by David Shiverick and Elliott Hersey.

Mr. Everett L. Wescott, the band-master and instructor, then led the band in the following pieces.

"Lightly Row", "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star", "America, the Beautiful", "Hail, Hail the Gang's All Here", "Lullaby", "Skater's Waltz", "Sailing, Sailing", "Abide with Me", "Marine's Hymn", "Merry Widow".

The band this year has 22 members including both the Cubs and Scouts. Since all the Cubs are new to band work this year, Mr. Wescott is to be particularly congratulated on the fine work of this group. The following Cubs and Scouts comprise the present band:

Claron Swonger, Theodore Elliott, Dick Wylie, Jack Lovis, Ethan Moore, Gordon Bird, David Shiverick, Malcolm Wilson, Phillip Dresser, Douglas Hamilton, John Beck, Elliott Hersey, James Cusack, John Butler, Harold McKinley, Richard Simonds, Edward Jones, Joseph Neiley, Robert Willing, David Hutchins, Marvin Wilson, Kendall Cleaves.

The second part of the program consisted on short skits staged by each Den. Richard Rush served as Master of Ceremonies on this portion of the program. His stage manners and good speaking voice made a particular hit with the audience.

Mrs. Murphy's Den 5 offered the first playlet, called "Pea Soup" a restaurant scene in which the Cubs built up to their final punch line very effectively. Ronald Vernet as the heroine evoked several "hubba-hubbas". The other members of the restaurant crew were: Gerald Cox, Charles Murphy, Paul Leverette, Richard Rush, David Scott, and William Jesdale.

Den 3 presented a cow-boy campfire scene with jokes and limericks by Andrew Robertson, Kendall Cleaves, Peter Stanton, and John Butler. Ethan Moore's lariat twirling and Donald Chatfield's sleight of hand trick were generously applauded.

The third act under the Direction of Mrs. Whitehead and Mrs. Bennett pleased because of its costuming. Cubs William Cox, Jack Bennett, David Whitehead, Robert Paine, Henry Peckham, Mortimer Downey and Richard Loftus all appeared in black-face in railroad man costume and sang the "Altcheson, Topeka, and Santa Fe." The fact that they appeared unable to get the whistle shut off in the rendition of their song did not lessen the audience's enjoyment of the number a bit.

Act No. 4 put on by Mrs. W. L. Johnston's Den 3 received very, very generous applause. Malcolm and William Johnston, Trevor Smith, Robert Gaffney, Harold McKinley, Richard Beck, and Daniel Blanchard all received from "Den Mother" George DeCamp in pantomine what many den mothers are no doubt tempted to give to their Cubs in actuality. Mrs. Mona Swonger was in a very clever piece, "Den Six Version of the Pied Piper" which Mrs. Cusack's Den 6 presented very effectively. Each of the instrumental numbers by Elliott Hersey, James Cusack, John Goodnow, Claron Swonger, Joseph Neilly, and Bruce McIntyre tied into the theme of the playlet very effectively.

An Indian campfire staged by Mrs. Bushell's Den 10 featured Indian games. The pseudo Indian language challenges by Braves William Sipp, John Bushell, Henry Morgan, Winthrop Smith and William VanAtta caused many hearty laughs in the audience.

Scout Malcolm Wilson played the piano accompaniment for a chorus consisting of Chris Adams, Damon Mezzacappa, John Merritt, Charles Mirak, Marvin Wilson, Robert Adams, Thomas Kneeland, Russell McLeod, William Doughty, and Virge Babcock to sing "Song of Mexico". The combination of the Mexican hats and the difficulty the chorus had in deciding where the end of the song was added to the enjoyment of the skit.

The action of the dueling portion of the playlet, "The Three Musketeers", presented by Mrs. Wylie's Den 4 really pleased the more youthful members of the audience. Richard Wylie, Lawrence Gearin, David Fessenden, William Wylie, James Cullen, and John Bodman readily entered into their parts with a will.

The last skit, which Den 9 under the direction of Mrs. Ordway, put on, very neatly tied in a musical theme to the Cubs marching in costume. Various branches of the armed services were presented by Carter Tollman, Thomas Ordway, Werner Carlson, Phillip Dresser, John Goldthwait, and Wallace Hodge.

The whole program was closed by all the Cubs massing on the stage and singing the Star Spangled Banner which was followed by Taps.

MISS AVERY MARCH 27

Miss Eunice Harriet Avery will discuss our job in Korea and the Philippines on Wednesday, March 27, at 2:30 p. m. in the Wyman School Hall. This will be her closing lecture in the 1945-46 series sponsored by the Winchester Smith College Club, and the audience is invited to remain for a social hour with Miss Avery as guest of honor.

Mrs. Robert A. Drake, president of the Club, has announced that Miss Avery will return in the Fall to speak for the 25th consecutive season.

Ushering at this talk will be Mrs. William A. Davis and Mrs. Harry S. Parsons.

COUPLE ARRESTED ON RIDGE STREET

While on duty in Patrol 53 shortly after 2:30 Wednesday morning Officers Robert A. Elliott and Joseph L. Quigley came upon a couple sitting in a parked automobile on Ridge street whom they arrested for drunkenness.

At headquarters they gave their names as William J. O'Brien of 16 Brattle place, Arlington, and Reta H. Murray of 1223 Prospect street, Cambridge. They were later released.

Fred's Home Service Does Most Everything
Tel. 1271

Even the finest of materials cannot alone insure good performance. They must be used expertly and this takes years to develop. Consider carefully the character and reliability of the employees and employer. How wide is his cleanup, painting and jobbing experience. Will he be in business, able to serve you in years to come later.

Remember that to save a few dollars on a cheaper service is as foolish as stopping a clock to try to save time.

When you compare how much more "Fred" can give you, proven by actual year after year experiences, you will agree with many hundreds of housewives and home owners who feel they couldn't afford "not" to have Fred's Home Service. Recognize the fact that my equipment is safe and that my employees are men "not boys", also so that they receive "men's" present high time wages, and take notice that I carry insurance for all concerned."

FR. GEORGE F. WISEMAN

TRANSFERRED TO EAST PEPPERELL

It was with a feeling of loss that his many friends heard that Father Wiseman was leaving Winchester and with justifiable pride and pleasure when they realized he was to be Pastor of St. Joseph's Church in East Pepperell.

Father Wiseman, in his more than four years at St. Mary's, endeared himself to everyone with whom he came in contact and left an indelible impression which time will find hard to erase. While here he was spiritual director of the Holy Name Society which, under his guidance, developed greatly.

Boston College is Father Wiseman's Alma Mater from which he went to Maryknoll Seminary. He was ordained to the priesthood in June 1919 by the late Cardinal Hayes of New York. He spent much of the following year preaching in the interest of the Foreign Missions. In September 1920 he was sent to South China being stationed in interior Kochow in the Province of Kwangtung and in August of 1921 he took over from the French Priests the Mission in Pigman in the Province of Kwangsi. He was the first American priest in this section. Father Wiseman held this post until 1926 when he found it necessary to return to the States because of his health.

For the past 20 years he has served in various parishes in the Boston Diocese as well as being Chaplain at Regis College for one year.

In 1942 he published a book entitled "Kwangsi, The Land of the Black Banners", a story of the missions of the Province of Kwangsi. It is a translation from the French of Father Cuenot's book "Au Pays des Pavillons-Noirs." In the last chapters of the book he gives the history of the first American priests in the Province of Kwangsi.

Numerous friends have joined together and in testimony of their friendship have presented Father Wiseman with a substantial purse.

EN KA MEMBERS HEAR STREET FAIR PLANS

Perfect weather, combined with a desire to hear the plans for the 1946 En Ka Street Fair, caused a record attendance at the March meeting of En Ka. The meeting was held at the charming home of Mrs. Leon Sargent on Central street, on Tuesday, March 19th.

The Meetings Committee, always so efficient, served a delicious luncheon, under the direction of Mrs. Warren Shoemaker.

Following the luncheon, the President, Mrs. Percy Bugbee, presided over the business meeting. The pros and cons of keeping the "What-Not Shop" open were discussed. After the members had heard reports on the financial profits from the shop, and of the service it renders to the community, the vote to continue the shop was unanimous.

The reports of the Treasurer, Mrs. James Doty, and of the Finance Committee, submitted by Mrs Theodore Elliott, were received with great satisfaction, for En Ka is continuing to be an important factor in the town in oversubscribing to Winchester Charities.

The routine work disposed of, Mrs. Bugbee then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Gordon Smith, Chairman of the 1946 Street Fair. The report was presented in the form of a Tel-O-test quiz program. Each manager's phone number was called, a quiz question asked and her report was given in response.

Mrs. Ferdinand Hawley amazed the group with a display of beautiful and useful gifts, over which her committee have been busy during the past few months. There were adorable children's dresses, attractive luncheon sets, aprons, holders, and many other useful and hard-to get articles.

This year, En Ka is giving away a brand new Ford car to the winner of the lucky number. "Enthusiasm ran high over this announcement, for who, in these days couldn't use a new car? Apparently there will go like hot cakes, so it would be wise to contact Mrs. Forrest Pitman in regard to these books.

Mrs. Leslie Tucker, who is in charge of properties, announced that the Rainbow Fair will be carried out in the rainbow colors. Further plans will be divulged later.

Mrs. Theodore Elliott was busy taking orders for Easter delivery of lilies and tulips. She will also have for sale seedlings and seeds for spring gardens.

Mrs Carke Staples announced that our old favorite Ken Reeves will appear in person to conduct his famed and Pot-of Gold dance in the Town Hall.

Mrs. Victor Wolff stated that she would conduct a country store. The merchants in town have contributed generously to this project. In this charming there will be everything for sale from thread to peppermint sticks.

There will be the usual wonderful supper in the Town Hall. This will be under the management of Mrs. Leland Carter. Luncheon, tea, hot dogs, ice cream, etc., will all be served during the day. Detailed information concerning the booths will come later, when plans are perfected.

Co-chairmen Shanklin and Mrs. Richard Harlow disclosed that plans are in the making for a gigantic midway. This is one of the big attractions of the Fair for young and old. More about that later.

Save the date, Saturday, May 18. Once more En Ka will celebrate with a Street Fair, and we hope all Winchesterites will have the carnival spirit and join with us in fun-making for a worthy cause.

The Town Line Cafe, located just over the Winchester-Woburn line, at the corner of Cross and Main streets, in Woburn, was badly burned yesterday morning by a two-alarm fire that called men and apparatus from Winchester and Stoneham to the assistance of the Woburn Department.

Woburn Box 56 came in at 6:45 a. m. with a second alarm at 7:05. The Woburn firemen, upon arriving at the fire, had to devote their first efforts to getting out persons living in apartments above the cafe. Three women were among those taken down ladders by the firemen to safety.

Winchester sent Ladder 1 and Engine 3 and 4 to Woburn with Chief John J. Gorman in charge. The local firemen laid hose, raised ladders, pumped and in all worked 3½ hours, not a little of their efforts being toward preventing nearby property from catching fire. While Winchester was at the fire, Arlington's aerial ladder covered in at the Central Station.

The fire is thought to have originated in a small rubbish area at the back of the cafe. Firemen were puzzled at the progress made by the flames in so short a time, the fire being a particularly hot one. Though the rooms at the front of the building on the Cross street side were not badly burned, the damage behind them was so extensive that it is hardly likely much of anything can be salvaged.

Few fires outside Winchester could have occasioned more local interest, for the Town Line Cafe has since its inception been a popular eating place for Winchester people, it having a well-earned reputation for fine food.

Many here will be pleased to learn that Manager John Ahern announced to the Star yesterday afternoon that just as soon as arrangements can be made he will rebuild and reopen his establishment. He estimates his damage as between 50 and 60 thousand dollars.

EDWIN BISSELL HOLT

Aug. 21, 1873 — Jan. 25, 1946

The following tribute to Dr. Edwin B. Holt appeared in The Daily Princetonian of June 15, 1936, and was read as a part of his funeral service on January 28, 1946. He was buried at Wildwood Cemetery in Winchester, Massachusetts.

"This June, after 10 years at Princeton, Prof. Edwin B. Holt, one of the most eminent psychologists of the modern world, is retiring. His numerous philosophical and scientific books and papers have won for him a permanent place in the history of philosophy and psychology, and have brought great fame to Princeton University. All undergraduates who have taken his celebrated course in Social Psychology will agree that this University never had a more stimulating and enforcing lecturer and preceptor.

"For Professor Holt combines in an extraordinary degree teaching ability with a great personal charm. His lectures were a delight to hear, and I never met a student who did not regard the scheduled time for his precepts to finish as fascinated that they could not bear to miss one of them. He possesses the unique combination of the teacher who compels all his pupils to think for themselves and to express in an intelligent manner concepts and propositions which they have held through thoughtlessness and superstition.

"It is probably not too much to term Professor Holt the Voltaire of present-day America; those who have come in contact with him have found themselves, in later life, more able to resist the effect of propaganda and ideologies wielded by unscrupulous people of every sort. He is a rugged individualist; at a time when even so scholarly a nation as Germany has succumbed to the sterile regimentation of Fascism, it is important in America to have men like Professor Holt who will teach us to see through the shams and cruelties of contemporary civilization.

"No man of the Faculty has been kinder to students with individual problems than Professor Holt. During his ten years here, many bewildered or troubled undergraduates have found him enthusiastically willing to devote hours of sympathetic and friendly analysis to their personal problems. His advice has always been characterized by kindly understanding and sound common sense. Students have felt that here was a man who was absolutely candid and fearless.

"It is greatly to the credit of this University that Professor Holt has been a member of its Faculty. He has done us and our University a signal honor by dwelling among us for ten years, and the knowledge and wisdom of life which he has distilled for us will never be forgotten."

Ed. Note—Dr. Holt was a native of Winchester, a descendent on his mother's side from the Cutters of Cutter Village. He graduated from Winchester High School and from Harvard in 1896, receiving his master's degree from Columbia and his Ph.D. from Harvard. He was one of Professor William James most distinguished students.

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LUNCHEON

Bouquets go to Mrs. R. H. B. Smith and her committee of the Florence Crittenton Circle for handling record-breaking crowds at the gay spring luncheon last Friday afternoon.

The lobsters did their part and put themselves into being the best lobster newburg ever, the weather did its part and the sun shone on the veritable flower garden of spring hats which graced the occasion, the long-suffering husbands did their part, doing the heavy lifting and accepting the fact that wife could make 30 gallons of lobster for the Florence Crittenton and not one pint for home consumption; but most of all Ruth Smith and Lee Connors and the committee did their part in putting in this great gala spring function.

Even the long line of "plate-holders" had a good time. There was general voting as the line moved forward to the buffet table that everyone said she had an opportunity to sample every new "dish" in order to catch up on all the gossip since last fall.

The parish house at the Unitarian Church was a bower of fresh forsythia provided by the decoration committee, Mrs. Chas. P. Underwood and Mrs. S. F. Calhoun.

The tables planned for by Mrs. D. F. Connors looked very pretty with their gay prizes in the center, and what could have been more than those jars of jelly in these days when any spread for bread is a prize indeed.

Tickets were in charge of Mrs. H. M. Meyer; the food table was very tempting indeed and presided over by Mrs. Frederick Asseltine and Mrs. Langley Keyes while Mrs. Maxwell McCreery was chairman of waitresses.

Heading the donations, were Mrs. Thomas Scott and Mrs. H. T. Wadsworth.

The actual luncheon was the work of ten table cooks: Mrs. R. H. B. Smith, Mrs. Gilbert Hood, Jr., and Mrs. E. G. Pierce, Jr., in charge of the lobster newburg; coffee, Mrs Charles Jacobs, Mrs. H. E. Fifield; croustades and rolls Mrs. W. X. Lyon; vegetables Mrs. M. Jones, Mrs. Arthur Scott; dessert; Mrs. James McGovern and Mrs. Denton Randall.

The president of the Circle Mrs. Walter Winship was responsible for the handsome hand bag used as a prize.

Also Miss Louise Brown, Mrs. Robert MacArthur and Miss Leila Jane Smith.

It was a lovely party and lived up to the fine tradition of Florence Crittenton spring luncheon of the past.

FRENCH CLASSES "ADOPT" ORPHANS

Inspired by the lecture given by Mr. McJannet to all French classes in the Winchester schools, pupils of the Junior and Senior High School have made extensive contributions of food and clothing to be packed and sent to French children orphaned by war and its consequences. The procedure followed has been for classes or individuals to "adopt" young people whose names and short biographies are known to the foster "parents."

Already several boxes have been sent off and French classrooms in both schools are piled high with a variety of foodstuffs and clothing which awaits shipment. Some of the items will be sent by way of the American Relief for France, Inc., and others will go into special overseas containers.

Two hundred and twenty-six towels have been collected in the two schools and these will be shipped to Mr McJannet's camp.

The procedure for "adopting" an orphan is to agree to send one six pound package per month of food and clothing. In addition, many of the pupils, worrying about the fact that directions on packages are printed in English, have decided to send letters to the orphan of their choice.

Miss Mary Mackesdon, head of the high school French Department, has said that anyone, pupils or adults, in school or out, may take part in this worthy project by selecting a young-ster and agreeing to the requirements. No recent activity of similar nature has been so enthusiastically supported as this, which has the added feature of knowing to whom the parcels are being sent and why that individual is definitely worthy.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE CLUB

The mid-season meeting of the Winchester-Wellesley Club will be held Thursday, April 4 at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. Blanche S. Barnard, 16 Wedgemere avenue.

Mrs. Constance Corey, College Dietician, will speak on Post War Housekeeping at Wellesley. The work of the Long Range Planning Committee will be explained by Mrs. Alexander S. MacDonald, a member of the committee.

Tea will be served. All Winchester residents who have attended Wellesley are welcome.

KURILS AND KARAFUTO

The cold and foggy Kuril Islands and near-by Karafuto, which Secretary of State Byrnes disclosed were promised to Russia at the Yalta conference, were bleak northern outposts of the Japanese Empire.

Despite their inhospitable nature, the National Geographic Society points out, these thinly populated mountainous stretches added to Japan's food and fuel supplies during both peace and war.

In the Kurils, a mist-enshrouded chain of volcanic peaks, Japanese fishermen processed the quantities of salmon, cod, and crab which they caught in the surrounding waters. For spare time work they hunted grizzly bears, sables, and foxes.

Japanese Obtained Russian Oil

From Karafuto, the Japanese name for the southern part of the long, narrow island of Sakhalin, lumber and wood pulp were obtained. Fishing also was a major enterprise, and coal was mined in the highlands. In addition, the Japanese held concessions for oil from the extensive fields in the northern part of the island, which already was Russian territory.

The location of these possessions too, was important to the Japanese, because thereby they were able to share with the Russians control of the Sea of Okhotsk. The Kurils stretch across the frigid Pacific, from Hokkaido, northernmost of the Japanese home islands, to the tip of Siberia's Kamchatka Peninsula. They bar the entrance to the Sea of Okhotsk, which is formed by a huge indentation in the Siberian coast west of Kamchatka.

Directly north of Hokkaido, the island of Sakhalin hugs the Siberian coast and is part of the western boundary of the Sea of Okhotsk. Transfer of Karafuto and the Kurils means that aside from the northern coast of Hokkaido, the Sea is encircled by Russian territory.

Agriculture Handicapped

Before the war both Russians and Japanese had been developing their portions of Sakhalin which is slightly larger than West Virginia. The Japanese had been urging farmers to move there but the severe climate and the rugged land, with two parallel mountain ranges, have handicapped agricultural development. Instead, forestry and fishing have occupied most of the Japanese residents of Karafuto, who in prewar years exceeded 350,000.

Karafuto nevertheless has been more attractive to settlers than the Kurils. Although Chishima Retto, the Japanese name for the Kurils, means "thousand islands", not more than 32 of the steep, rocky exposures are large enough to be dignified with the title of islands. Snow covers the ground from the middle of September to June, and then heavy fog sets in.

After the Japanese took possession of the Kurils in 1875, they segregated on one island the native Ainus, who have strong Caucasian characteristics. Aside from fishermen, however, few Japanese had moved to the region until military bases were manned during the war. American ships and bombers repeatedly attacked the islands because of their military installations.

BOWLING HONORS TO CAPT. OTIS LEARY

After many valiant attempts to reach the top of the Teachers' Club Bowling League, Capt. Otis Leary led this week's team into first place while the erstwhile leaders cantained by Fred Felmet and Arthur Butters were knocking each other off in sucessive weeks.

A week ago the Felmets took three points from the Butterses, but this week the tables were turned as the Butters team took four from the Felmets.

The final standing gives Learv 55 points, Butters 34 and Felmet 33. According to the Cooper rating system, Mr. Felmet took scoring honors with a single of 146 and a three string of 341.

Miss Mary Cullen placed first among the women bowlers with a high single of 113 and threestring total of 310.

The Felmets also took team scoring honors with a single string of 384 and total of 1062. All teams were composed of four bowlers.

Francis H. Russell

SPEAKER AT HIGH SCHOOL MONDAY NIGHT

Mr. Francis H. Russell, who will speak in the High School Auditorium next Monday evening, April 1st at 8:15, is from the State Department. His subject, "Our Role in World Affairs" is of widespread interest, and since he has just returned from the first meeting of the UNO Assembly in London, his information is up-to-the-minute. Everyone is welcome to attend this lecture and tickets at 85 cents are still available.

Mr. Russell engaged in economic warfare work for the State Department between 1941 and 1944, and traveled on several missions to Europe and South America. For some time he has been engaged in public liaison work, and his lecture in Boston recently how much attention. Those who often consider the exact functions of the State Dept. a puzzle will have many questions answered on Monday evening.

VAUDEVILLE PRE-VIEW

The musical revue, "Aberjona" which will open the Vaudeville show this year represents a departure from the program of previous years in an attempt to introduce novelty and variety to the annual production.

"Aberjona", with apologies to "Oklahoma", is highly featured by local color. It presents to the public some brand new dramatic and musical talent from all four classes in the school.

Not the least significant factor in its success is the hard work done by the stage crew, headed by Don Goss of the Junior Class, who have spent many hours after school and on Saturdays, building scenery and solving the problems of lighting and stage effects which such an ambitious project entails.

Mr. Samuel Graves of the high school faculty is in charge of coaching the skit and feels confident that it will be well received by the audience.

Splendid co-op ration has been given by the music department of the school under the direction of Miss Alma Stoddard in preparing and coaching the numerous song hits of the revue.

Th Art Department of the high school under the direction of the art teacher, Miss Dorothy Sharples, has produced during the past few weeks many truly art-tic posters for the Vaudevill- show. Many of these may be seen in the store windows down town and in the grade schools this week and next.

On Friday morning, March 29, a preview of the show will be offered the student body as a foretaste of what the show has in store in the way of good entertainment, and on Friday afternoon, April 5, a matinee for grad and junior high school students will be presented as in previous years.

The curtain on the evening performances will open promptly at 8:15 and everyone is urged to be on hand on time for the opening curtain.

In addition to the "Aberjona" skit, there will be 18 single acts on the program, offering a great variety of talent and entertainment, none of which will be more than five minutes in length, but five minutes packed with an intense desire to entertain on the part of the youthful entertainers.

The ticket sale is very gratifying already and promises packed houses for both nights.

This year the ushers for the evening shows will be girls instead of boys.

NEW HONOR FOR WEST

"Bill" West, son of Mr. an Mrs. John D. West of Wedgemere avenue, has been elected by his company to the Honor Committee at the United States Military Academy where he is a third classman and a member of Company F-2.

This is a real distinction for "Bill" since all phases of student activity are keyed to the Honor System at West Point. Election to the Honor Committee is greatly coveted and marks those chosen as outstanding in their groups.

"Bill" received news of his election while in the Cadet Hospital recovering from an operation on his knee, th result of an athletic injury. The former Winchester High football "great" and captain of the school's unbeaten, untied Class C Championship team in 1942, has played regularly in the West Point backfield and has been a member of the hockey and lacrosse teams. He is currently back at classes after his operation which was reported as very successful.

PROVINZANO REPORTS TO SCRANTON

"Pete" Provinzano, former Winchester High and Elks star right hand pitcher, left Tuesday for the training camp of the Scranton Club of the Eastern League at Greenville, N. C., after settling salary differences with the club authorities.

"Pete" pitched for Scranton, a Red Sox farm team, before he went into the Army Air Forces, and did well. He figure he was worth a good bit more than the Scranton Club offered him and apparently the Club finally came around to his way of thinking for he was ordered Monday to report.

BASEBALL CANDIDATES OUT

Coach Henry Knowlton has had his Winchester High School baseball candidates outdoors on Manchester Field this week and intra-squad games were scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday to see how the boys look under actual game conditions.

Coach Knowlton has a huge squad out and with Frank Provenzano to help him he hopes to keep most of the candidates busy during the whole season, schedules having been arranged for the junior varsity and scrub squads.

Winchester opens its Middlesex League schedule Tuesday afternoon, April 23, when Wakefield comes to Manchester Field. However Coach Knowlton hopes to arrange a game earlier than that late with Phillips Andover Academy as he did last year.

The locale' big problem is pitching and actual chucking in games is the only way to develop this important factor.

SPOKE AT WORCESTER HEALTH MEETING

Henry T Knowlton, Winchester High School's director of Physical Education spoke last Saturday at the Massachusetts Society for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation at State Teacher's College in Worcester.

Mr. Knowlton was one of the speakers in the recreation division of the meeting. Another speaker, in the health division was Mrs. Chester Baker of Boston, the former Mary Fulton Carr of this town, who is associated with the State Department of Health.

William A. Wilde, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Wilde of Edgehill road, is a fireman, 1c, serving aboard the USS Chewaucen, a gasoline tanker, engaged in supplying fuel to central Pacific Islands. He has been overseas seven months, is a Winchester High School graduate and former member of Lou Goddu's Sea Scout Ship Tarquin.

THE 9-20 CLUB

By far the most popular organization in the Country today is the 9-20 Club. Exclusive to a degree, in that only the employees are eligible, with employers excluded, although they alone pay the dues, the Club is forging to the front. From a comparatively small beginning it held a modest membership through the War. Now its members number in the millions and they are still growing. The Club derives its name from the fact that its members visit the "Security" Board at 9 each week and draw their $20. This continues through such period as the members desire to do no work. The up-keep and expenses of the Club are paid by all employers. And woe to the employer who fails to subscribe and pay his allotment. With all men free and equal, this Club portrays an illuminating factor in our New Deal interpretation of the American Constitution, and its exclusive membership is a factor which sets its membership group apart from today's common herd of employers, who are not only supporting the Club, but who are compelled to guess and pay their taxes a year in advance of any earnings and then collect the taxes and "the other" Social Security of all who design to work for them. The Club is most enthusiastically backed by the New Deal and bids fair to grow in popularity and largess. It is a "coming" institution in American life.

THEIR SOULS ARE DEAD

To the Editor of the Star:

"Breathes there the man with soul so dead, who never to himself hath said, This is my own, my native land!"

In the social scale that measures manhood and patriotism where do the Congressmen who think more of themselves than of their country, who are too cowardly to vote now for what they know is right and for the good of the nation lest they be defeated in the next election and are retired to private life, those legislators who have demonstrated with obsequious cringe their subservience to John L. Lewis and his C. I. O. henchmen, where do these men stand if not at the bottom of the sociological group?

Investment counselors, leading editorial writers in the political field, radio broadcasters, keen to sense the trend of events have said over and over again in recent months that it is vain to try to legislate what is acknowledged to be needed reforms until after election because the legislators place their own welfare above that of their country. Watch your representative in Congress. If he is evasive when you ask him where he stands don't vote for him. He is an ignoble individual who will not vote before election the way he will afterwards.

Boss Lewis is using the same tactics with the C. I. O. that organized labor in France followed that destroyed their union and wrecked the nation, shorter and shorter hours of spiritless work, more and more pay and benefits, blackmail and intimidation of legislators, selfishness satisfied by expecting tribute from the masses that toil long hours for poor pay and then must contribute their pittance to support Lewis in opulence and his henchmen in more than their fair share of the rewards of labor. The majority in Congress does not dare to legislate for equal rights and justice. It will not vote to have organized labor subject to the same laws that govern organized industry, not until after the November election at any rate.

When a member was told he should vote against strikes because they retard production necessary for prosperity he replied, "Oh, that would be political suicide." Naive indeed and an accurate measure of his character and disloyalty to his country. Measure this man against Nathan Hale, the American patriot, who said when about to be executed by the British, "I only regret I have but one life to give to my country." How picayune these revelations show some Congressmen to be. The clique that votes as Lewis dictates will never live down the disgrace of doing it. Their souls are dead.

Very truly yours,
Daniel C. Dennett, M. D.

TOWN MEETING MEMBERS UNINFORMED

To the Editor of the Star:

As an interested observer of the Town Meeting last week, it has seemed to me that perhaps our representatives do not always know how the majority of their constituents stand on the various issues that are presented. Undoubtedly, they discuss these issues beforehand with their friends and acquaintances and, in this way, they do hear the expressions of different points of view. I suspect, however, that their conclusions are oftentimes the result of their own independent thoughts on these matters.

We elect able men and women as Town Meeting members. They are leaders in their communities and they are naturally interested in doing what is best for the Town. But the inherent weakness in our system, it seems to me, is that the Town Meeting members on the one hand and their constituents on the other hand do not really know how each stands on the issues to be decided. Regardless of how able our representatives may be, it would seem that their judgment should be tempered by the thoughts of the majority of the Town-minded people in their respective precincts.

Would it not help to bring our system of representation more in harmony with the democratic ideals of government, if our Town Meeting members would confer with their constituents before Town Meeting and conduct with them a free and open discussion of the issues facing the Town? The cost thereof, I believe, would be outweighed by two benefits to the Town. First-interest in the affairs of Winchester would be stimulated. Second-the Town Meeting members would be better prepared to act responsively to the thoughts of a greater number of people.

APPRECIATION

The Winchester Conservatories wish to express their sincere thanks to the members of the Fire Department for their efficient work at last Saturday's fire at their plant.

The town is fortunate to have a Department of such high caliber.

THE HIGH SCHOOL PROBLEM

To the Editor of the Star:

At the last Town Meeting, one plan was advanced as a possible solution to the current High School—Ginn Estate problem. It consisted of moving the Junior High group to the High School building and the Senior High group to the present Junior High, which would be enlarged and properly equipped.

It was pointed out that an enlargement to the Junior High was not only desirable at the present time, but absolutely necessary because of its inadequacy to accommodate the increased number of pupils. This enlargement will be carried out regardless of whether or not the Town purchases the Ginn Estate, and the taxpayers of Winchester will be called upon to underwrite this necessary expansion. Estimated plans run around one-half a million dollars.

It was also pointed out that the present High School building is not overcrowded, but rather that it lacks certain types of laboratories and modern equipment; that in general, the building was antiquated when seen in the light of newly constructed high schools.

Opponents of the plan of exchanging the school buildings point out that if this were done, even considering the anticipated enlargement to the Junior High, it would still be too small for the Senior High enrollment and that there would be an excess of unwanted rooms for the Junior High group in the High School building. This argument seemed a good one under the present set-up.

However, the writer believes that this plan has merit and wishes to offer a further recommendation which is briefly this: Winchester should adopt the 3-3 Year Plan whereby the Junior High would consist of grades 7, 8, and 9 with grades 10-12 composing the Senior High. This plan is followed in nearly all the nearby towns and cities. In Winchester it would result in an immediate reduction of space requirements for the Senior High group with a corresponding need for increased Junior High space. Then by exchanging schools, the excess space in the present High School building could be used to advantage while not such a large addition would be needed to accommodate the High School set-up in the Junior High building.

This plan would provide for the High School those requirements which the School Committee feels are necessary, namely: new laboratory rooms, cafeteria, auditorium, and gymnasium, as well as more regular classrooms, in the new addition. A certain amount of renovation and relocation of classrooms would probably be necessary in the existing Junior High, but the writer feels that considering all the above, the entire cost of the project plus of any necessary and desirable reconditioning of the High School for Junior High use would still fall many hundreds of thousands of dollars short of the cost of the one plan which seems to hold favor with the School Committee. It is hoped that the newly formed committee to study all the existing plans to our school problems will give this one its consideration since it is felt that the needs for many years to come would be possible through this plan with great savings to the taxpayers of Winchester.

CHARLESTOWN STATE PRISON

To the Editor of the Star:

In reading the report recommending the removal of the Charlestown State Prison to Concord I am impressed to find a man that can make such a common sense report. In my opinion Warden Lawes shows a great deal of business judgement when he recommends an addition to the prison at Concord for Charlestown inmates, in this way saving very large expenditures for new administrative buildings, dining halls, and everything that goes with a new institution. Concord is well situated to take care of the additional men that will be transferred from Charlestown. The money received for the old Charlestown Prison will go a long way toward paying the expense of the new additions required at Concord. Can you imagine a politically constituted committee making any such common sense report? It just isn't done.

Winchester Schools

I hope that the committee now investigating the school house situation in Winchester will take notice of this report and govern itself accordingly. Too many frills are a detriment to a good education. We are now over-educating a great many children with knowledge that they can never use when they go out into the world. A good many of our high school pupils have difficulty in using the plain fundamentals that should go with a good education.

Mr. Editor, this is a little old-fashioned but now is the time to build a strong educational system in Winchester. Pardon me for making this comparison.

TOWN MEETING ECHOS

There was a nice turnout for the opening session of this year's limited town meeting, but those outside the charmed circle evidently were disappointed with the show for there were few on hand for the adjourned session the following Thursday. Even "Mack" stayed away, first time in years.

In a way those who didn't turn out for the adjourned meeting missed it! That school debate was something. After spending nearly an hour arguing the pros and cons of referring all the school articles to a committee for report in June, with the heft of the arguments against, not a single negative voice was heard when it came to the final vote.

Old timers, many of them, rate this year's meeting high among drab sessions, but for our money it wasn't quite so "zanny" as the one where they passed individually a number of amendments to the limited town meeting act, and then voted not to petition the General Court for permission to make the voted changes. That action has always been tops for dumbness in our book.

That hum in Ed Sanderson's public address system was the police radio at work. It faded out when the Patrol cars moved out of range. Pretty good system, at that isn't it. "Ed" was nervous as a witch about it, first off, but all smiles after hearing it awhile.

Bob Stone surely gave the meeting something to think about in that lengthy, but intensely interesting, address he made in opposition to the School Committee's program, and Bob has a School Committee background. Let's see wasn't he chairman for two years in a row?

The hand he got led us to be believe that a number of people felt as he did, but no one voted that way on the show-down. Perhaps they were just giving him "A" for effort. He surely deserved it. He must have gone into things pretty deeply to have all the facts and figures he gave, and many will agree with him that it is virtually impossible for any committee to give anything like a really considered opinion of, or recommendations upon, the School Committee's plans by June.

There is no harm in wondering, and we do wonder, whether Mr. Stone and Mr. Cullen will be put on that committee on schools as Mr. Ayer suggested. Course Joe Worthen has an "out" in the case of Mr. Stone, who said a man would have to give up his business to arrive at any sort of a conclusion in the matter by June. That would probably affect Mr. Cullen's availability too, Jimmy is pretty busy this time of year.

It was evidently a case of "the old school tie" with Jimmy. If you didn't go to Winchester High you just can't appraise the place fairly, or at least those who didn't don't seem to see eye to eye with Jim's on any appraisal.

And while we are on the Cullen family we didn't hear any one answer Mrs. Cullen when she asked the meeting what the town bought the Skillings place for.

This year's meeting was certainly the one in which to go after anything. When "Nate" Nichols could get anything he asked for out of his "pals" in the charmed circle, anything was possible. Incidentally, whether they were for or against him, you will have to admit that the "best tax collector in Massachusetts" handled his case very well.

You can believe it or not, of course, but we don't think Capt. Chadwick really meant he would like to have seen Mr. Nichols boiled in oil.

Charlie Gleason admitted having had his differences with Mr. Nichols, and that probably was an understatement.

Mr. Kerr stated the Finance Committee's position very well indeed at the opening of the meeting and his "first things first" sounded fine. Like a lot of other good advice, however, it didn't mean anything.

When George Davidson and the Recreationers start breaking bread together then the millennium is just around the corner. George didn't act like he was ready for that memorial Edgar Rich wants to put up for him while he was fighting for the appropriation for the west side playground. Joe Worthen didn't hurt the appropriation's chances any when he said he'd speak for it, "if he could." The Finance Committee probably figured he did speak, and pretty blamed effectively too. After all he's up pretty high at the head of that flight of stairs, and all.

Lot of folks undoubtedly shared Bob Guild's hope that the addition to the Snow and Ice account is to provide bigger snowplows. And others undoubtedly wondered where all that sand we heard about was spread.

That was a nice tribute Chairman Bonnell of the Selectmen paid retiring Fire Chief John Gorman, and the best part of it all is the fact that it is richly deserved. Everyone in the know regrets that the town can no longer benefit by Jack's fire knowledge and executive ability.

Town Meeting galley 12.

And that fireman's hours business, there wasn't too much objection to giving the "boys in blue and silver" the 70 hours week. Chairman Bonnell surely acted as if he meant it when he said he did not like to voice the Selectmen's opposition. And the Financiers did not have anything to say on that one, at all.

By the way, we have finally heard a speaker admit he had been retained as counsel for a proposition. Bill Speers always has been known as a straight shooter and he told the meeting he had been secured to argue the Firemen's cause. He of course is not the first lawyer who has been engaged to put something over in town meeting, but we don't ever remember hearing anyone before preface his argument by admitting such to be the case.

The meeting surely had a lot of confidence in Mr. West, chairman of the Recreation Commission. He admitted he had no program and did not know what it was all about at the moment, but the delegates voted him authority, and funds, to do whatever he does want to do when he decides what it is. Perhaps they figured in a pinch he could "double in brass" as an entertainer after watching his little act with those pie-plates and crown.

Anyhow, we'll bet Woburn is glad we own an aerial ladder-truck, and some "little country town" is going to have our big Ahrens-Fox, if it wants it.

Mr. Hewis stood alone in his opposition to transferring the collection of garbage by the Highway Department, but that is no novelty, to him.

Mr. Rich probably didn't intend it that way, but after listening to his historic resume many probably felt ti was not necessary to own a town history. He covered an awful lot of ground in what after all was a relatively short time, in bringing the meeting up-to-date form Miles Standish to George Davidson.

And of course he did not mean it just the way it sounded about the memorial for George. Seems as if some one wanted to put one up for George last year, too. Better let the statues wait! George is still going strong and is a hard man to beat on the floor of town meeting at that.

Mr. Cullen was all for the Firemen but a lot of them, in strategic spots around the hall, were holding their breaths while he was talking about cutting lawns on the side. Would not the late Jonas Laraway have been up on that one, though!

Mr. Pike really looked as if he wanted to "keep his left high" and his chin behind his shoulder when Mr. Borggaard was putting him through that third degree.

Nice of Mr. Morton to ask the School Committee if Mr. Parkhami's amendment was satisfactory to them, and he very quickly found out, that it was not.

We have already heard there will be a referendum on that Ginn High School proposition, if it gets the limited town meeting, and there are those who are not so keen about turning a town building over to the Hobby Group, no matter how meritorious their program is. There can very easily be other privately run groups who want similar consideration, too. Here's hoping those who put through those six-bller bleacher seats have to sit on them at a crowded game. They may counter with the crack that you CAN sit on them after all, but they still won't have too much there, at that.

And by the way, wherever were all those enthusiasts who were just going to have a stadium or else. Talk after the football season and silence at town meeting does not put up any stands. Of course that School proposition on the Ginn estate may have spiked their guns, temporarily, and we may hear something from them, in June, In fact, we think we may hear from a lot of folks at that June meeting. Better plan to be there, if you are still in town!

Might be something in using the Wadleigh building for a science lab, and those tunnels under the road are intriguing too. The kids would love them in a big way.

We only heard from Mrs. Woodside once, and from Mr. Crough-well, the sage of Swanton street, not at all.

Mr. Rowe did the honors as usual.

HIT AND RUN

To the Editor of the Star:

Perhaps the brave creature who killed my little dog on Monday p. m. may read this. To him, or her, he was only a dog; to us he had been one of the family for 10 years. It would seem to me that common decency would have caused the party who killed him to stop; this sense of decency was lacking.

Thank God a child was not hit! There are small children in this neighborhood and because of the curve to the left of my house, no child would have had a chance were he on the spot, two feet from the sidewalk, where my little dog was hit. The speed limit on the Parkway is 30-35 miles an hour; by actual clocking the usual speed is very much higher. The Metropolitan Police make scheduled patrols past this spot but their area is large and drivers know it is pretty safe to step on the gas. It is my earnest belief that our local police should have traffic jurisdiction between Highland avenue and Bacon street on Mystic Valley Parkway. Before a tragedy occurs, let the Selectmen look into this situation.

My thanks to the officer who so kindly took care of my faithful companion and a warning to the creature who hit and ran—next time it may be a child.

Very truly yours,
Gladys N. Toye

Talk...Talk...Talk

Every day, words flow in an endless stream from the mouths of all of us. Occasionally, someone chooses a few significant phrases that put a final period to all talk that has gone before.

One day, in another city, a stranger in a barbershop was sounding off. "The trouble with my bank is..." and he started a tirade about a service charge on his checking account, and a blast against banks in general. When he was finished, a voice from a lathered face in the next chair came to life. "Glad to know how you feel about that; come over to the bank someday and I'll be glad to straighten it out."

So, if you have a question about any banking service, instead of just complaining to the world at large, talk to your banker who can and will do something about it.

WINCHESTER CONTRACTOR TO ERECT MARYCLIFF ACADEMY BUILDINGS

To the Editor of the Star:

I am happy to inform you that I have just been awarded a contract for the erection of a school building for Marycliff Academy on High street in Winchester.

You will recall that I made my announcement regarding the reopening of my offices on March 15 so that in a period of less than two weeks I have received my first contract, which will be in the vicinity of one-half a million dollars.

The building will be of first-class construction and has been designed by Maginnis and Walsh, eminent church and school architects of Boston, Mass. Excavating operations for the building commenced last Friday, and construction operations will proceed as rapidly as will be allowed by the Government order just issued.

You might wish to note that I was recently released from the Navy as Lt. Commander and that my residence is at 69 Grove street, Winchester.

Very truly yours,
John A. Volpe,
Volpe Construction Co.

K. OF C. NOTES

It has been announced by the Communion breakfast committee that Fr. Edmund Sirois, newly appointed chaplain of the Winchester council, will be the guest speaker at their annual communion breakfast to be held at the Winchester Town Hall on Sunday, April 7. This year's breakfast promises to be the biggest turnout in a good number of years.

The members of the council extend their deepest sympathies to Brother Francis Tarpey on the death of his father, who died the past week.

The annual waffle party tournament between the local Elks and K. of C. will terminate this Friday night, when the two teams meet in the final matches at the Elks' room. The Elks have a commanding lead and it looks like the chicken dinners will be on the K. of C. this year.

Motion pictures of the local high school football games will be shown by Coach Henry Knowlton at the next meeting to be held at the council rooms on next Monday night, April 1.

The committee in charge of the "Gay Ninety" party to be sponsored by the local council report that Saturday, April 27 has been selected for the night of the affair.

Singing waiters, costumes, and barber shop quartets promises to make this party one of the highlights of the 1946 events.

Chairman "Mike" Foley and Bro. Charlie Haggerty head a large and active committee.

All brothers who are interested in playing softball are urged to report to Coach Danny O'Donnell at A. Cullen Field on next Sunday afternoon for practice.

It will be good news to all the brothers to learn that Bro. Joe Lynch is expected to be released from the hospital this week. Joe has been confined to the Brooks Hospital in Brighton the past three weeks with blood poison.

Don't forget next regular meeting next Monday night April 1. This promises to be a swell meeting so don't forget to be there.

SPEAKS AT N.E.W. ENGLAND ROOFERS' CONVENTION

Thomas L. Morison of Highland Ave., vice president of Boston Chapter, National Association of Roof Manufacturers, was the speaker of the evening this week at the New England Convention of the New England Approved Roofers' Association in the main ballroom of the Copley Plaza Hotel.

Mr. Morison in his talk stressed the importance of industry being able to determine its costs of operation, as well as maintaining control over these costs, that too many concerns estimate their costs without adequate bookkeeping records to substantiate their estimates thus something after a project is completed a firm finds they have lost money and that at least simple forms of cost accounting records should be kept to assist companies in quoting prices on a competitive market, from which they will realize a normal profit.

The Fire Department answered alarms for two grass fires Tuesday afternoon, at 1:10 going to Westland avenue, and at 8:01 to Swanton street. Box 35 was put on for the second fire which was on land owned by former Selectman James Cullen.

BETTER HOMES GARDEN CLUB

A meeting of the Winchester Better Homes Garden Club was held on Wednesday, March 20th at the public library, Mrs. Austin Bunker, presiding. It was reported that 290 tickets to the Flower Show were sold by club members. Mrs. Bunker spoke in appreciation of Winchester's representation at the Flower show, an arrangement of red and green leaves by Mrs. Virgil Strandtmann. The speaker of the afternoon was Mr. George Graves, associate editor of Horticulture Magazine, who talked about Garden Mistakes. He spoke humorously of the Good Housekeeper, who, he says does not make a good gardener. The Good Housekeeper's instinct is to rake up and burn garden refuse, which, according to latest findings is poor garden practice. Instead of gathering up all the dead leaves, says Mr. Graves, rake some under the shrubs where they will rot and nourish the shrub bed. This is nature's way of feeding wild trees and plants. Grass clippings, which are rich in nitrogen shoud be left on the lawn.

Improper pruning is another garden mistake. The popular method is to give a shrub a hair cut. The shrub emerges a hideous ball-shaped object, horn of its graceful arching branches. The proper way is to prune at ground level, cutting out one third of the oldest wood. Most hedges are pruned wide at the top, and so thin at the bottom that a dog can run through. Instead they should be thick at ground level, sloping up to a narrow top.

At the close of the meeting tea was served at the home of Mrs. John Gilbody opposite the library. Officiating at the tea table were Mrs. Clifton Hall, and Mrs. R. K. Miller.

WINCHESTER GIRL SCOUTS

The 28th anniversary of the Girl Scout National Court of Honor last week at Atlantic City was crowded with delegates from all but two of the United States, Mrs. Clarence A. Roberts, Commissioner of the Winchester Council of Girl Scouts and Mrs. Alfred E. Newson, leader and council friend of the delegation and Miss Barbara Metcalf, executive director, attended as an alternate.

The convention opened on Wednesday afternoon with a flagpromise ceremony by the Association Isle Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts, in which Brownies, Cubs, Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts gave their promises.

Dr. Harold D. Meyer of the University of North Carolina, speaking on "Citizenship in Action" urged that less stress be put on juvenile delinquency and more on Youth Adequacy in a community. He considers Girl Scouting a positive approach to girlhood, stirring the initative and imagination of the girlhood of the world, as hands are stretched out to all corners of the earth. He called for dynamic leadership to guide these young people whose courage and faith must shape the atomic world of tomorrow.

The business of the convention in addition to the election of officers included certain changes in the wording of the Constitution with reference to the purpose, program and religious policy of the National Council; the adoption of the Association form of Council, in which all registered Girl Scout adults in a community are, together, responsible for the development of the program in that community. This includes present council members, leaders, troop committee members and consultants. It was also voted that each community should decide the time of the transition from Brownies to Girl Scouts and to Senior Scouts.

The highlight of the convention was the banquet at which many representatives of other National Youth Organizations were guests and greetings were given by Mrs. John Corbett, Commissioner of Canada, Mrs. Jan Papanek from Czechoslovakia, Mlle. Antoinette Gommes of France, Madame E. Van Den Bosch, Commissioner of the Netherlands, and Miss Helena Z. Benitez of the Philippine Islands.

Mrs. Arthur O. Coonte, chairman of the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund Committee, introduced The Lady Baden-Powell, G. B. E., The World Chief Guide, who spoke at length on Girl Scouting and Girl Guiding throughout the world, especially mentioning the activities of scouts in the occupied countries, many of whom lost their lives in their underground operations for their countrymen.

The feeling of every one at the convention was expressed by Mrs. Alan H. Means, the retiring president who said:

"May we carry from this Eastern Seaboard the vision of Girl Scouts all over the world, that through mutual understanding and co-operation peace can be fostered and maintained."

From Troop 6 a small group of girls, who are working on the Wide World badge, paid a visit to Logan airport where they were fortunate enough to be taken on a comprehensive tour by a representative of Eastern Airlines.

Brownie Troop 21 gave a party to their mothers in connection with their investiture ceremonies on Monday, March 25th. After demonstrating some of the songs and dances they had learned, they gave a puppet show in which they used puppets they themselves had made. Mrs. Barbara Metcalf, executive director of Winchester Girl Scouts, was on hand to "pin" the new Brownies. The girls participating were Catharine and Cynthia Ayer, Dorothy Collins, Gretchen Dietz, Barbara Eaton, Rebecca Fish, Elizabeth Ann Hood, Betsy Lamb, Terel Newell, Margaret McCreery, Judith Walker, and Edith Willis.

PORCELAIN OR CHINA WARE

Resumption of the manufacture of the so-called "Dresden" ware at the famed Meissen works 16 miles northwest of the city of Dresden, Germany, is a reminder that the porcelain industry had its birth centuries ago in China.

As early as the third century of the Christian era, notes the National Geographic Society, Chinese potters were making a distinctive product that became known to the world as "china" or porcelain. This ware is distinguished by its quality of transmitting light, its flawless whiteness, its hardness, and the characteristic sound it emits when struck.

Italians Among First Copyists

China's potters had found a remarkably pure white clay, which they called kao-ling, from the high hill where it was first discovered. This clay, now known as kaolin, they used with powdered quartz and feldspar to make the hard paste from which they shaped tiles, dishes and ornamental objects.

How or when this ware first made its way to Europe is not clear. One explanation is that specimens were transported by returning missionaries. Another version is that it entered through trade channels. Certainly it was known in Italy in the 15th century, and Italian potters then were trying to copy it. Because of its high translucence they were led into the error of thinking that it was a kind of glass. They experimented at Venice, at Florence, and at Pisa. They succeeded in creating earthenwares with a white enamel or slip covering, but they did not achieve true porcelain.

French potters working on the riddle of the ingredients of China ware, in the early 17th century, were able at St. Cloud and Rouen to compound a soft paste from which they produced artificial porcelain. It contained a glassy ingredient to assure a high glaze, and this method of attempting to match the Chinese product was typical of French procedure for nearly a century. Similar compositions were developed in the 18th century in England and Spain.

The key to the secret was found by Germans in 1709. They learned how to make a fine, hard paste porcelain from silicates of aluminum. Production began at Meissen in 1710, and the city soon became the porcelain capital of Europe and the seat of manufacture of the so-called Dresden china. Clay comparable to the Chinese variety was discovered in Saxony, near Limoges, in France, and in Cornwall, England and these discoveries furthered the manufacture of true, hard-paste porcelain.

Competitors Adapted Designs

True hard paste porcelain was made at Sevres, France, in 1769 in the royal factory which had been moved from Vincennes. This center continued in the main to turn out artificial porcelain in tasteful and delicate designs until the beginning of the 19th century.

Meissen's fame subjected its factory to raids on its workers by competitors, and to widespread adaptation of its designs. Kings and princes vied with one another in fostering the production of beautifully modeled porcelain ware. Meissen experts provided the "know how" for new factories in Berlin and Vienna.

By the late 18th century the manufacture of porcelain, true and artificial, was a fairly well developed art. There were factories at Derby, Worcester and Bristol, and in Staffordshire. Individuals as well as places, served to identify English products, such as Spode and Wedgewood.

Other famous wares decorated with figures in relief, Spanish potters in Madrid were specializing in pieces with figure modeling. Denmark had factories in Copenhagen turning out hard paste and soft paste goods. Stockholm was Sweden's center. Russian factories at St. Petersburg (now Leningrad) and near Moscow fashioned German-style porcelain.

Porcelain was made at Chelsea, England, in 1745. The designs were inspired by Meissen ware. There were factories at Derby, Worcester and Bristol, and in Staffordshire. Individuals as well as places, served to identify English products, such as Spode and Wedgewood.

SPRING FASHION SHOWING

Winchester women had an unusual opportunity to see the new 1946 spring and summer fashions at the Donation Day program of Winchester's fourteen-year old institution, the Thrift Shop, when Filene's gave a Fashion Show in the Social Hall of the First Baptist Church, Tuesday morning, March 26th.

Mrs. E. H. Garrison, business manager of the Thrift Shop, warmly welcomed the large gathering of women and expressed the appreciation of the Thrift Shop for the assistance they had given in the past.

The stage of the Social Hall was most strikingly converted into a garden with a carpet of green grass, a peacock-topped fountain surrounded by cineraria, tulips and hyacinths in bloom, against a background of evergreens. The models, all Winchester women, displayed to the best advantage the brilliant colors, expert designing and 1946 style touches incorporated in the gowns, suits and playclothes. The new longer skirts, the "hippy" effect introduced by peplums and fullness in the skirts, as well as the distinctive neck and sleeve treatments, were all portrayed in the array of practical and beautiful garments selected by Mrs. Jordan, fashion expert for Filene's, who gave the large and appreciative audience a vivid word description of each outfit. Mrs. Malcolm C. Wilson played appropriate music throughout the modeling.

Following the showing of the fashions, coffee was served in the Recreation Hall of the Church, which had been transformed into a pine-paneled Coffee Chop, furnished with genine antiques and hooked rugs, the whole room giving an atmosphere of charm and dignity. Presidents of various Winchester women's organizations poured.

The entire Donation Day arrangements were under the personal direction of Mrs. Charles A. Burnham, and the outstanding decorations were planned and carried out by Mrs. Samuel Kirkwood and Mrs. Norman Mitchell with the assistance of Mrs. Alfred Meurling.

Many useful and salable articles were donated by the guests to carry on the work of the Thrift Shop in the town, and the whole program was one of the most attractive and successful affair of its kind that Winchester has seen.

BUSY WEEK-END FOR FIREMEN

Shortly after the town meeting had voted them a reduction in weekly working hours from 84 to 70, the members of the Fire Department worked their hardest week-end of the budding spring season.

The men answered 13 alarms on Friday, eleven being for grass and brush fires scattered about town.

Box 61 came in at 5:05 Friday afternoon for a fire at the old Josha Coit estate on Hillside avenue, where a rubbish fire at the rear of the house finally set fire to the dwelling. The damage was not extensive, though some of the timbers were scorched and some shingles were burned and had to be ripped off. Box 542 at 7:40 Friday evening was for a fire at the town's well field off Ardley road on the west side. This was the making of a bad fire, and a number of the evergreens which were set out by the Water Dept. and which had survived previous fires there, were burned.

Although there were not as many fires, Saturday, those the men did have required a lot of work. The day opened with a good stiff grass and brush fire on the hill off High street, headed toward the standpipe. Box 142 was sounded for this fire at 11:34 a. m. Five minutes after this alarm Box 146 came in for a grass fire off Hutchinson road near the Country Club.

Box 56 at 3:15 was for a woods fire that burned over about four acres at the top of the hill off Emerson road and Wildwood street. The men had a busy hour-and-a-half with this fire, and at 4:08 Box 56 came in for a fire at the Winchester Conservatories, owned by Mr. Robert W. Arinstrong.

This fire originated in a storage and work shed from which extend two newly built greenhouses. One of the greenhouses caught fire from the blaze in the shed, which was a hot fire. About 15 feet or so of the greenhouse was burned and both houses were filled with smoke. Since both were filled with flowers it is a question how much damage actually was done. Many of the flowers very probably were destroyed. The shed was pretty well gutted.

While the department was out during the afternoon a Medford Engine Company covered in at the Central Station. Arlington notified the local Department in the morning, it would be unable to help since it then had two companies fighting fires in Lexington.

Sunday's first alarm came at 8:45 a. m. for a dump fire at the lower end of Summer and Winter streets. The men put in nearly two hours at this fire, and at 12:23 Woburn Box 451 came in for burning lumber and a garage on Lake avenue over the town line.

At 1:19 Sunday afternoon the men were again called to Woburn to put out a grass fire at 169 Washington street. At 1:25 the first of two alarms from Woburn Box 522 came in, for a grass fire on Buckman street. The second alarm was for a grass fire on Vining Ct. in the South end of Woburn at 1:28.

Box 34 came in at 1:26 for burning grass and bush off Holton street in Winchester and at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon there was a hot fire in the rear of the home of Mr. James J. McGovern, 48 Everett avenue.

Fire Headquarters was notified of this fire by phone and an engine company was dispatched to the scene under Lt. David J. Meskell. Upon arrival Lt. Meskell sent in a call for more help, Box 573 being put on at the station.

Starting with grass and brush the flames set fire to a shed, a doghouse as well as some big trees near the Lake. The doghouse and boat-house were pretty well burned and some damage was done the shed. The trees were burning up through the middle and in danger of falling.

This fire, which gave the men another good workout, ended the calls for the week-end. Reading called for help during the middle of the day but Chief Gorman was unable to send any one of his crews being all out.

PARTIES PLANNED BEFORE RUSSELL LECTURE

Mr. Francis H. Russell of the State Department will speak in the High School Auditorium on Monday evening at 8:15, April 1. His timely subject, "Our Role in World Affairs", is creating much interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Woodward and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert E. Underwood are entertaining jointly Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fletcher, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dolben, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Sheppard Pond, Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Dolan and Dr. and Mrs. Norman Padelford.

Mrs. Theodore Elliott, tickets.

COLLEGE EVENING STUDY GROUP

The music branch of the College Evening Study groups will meet as usual at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Kirkwood on Swan road, Monday, April 1st. This will be the fifth of the music study evenings. The Kirkwood's beautiful living room furnishes an ample and gracious background for this rather large gathering of music students.

The last half of each evening is given over to the production of vocal music by the members themselves lead in turn by individuals of the group. The first half of each evening consists of a discussion of some musical form followed by illustrations on the piano and selections from the Kirkwood's large collection of records. We have been very fortunate in the leaders of this section. Mrs. John Carr gave the first talk on orchestral instruments, Mrs. Albert Buffum, the symphony, Mr. Clifton Jones, of 40 Arlington street, Winchester, has had the evenings on the Sonata form and Tone Poems and will have Monday evenings study of Modern Music. Mr. Jones has a fund of musical information, illustrates his points with animation at the piano and knows his records so well that he reads the grooves. The group feels very grateful to Mr. Jones, a busy teacher of piano, for the generous gift of his time. The last meeting, will be a request evening led by Mr. Herbert Mueller. It is hinted that the vocal section will have something to offer for the united evening study groups in May.

COLORFUL COLONIAL NIGHT PLANNED

"Colonial Williamsburg", the Charles H. Tozier's most popular illustrated lecture will be the feature attraction of the Winchester Hobby Center's forthcoming Colonial Night on Saturday, April 13, in the high school auditorium. Usherettes in colonial costume with a background of period music will supply colorful atmosphere.

Dr. Tozier is donating his services for the exclusive benefit of Winchester's young people to help provide funds for equipment and instruction at the Winchester Hobby Center. The Hobby Center is now serving children from 6-12 years on Saturday mornings, Junior High Schoolers on Friday afternoons, and High School students in evening clubs. As soon as adequate quarters have been obtained the Hobby Center will be ready to serve adult interests as well.

Chairman of the Colonial Night production is Mr. Herbert F. Ross, vice president of the Winchester Hobby Center. In charge of costumes, music and decorations are Dorothy S. Stove and Mrs. Marshall Pihl. Mrs. W. Henry Fulton is in charge of programs and publicity.

COUPLES' CLUB DANCE TOMORROW

As the Star goes to Press, all regular tables for the Couples' Club Carnival and Dance tomorrow night in Metcalf Hall have been sold. However, the committee by making careful arrangement of floor space will be able to accommodate some additional parties.

Ken Reeves and his orchestra will play for dancing from 8 until 12, and there will be several floor show numbers including the famous Russellettes in a tap routine, and Bob and Theresa in specialty dance numbers.

The Couples' Club is sponsored by the Unitarian Church. Proceeds of the dance will go toward sending a Scout from Troop 6, also sponsored by the Unitarian Church, to the great Philmont Scout Ranch in Cimmaron, New Mexico this summer.

SYMMES CORNER DISCUSSION CLUB

"The Symmes Corner Discussion Club" met Tuesday evening, March 19, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Swazey, 336 Main street.

The program was a pleasant departure from the usual meetings of the group. Instead of a speaker or a phase of current world problems, Mr. Hibbard James sang a group of songs from well known light operas with particular emphasis on Gilbert and Sullivan.

Mr. James, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. James of 25 Stowell road, clearly showed his experience with such music. He handled the difficult Gilbertian "patter songs" with ease and splendid diction and he was as much at home in familiar melodies from "The Merry Widow", "Show Boat" and "Oklahoma".

The evening was both delightful and refreshing. Mrs. Daniel Morse, Jr., Miss Mary Studley and Mrs. Carl G. Richmond were the hostesses.

CANCER CONTROL INSTITUTE

The Winchester Cooperative Cancer Control Committee is participating in a Cancer Control Institute to be held on Wednesday, April 3, 1946, at the Philips Brooks House, Cambridge. The purpose of this Institute is to assist Committees in setting up plans to bring to their people the latest information in regard to this disease and how everyone can help in its control.

Committee members from Arlington, Belmont, Watertown, Somerville, Brookline, Wellesley, and Cambridge are planning to attend this important meeting.

It has been estimated that of the 175,000 Americans who will die of cancer this year, 60,000 people could be saved by spreading knowledge regarding the early signs and symptoms of the disease and urging people to consult their doctor early for examination and treatment, if necessary Committee members realize that more than twice as many Americans died of cancer as were killed and listed missing during World War II and that action must be taken to bring down this needless toll of life.

The Committees are interested in mobilizing all community resources in order to channel to every citizen this very vital information. At the Cancer Control Institute in Cambridge they will receive the assistance of experts in planning their local programs. The medical aspects of the disease; the Cancer Control Program in Massachusetts; Organizing a Committee; available pamphlets, posters, and movies; Community Resources; the value of the newspaper and radio; are among the topics to be presented and then discussed by committee members.

Mrs. Richard Harlow, chairman of the Winchester Cooperative Cancer Committee, and her members: Mrs. Alexander Aitken, Mrs. Theodore Brrowne, Mrs. Warren C. Whitman, Mrs. Chester Koontz, Miss Hilda Hope, Dr. John McLean, Mrs. Edward E. Kuypers, are planning to attend the Cancer Control Institute.

SIGNS OF SPRING

During the heighth of the early spring traffic last Friday afternoon a bus sideswiped the concrete electric light pole on Mt. Vernon street at the Edison store. The light was kneed from the post and the bus somewhat scraped, but no other damage was apparent. Shortly after this the electric gates at the railroad crossing got out of kilter, one gate going up and down continuously. Police directed the center traffic until the trouble was rectified, but the automobiles were badly tangled for nearly an hour.

REP. ROGERS POINTS TO NEED OF SECRETARIAT

Disclosure of how President Roosevelt polled the cabinet one month before Pearl Harbor and other instances of unrecorded cabinet sessions points to the need of a secretariat of the United States, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican of Lowell said today.

The fifth district Congressman, who is a high ranking member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, is preparing legislation which would set up a secretariat for this nation. Main purpose of the secretariat is to have complete charge of officially recording sessions of the cabinet, and to keep records of our foreign agreements.

"We have just concluded a war in which many unrecorded events of vital importance took place," commented Congressman Rogers. "While I do not maintain that the transactions of secret conferences should all be made public, I do wish to point out the need of permanent transcripts," she said.

Congressman Rogers said she will call upon Congress to wake up to the fact that a tremendous volume of information is not on record in any branch of our government.

"Take for example, the poll of the cabinet conducted by President Roosevelt one month before Pearl Harbor on the question of whether the people would back us up in case we struck at Japan," Congressman Rogers said, adding:

"We definitely should have in the records the exact conversations which took place at thiss all important cabinet meeting. As it turned out, evidentally the only record of that meeting is contained in the diary of former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson.

"I can cite many instances of other meetings of national and international character where nothing remains now to officially relate what transpired. One of the most vital is the Yalta agreement. As far as I have been able to determine, there is no record of the Yalta agreement other than the information contained in papers kept by the late President Roosevelt."

Congressman Rogers indicated that such a measure to be proposed by her which would establish a secretariat should definitely be of bi-partisan nature.

During the past few days she has sounded out the opinions of various government leaders and reported that many are in favor of establishing a secretariat.

Anne Richardson, of Winchester, has recently been elected student government representative for next year's Junior Class at Randolph-Macon Woman's College. Anne was president of the freshman class, was a student government representative of the sophomore class and was an all-star hockey and baseball player. She is a member of Omega, Humbug, and Eta, secret societies; of Blazer Club, the Glee Club and Tri Delt, national sorority. Anne is on the Dean's List and was a sophomore "ask me."

MOUNT EISENHOWER

Renaming of Canada's 9,060 foot Castle Mountain in honor of General Eisenhower lengthens the list of peaks which have recently become natural monuments to distinguished war leaders. Canada had previously named three 9,500-foot peaks after the Allied leaders, Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin. Colorado changed the name of one of its two Mount Wilsons to Mount Franklin Roosevelt.

Mount Eisenhower, notes the National Geographic Society, lies a milky mass about half way between the famous resort centers of Lake Louise and Banff, in Banff National Park, a 2,500-square mile slice of southwestern Alberta. The many-headed peak rises some two miles south of the Bow River, and its base extends eight miles along that stream. From its broad and rocky platform the towers and battlements into bold shapes that suggest in form the castles built on mountains of an ancient castle. The sheer, bare sides rise 4,000 feet above the valley floor.

The region is studded with high peaks, eastern outposts of the continent's vast Rocky Mountain system. Mountain climbing has become a recognized attraction. Swiss guides and pack trains make the ascents easier for novices. Mt. Eisenhower was first climbed in 1894.

Development of railway service and motor highways has made the park area more accessible. Trips from resort centers are facilitated by numerous bungalow centers, tourist camps, ski lodges and game and fire wardens cabins, some equipped with telephones.

TRANS-JORDAN

Trans-Jordan, looking forward to independence by reason of a British decision to give up its mandate, is described by the National Geographic Society as a small Near East Country where a nomadic way of life has replaced a once flourishing agriculture.

It is an Arab nation, a land of intermittent droughts, and desert for the most part. Its 400,000 people are scattered thinly over an area nearly as large as that of Indiana.

Shaped like an axe head, with the blade pointing south, Trans-Jordan shares its frontiers with Palestine on the west, the Levant States (Syria and its associated governments) on the north, Iraq on the northeast, and Saudi Arabia on the east and south. The Jordan River and the salty pocket of the Dead Sea form part of the western border. East of these depressions the land rises to a broad plateau broken with mountains approaching mile heights.

Helped Feed Roman Empire

In Roman Empire times this region was a dependable granary, supplying in considerable part the empire's need for foodstuffs. It then supported a population estimated at a million or so. Irrigation and land conservation were well developed.

With the Arab invasion in the seventh century the conduits, cisterns, well-tilled fields and terrace walls built to check erosion fell into decay. Permanent occupation of fertile sites gave way to roving exploitation directed by the availability of pasturage.

This tent-dwelling culture has meant that the shifting groups of tribesmen have lived on grazing animals and not on crops. The tendency has been to move from one grass plot to another rather than to take time to develop a sustaining agriculture.

Measures partly in effect to simulate productive farming include the terracing of hillsides, the planting of fruit trees, and the extension of irrigation facilities. Wheat barley, fruit and vegetables are grown in the Jordan Valleys, vineyards are cultivated in some hill areas, and grains and vegetables do well in plateau tracts.

Caravans Still Active

Winters in Trans-Jordan are long and rainy; summers are hot and dry, though nights may be cool. Highlands are cold and at times snow-blanketed. Rainfall is uncertain in duration and volume. Watercourses furrow the uplands, but go dry in the hot season.

Transportation is still supplied in the main by the caravan. Important old trade routes passed through Trans-Jordan, notably from Damascus in Syria to Egypt; and from Saudi Arabia by way of Petra, the rose red city of rocks, to Gaza, near the Palestine coast. Roads fan out from Amman, the capital, to all the chief towns. More than a thousand miles of motor roads were built in 1938. A railway fringes most of the country's western border, running from Ma'an in the south northward into Syria.

FLAG DESIGN

If a new state, such as Hawaii or Alaska, should join the Union as frequently suggested, a new star, the 49th, would be added to the blue union of the United States Flag the following July 4.

How the stars would be arranged is still a guess, for no precedent exists. When President Taft by Executive Order in 1912 established the first official arrangement for the stars, the National Geographic Society points out, all 48 states were in the Union, and no provision was made for subsequent additions.

The law of June 14, 1777, establishing the flag, merely stated that it was to have 13 red and white stripes and a blue union with 13 white stars. No reference was made to whether the stripes should be horizontal or vertical, and some early flags had vertical stripes. The law also failed to state the number of points the stars should have and the position they should occupy.

Vermont was admitted to the Union in 1791 and Kentucky in 1792, a change in the flag was ordered in recognition by enacting a law on January 13, 1794, providing that after the first day of May 1795, the United States Flag should have 15 stripes and 15 stars. This was the flag which inspired Francis Scott Key to write "The Star-Spangled Banner."

1818 Flag Law Restricted Stripes To Thirteen

The parade of states continued with Tennessee, Ohio, Louisiana, Indiana, and Mississippi entering the Union between 1796 and 1817. On April 4, 1818, a third flag law was passed. Each state was to be represented by a star to be added on July 4 following its admission, but the stripes were to be returned to the original 13. Congress recognized that if the number of stripes were continually increased, the law of visibility, or invisibility, would soon take effect.

As early as 1818, Navy regulations gave explicit directions for Navy flags, the Army, however, had its flags made by contract, and so there was no uniformity in its flags when the various branches started to use the Stars and Stripes as national colors. In the absence of specific directions, manufacturers gave their fancy full reign, with the result that foreign diplomats on more than one occasion asked the Government, "Just what is the flag of the United States?"

Research shows that early flags had the stars arranged in circles, circles around a center star, quincunxes, ovals, great stars, etc. The popular belief that the first flag, or flags, almost invariably had the stars in a circle probably comes from the influence of several paintings, especially "The Spirit of '76," which were popular at the end of the 19th century. Some of the painters were confused in regard to dates. Leutze's picture of "Washington Crossing the Delaware," for example, shows the Father of His Country with a United States Flag on Christmas, 1776, six months before the flag was approved by Congress.

The question might arise, Which star in a new flag would represent Hawaii or Alaska?" The answer is, "No particular one." While some patriotic groups feel it is harmless to permit school children to find out which star represents their state, by taking the order of the state's admission to the Union and counting out the stars to find this, feel that giving the facts about the matter would be preferable. The original states were not admitted to the Union; they formed it. The Constitutional Convention, held in 1787, ten years after the flag was adopted, made no reference to the flag. Thus the idea that Delaware has the first star in the flag because it was the first state to ratify the Constitution, is not supported by official action. Or to suggest that the star in the top row next to the staff is for "proper one," many historians the first state and the star in the top row next to the staff is for the 41st state admitted to the Union, is completely to ignore the fact that only since 1912 have the stars had an ordered course. At the time the flag act of 1818 was proposed, the suggestion was made in debate that each star represent a certain state, and the idea was discarded. The Congressional Committee stated, "The flag is supposed to signify numbers, and not local and particular sections of the Union."
